HISTORY AND EDUCATION

The instrument called history, which brings the past to witness in forming our estimates of the future, comes vividly to mind when we see a graduating class go out on Washington's Birthday from the doors of a University in the Nation's Capital.

The fact that I do not know an educational institution of importance which fails to give history a prominent place in its curriculum might be taken to indicate that it is not necessary to emphasize the significance of this subject in education. And yet, with due credit for the great advances made in stating the case for history—even in institutions for higher education and research—I am convinced that in this field there is still open such an opportunity for new constructive effort as can scarcely be found elsewhere in the possible range for application of human intellect. I believe that the results of historical study and research, if given their real values as to fact and interpretation, may still make enormous contribution toward the solution of much in our economic, social, and political life that seems otherwise nearly insoluble. Especially desirable is the development of this phase of knowledge for the educational guidance of a people through whom the ballot has such an important part in determining the policy of government.

In order to define the place of history in education, may I indicate briefly an assumed outline of a program by which the student is prepared for the work expected of him by the community? No detailed plan of education can be prepared which will serve perfectly for more than one person. It is only in their broader outlines that one is justified in considering proposals which might be used for any large group.

One classification of the content of education indicates that it is inadequate if it does not prepare us for our particular places in life by giving, first, something concerning the world about us, in which we live and work—the earth, the life upon it; second, an estimate of the real nature of human kind, with its modes of expression and action—in other words, to know ourselves; third, an understanding of the normal relations existing among the individuals in human society. Important as these three kinds of information are, they furnish us only the status of the world at a given moment, whereas we are concerned with it as an operating machine or organism. This means that we must see, fourth, the movement of the entire scheme—the universe, man, and society through time—which introduces change, sequence, or history. But this is not always mere change in the sense of succession. There may be growth, or progress, or creative expression, which is a fifth element of exceptional significance. Last of all, it is necessary for each individual to know his personal relation to the world in the sense of opportunity and adaptability relative to the scheme of a complicated universe of things physical and human—moving, changing, growing through time.

In all education there must be a large measure of the purely descriptive element relating to details which touch our practical day by day lives; but the most important functions concern principles and modes of operation, or laws, rather than descriptions. Some think that education tells us all about everything—I believe that it should rather tell us what everything is all about.

In our study of the physical world it is more important to understand the laws involved in the fundamental forces concerning interrelations between bodies than it is to know the form or location of any individual object at a given moment: gravitation, light, electricity, which seem applicable everywhere and bring unity into the world, are much more significant than the form of any rock or the height of any mountain at a particular time. Or, if you discuss the shape and size of a crystal, it is the laws of chemistry and physics relating to the fundamental nature of matter and the forces involved in it to which you must look for your explanation of what appears rather than to mere measuring of length, breadth, and height, and the counting of crystal faces.

The farther we go in the field of physical sciences the more impressive becomes the array of evidence indicating unity in operation of the natural world. In spite of the almost intuitive expectation that one might have of differences within the vastly spread mist of stars through which the stellar universe reveals itself about us, the experience of the astronomer, physicist, and chemist makes it difficult for them to convince themselves that unity and continuity of physical law do not extend with almost unvarying uniformity to the uttermost realms we know.

With such evidence of unity in the so-called physical universe, one unconsciously looks for some coordinate expression in the living world—and here, in the course of long-continued inspection, there have appeared evidences of application of another kind of unity of principle—expressed in the laws of growth, which have translated themselves into laws of progress, which mean not merely development of the individual but advancement through modification of the living world in general.

So, inevitably, there must arise a question regarding the kind of approach which we should make to that great volume of material included in the data of history concerning human kind and its relation to the world about it. When we come to know man with thoroughness, how far shall we find that the modes of operation in his history have been such that we may classify them in terms of law? If we consider human life moving through time, shall we find the principle of growth—change—advance, expressing itself as in other living things the history of which has been subjected to careful scrutiny?

History has been described as having various functions. According to one view it furnishes the machinery by which we secure the facts or the truth concerning the past. This may be done with or without reference to the connectedness of the series of events. The significance might be large even if it concerned only the repetition of events without reference to the possibility of anything more than continued repetition. Perhaps the facts are not always necessary. It is sometimes considered immaterial whether George Washington did or did not cut down the cherry tree, so long as we are confident that he always told the truth.

Merely stated as facts, the materials of history sometimes have value as illustrations by analogy. According to this view the history of the Greeks, the Egyptians, or the dinosaurs might give illustration of certain possibilities in life processes without their necessarily having any relation to the life of to-day.

In general, history involves the elements of causal relation in the succession of events leading to the present and preparing the way for the future. If we are concerned with investigation of an institution, such as the Constitution of the United States, it is essential that, with other facts, we learn the truth with reference to what it was intended to accomplish. So a second view of history represents a study of connected events or sequences, giving us the steps leading to the present and illustrating the method of accumulation and organization by which our institutions have originated. Social development is characterized by continuing addition to classified knowledge. Individuals disappear, but the body of available information and the consciousness of society persist. Discovery and research contribute by bringing in new data; science and learning organize it; business applies it; education carries it on from man to man or generation to generation. Thus we desire to have not merely the facts but with these the method of their growth.

A third view adds to analogy, to repetition, and to continuity in accumulation and organization, a study of the laws of growth through reorganization and creation of new conditions or states of being. This phase of history touches the evidence indicating that conditions are not merely changing, but are becoming different because of something in their nature which results in movement in a definite direction. In this method of approach we are concerned with the nature of the process of change and the laws determining the direction in which it moves, thus opening the way to a possible projection of the scheme into the future with suggestion as to what is yet to come.

As commonly interpreted, history is represented by a written record. This will almost inevitably present the evidence with considerable distortion due to the personal element, but the expression of the author's personal bias is itself often of value. The larger part of historical data must necessarily consist of description or narrative, to which there may be added an interpretation of the causes and effects. Sometimes records which are not written may actually convey more accurate information and with less chance of distortion than is true in the human description or opinion.

In recent years the interpretative aspect of history has developed rapidly. It is due, in considerable measure, to the more intimate relation of nations and peoples to each other through practically instantaneous communication, rapid transportation, commercial, economic, social, and political interdependence. This contact has tended to break down some of the prejudices which have functioned as barriers against advance in understanding of the world situation as it really exists. It has led to a recognition of the need for considering all of the interests in existence at a given moment if we are to attain anything like a satisfactory solution of any world problem. Through this intimacy the degree of positiveness with which each people has assumed its right to be called the chosen of God has been somewhat modified.

This situation has led inevitably to a change in view of the past and future as well as of the present. Just as we must grant the need of accepting conditions as they are for the world as a whole in any given moment, so we come to understand that in consideration of all great problems—whether they concern politics, business, or science—the special significance of present time disappears. We are able to attain satisfactory interpretation only when we recognize that which is, was, and will be as a part of one connected series of inextricably interlocked and interrelated elements in the unity of human relations.

I am afraid that we as American citizens have sometimes seemed scarcely cognizant of the fact that time passes and conditions shift. It is probably true that our democracy is more effective in the space sense at a given moment, as for example, relating Oregon to New York, than it is in the time sense, as connecting the New York of to-day with that of fifty years hence.

Contrary to the commonly accepted view, what have been called the incidental or unwritten evidences of human activity form not only a very reliable record of history, but the bulk of such information is relatively large. The layers of ruins representing successive stages of growth, climax, and destruction, such as we find in Jerusalem or Rome, reaching back from to-day to the remote yesterdays, give us an account which not only supplements written statement but contributes much that is not touched upon in written record. So, as we proceed from modern to mediaeval and ancient history, we have found it possible to study with accuracy and satisfaction the development of cities and civilizations from which there have come to us but few pages of written story.

The field of historical research included in archaeology covers a vast stretch of time extending into periods many millenniums before the Christian era. From this we reach insensibly into the so-called dawn of history or prehistoric period. The existence of man is not limited to the present geological time. Our own history reaches into earlier geological ages and merges with that of the cave bear and the saber-tooth tiger. Man was present as a part of the living world in a period so remote that the range of time compassed by modern history is only as a pin-point compared with the long-extended line represented by these earlier records. Since human beings appeared in Europe the form of that continent has changed; the climate has shifted back and forth from arctic to temperate; and a long procession of living creatures different from those of the present day has passed over the earth and gone into extinction.

The earliest portion of the history of man is found on the later pages of another and longer story read from the strata of the rocks—that magnificent series of records bearing the finger-prints of the Creator. They are laid one upon another in the order of their making, but the series is opened wide for our convenient inspection. This record has been called the greatest original document available to us from all time. There are many chapters of the story. A single author wrote them all. His claim to authorship was established in the making of the world. The record lay long unread. Its value depends upon the intelligence and genuine desire for knowledge of those who approach it. In these later days the seeker for truth has found it a veritable treasure-house of information.

The record of the rocks, from which we read the geological history, does not cover more than a small portion of the past of this planet, but the strata available, if carefully pieced together, would give a total thickness of something like 300,000 feet, or more than fifty miles. Calculated by various methods, the more conservative estimates of the time which was required for accumulation of this pile are now expressed in hundreds of millions of years, with the tendency continually toward lengthening of the time. Geologists who have made the most recent calculations generally insist on figures representing between five hundred million and one thousand million years.

And yet when we reach the bottom of the pile we find that the lowest or earliest record available is not the beginning. The earth is so ancient that the oldest rocks have been destroyed. The great number of movements of the earth's crust and intrusions of molten rock that have occurred in past ages have broken and ground them into pieces or have melted them into unrecognition. And now we have little hope of finding the real beginning of the story. Remains of animals and plants entombed in the strata formed in each stage or period represent the history of life. We may not learn when life appeared upon the earth, since we now know the oldest record to be absent. Through the hundreds of millions of years represented in the chapters preserved for us, the world of living things passes before us like a rapidly changing picture in which, with each successive age, the outlines approach more nearly to those of the present, and the continuing growth brings gradual increase in the complication and intelligence of the highest types.

For more than forty years I have been reading this story from the original documents. I have seen a vast array of records. To me they are unspeakably impressive in the clear meaning of their account of progressive growth in the kingdom of living things. The rocks and hills around us assume the significance of a great temple, carrying in its walls a multitude of signed tablets telling how the building was constructed and of the way in which its inhabitants grew to their present estate. I always leave the contemplation of this revelation with renewed conviction that the power which controlled the past from which we come must also guide the future in the making, and that the better we understand the manner of its working, the larger is our opportunity for the pleasure of service in the present.

The greater part of the early history of our earth belongs to the field of the astronomer; and if for a moment we look upon our planet as a subject for examination in this field, we think of our investigations at once in terms of that aspect of being in which the measure of time is translated into distance. The system of sun and planets to which our world pertains is only a minute part of the Galaxy or Milky Way, a great plate-like cloud of stars. For sake of convenience, the astronomer measures space by use of the light-year—which is the distance light travels in a year at the rate of 186,000 miles per second—that is, more than five million million miles per year. The distance across our Galaxy has been estimated as approximately 300,000 times such a light-year.

The flickering streams of light due to arrive in Washington to-night, February 22, 1924, from the stars in the outer regions of our visible universe, began their flight to the earth so many thousand years ago that only with difficulty can we form a conception of the period represented by their journey. On the day of their departure the ancient home of our ancestors in Europe had a geography and a climate different from that of the present. The stars which appeared with the coming darkness flashed their light into the eyes of the cave bear and the lion, seeking their prey in a world of which they were masters. In the same night these twinkling lights must have caught the questioning eye and mind of uncouth men guarding primitive homes and defenseless broods—to which the lineage of philosophers and rulers of the world would later be traced.

To me these remote stars attain full complement of service to whatever power they are responsible by helping with their faint message to give us a measure of magnitude of the real world in which we live. They reach far through space and time to tell us that we are each but a speck in space and a flash in time. In the instant of our coming we are already gone. After all, is it not true that the evidence of our ability merely to know of the universe as it is, and of our place in it, is a sufficient reward to balance the proof of our littleness in comparison with the vastness about us?

So, seen from various points of view, the whole long story of history has developed. By the combined effort of astronomer, geologist, archaeologist, and student of man's written record, we begin now to visualize the background in space and time through which our world has grown and is moving. We know that, regardless of the philosophical view we may have concerning man's origin or beginning, there is behind him an almost unthinkable stretch of time, through which, beset by a multitude of dangers, with widening wisdom and power, man found his way to subjugation of the world. Struggle and training have produced in him at this stage the kind of being whose myriad-battered brain receives an impression of the form and the power of the universe and transforms it into mental life and action. And now, after this lapse of ages, the lamp of history throws its faint rays along the trails on which he walked cautiously through the forest of dangers that time has almost erased from memory. And we are thankful for what the years in the wilderness have given.

Having found it necessary for the moment to touch that wider field of history in which science is thought by some to lay an unfeeling hand upon affairs concerning the relation of man to his Maker, perhaps I may give such assurance as my own conviction can carry that science does not tend to eliminate from the world of things, or of life, or of humanity, that overshadowing power which has been recognized in religion as Creator. The man of science sees the universe as more wonderful with each discovery. The stars, once known only as points in the sky moved by an invisible power, are not less beautiful or less wonderful by reason of our having attained an understanding of their chemical and physical characters, their size, distance, and the nature of their grand march through space. Matter, the physical basis of the universe, is not less awe-inspiring since we have come to see it composed of miniature universes within universes in the molecule and atom.

No one can escape the feeling that, as knowledge advances, the greater world we come to know in terms of space, and time, and power, becomes the object of increasing reverence. Our place of habitation and the period of our existence shrink to relatively small dimensions, but the glory of our part in the plan of the universe increases when we see creation renewed in each successive age, and the way open to us for that continuing growth or progress to which the life of each stage has made its contribution.

So I then repeat what a poet and philosopher has written for us:

"Let knowledge grow from more to more,
But more of reverence in us dwell;
That mind and soul, according well,
May make one music, as before."

It is necessarily a task of extreme difficulty to make certain whether history gives evidence that the current of human life shows in itself a plan of movement like that appearing in the trend of the life world through the long reach of geological time. It may also be urged that the movement, however defined, may be so slow that it need not concern us as individuals. But the mere demonstrated fact of definite movement, or the determination of its trend, is of surpassing importance. Without large evidence of immediate effect, it can give us a source of faith in the goal of nature and of man. It may furnish a stimulus to make us cling to that which is progressive and to hold fast those things which make for advancement.

Nearly every people with a history sufficiently long to permit accumulation of legend or literature has set down some form of statement concerning the manner of its own creation or coming into being—and just as we have always demanded knowledge of our origin, so we have craved to know something regarding our end or purpose. A wide acceptance of personal immortality has met the requirement for continuity of individual existence. It has not provided for the future of the race in the sense of organized society, the continuity of which is not disturbed by replacement of individuals.

There is nothing contributing to the support of our lives in a spiritual sense that seems so clearly indispensable as that which makes us look forward to continuing growth or improvement. It is difficult to believe that human life could exist without such expectation. Whatever concerns the basis of this belief is vital, not merely so far as it relates to our future in the race sense, but in its direct bearing upon the happiness of individuals as well.

The value of scientific contribution in the historical sense lies in the evidence which it furnishes that the movement shown in nature through vast ages is an indication of the character of the thing with which we deal. Science expresses the idea of unity in nature and its laws, and continuity in their operation. It makes clear that what we see does not merely concern man and the present day, but is something larger than the present or the past alone.

I should not fail to note that there has been a tendency on the part of some philosophers and leaders in modern scientific thought to assume that, with the present attainment of high intelligence in man, evolution or advance is halted. It has been suggested that our present civilization is a disease and that existing culture and organization will collapse. This reminds us that the story of Adam and Eve tells of their eating the forbidden fruit and suffering the sad consequences of added knowledge when they became responsible for judgment of good and evil. In reality, the eating of the fruit bringing attainment of knowledge should not merely make degradation possible; it also opens the way to a higher estate which could be reached only through knowing the greatest possible good. Man would be unworthy if he failed to accept responsibility for increased knowledge and for judgment, although it mean the risk of contingent evils along with the opportunity for greater good.

Although the account of Adam and Eve relates that they were banished from the Garden and denied the privilege of living forever in possession of the knowledge they had gained, the gospel of redemption pointed out once more a way to the highest attainment of human life. The principle of punishment was replaced by the Christian law of brotherly love, and the fullest conceivable dedication of life for the good of humanity was expressed in vicarious sacrifice.

It is worthy of note that, in the purely scientific sense, the mutual support among men advocated in brotherly love moves toward elimination of the evils which gratify the individual but endanger society. The recognition by society of those constructive things which are to its advantage tends constantly to build away from the opportunities for evil brought by increased information. The suggestion that civilization will be wrecked because with advancing knowledge new opportunities for evil appear leaves out of account the fact that increasing wisdom brings ability to distinguish more accurately and more quickly between good and bad.

Although we may recognize evils in our present civilization, it is well to remember that in the expression of progress presented in history there can be no expectation of absolute uniformity in movement. The major curves will show minor irregularities. We should not be confused by temporary conditions, but ought to guide our judgment by those evident tendencies indicated by the larger movement visible in the longer span of time.

It is not my purpose to discuss all phases of history applicable to present-day education or research. A group of experienced historians with the highest ideals devoting themselves to this subject stand to me in the relation of teachers, and I am only expressing here my confidence in them. It has been my purpose only to invite attention to those phases of the problem which lend themselves most readily to approach by historians examining the longer reaches of time, and given opportunity to consider changes clearly representing the expression of creative movement.

One of the greatest possibilities which education offers lies in the opportunity for making the interpretation of historical changes useful in present and future affairs. Good citizenship is impossible without judgment based upon an understanding of the world framed as it really is, and not presented as a distorted picture such as selfish interests—individual, corporate, political, or national—may make it. The proverb, "Where there is no vision the people perish," which was written in the time of kings, may be translated for a democracy and read, "Where the people have no vision they perish." Let us change the notion of completely stabilized ideas in life to one which recognizes that everything in history teaches clearly that we should build with the continuing expectation of change and progress. Let no one vote on matters touching national issues unless capable of interpreting their historical meaning.

Whatever it seems to say about it, the world wants disinterested, progressive leaders in every trade or profession. It does not want and will not have dominance in leadership which tends to sit tight, hold fast, and let others take the risk of constructive work. We are not interested in merely seeing the wheels revolve—what we want is to know that the wheels go round because the cart is moved.

This country has just passed through an epoch of prosperity such as few nations have known. Its success has been due partly to hard work, abundant common sense, and inventive genius, but largely also to abundant natural resources which could be gathered for the taking. This stage now nears the end, and we recognize "conservation"—preferably called "better utilization"—as an absolute necessity. In the development of such a policy for our land, our forests, our mines, our water power, as also for our power of hands and brains, it is only the clearest look ahead for periods longer than a lifetime that can bring success. The mind trained to common-sense prophetic vision, made possible by historical perspective, is the only one capable of realizing the needed organization.

In our future industrial development we shall necessarily depend upon brains and new ideas, at least to the extent to which we have leaned on abundant natural resources. The increase and organization of information by that creative effort known as research will inevitably mark the next great advance of our industries. Some educational and research institutions have long seen it. A number of industries have recognized it, have acted upon it, and are reaping the double reward of a reasonable financial return and the satisfaction of performing important public service. The planning of our advance in many aspects of industry will require at the same time a knowledge of fundamental natural laws and an interpretation of future needs and research possibilities such as can be provided only by minds trained to the longer vision of events.

It has not been my intention to suggest that history exists solely for the business of prophecy or that forthwith we should all become professionals in this ancient and respected calling; those other functions of history which concern the truth about the past and the origin of the present are also sufficient fields of endeavor in themselves. There is none the less reason for considering that when we think of what might be called the five-dimensional aspect of the world in which we live in the sense of length, breadth, height, time, and creative movement through time, it is especially important to stress that expression of the fifth element, which may represent law or mode of operation in determining the changes.

The Great War stimulated our thinking on the larger meaning of history, and even on its prophetic value. More recently the Einstein theory and the story of Tutankhamen have accomplished much in continuing our education on problems touching the meaning of time and space and change. We are just beginning to learn how to take advantage of experience of the past, and our vision is only slowly reaching with assurance into the future. More than all, we are just now beginning to see what manner of world it is in which we have been placed, and how great a heritage we have in a universe that moves.

In our advance we have discarded the ancient method of change by revolution, punishment, and destruction, for that of evolution built upon continuing improvement and construction. We are trying to put aside the idea of selfish struggle typical of the early reign of tooth and claw, for the mutual Christian support which brings about the highest common good under the rule of truth and law.

As I close, permit me to express once more my trust in history as fundamental in education and a guide in decisions of every-day life. Its message may some time carry to you, as it does to me, a faith in the order of the universe which immediate dangers may not weaken. Though at times our vision seems not to reach into the darkness about us, we see growing ever brighter through the ages that flame of life from which there comes the light of truth and understanding handed on from man to man. And in this light the way becomes more clear by which we may climb up a further step. So Tennyson's immortal lines float always through my thoughts in that—

"I held it truth, with him who sings
To one clear harp in divers tones,
That men may rise on stepping-stones
Of their dead selves to higher things."

To you as a graduating class it may seem that my vision lets me wander so far into the future that its value is already lost for present thought or human use—but in a sense it is your future into which it moves. Do not depend upon my eyes, but look yourselves where I have tried to see, and you will search out more than I have found.

In the world to which you now go out you will find that the real joys of life lie in service and in building for a better future. Attainment of the first depends upon ability to learn the right relations to your fellow-men. The promise of the second lies in the evidence that, when the germs of life were made, hope and faith were mingled in the seed.

Remember that to-morrow will not be as yesterday. May your to-morrows brighten as your vision widens, and may your willing service bring an ever-growing measure of reward.

HISTORY AND PRESENT ORGANIZATION

HISTORY

The George Washington University is the successor of the Columbian College in the District of Columbia which was chartered by an act of Congress approved February 9, 1821. In 1873 the name was changed to Columbian University and in 1904 to The George Washington University.

The first commencement of Columbian College was held on the 15th of December, 1824, with the President of the United States; the Honorable John Quincy Adams, Secretary of State; the Honorable John C. Calhoun, Secretary of War; the Honorable Henry Clay, Speaker of the House of Representatives; and General Lafayette among those present.

Work in the College was confined to the Arts and Sciences until March, 1825, when the Medical Department was established under the conduct of Dr. Thomas Sewall. The Medical Department is thus in the chronological order of establishment the seventeenth medical school in the United States. In 1826 the Law Department was founded with the Honorable William T. Carroll and Mr. Justice Cranch as its professors. Shortly afterward the school was discontinued, but was reopened in 1865. A Theological School founded also in 1826 was soon moved to Newton, Mass., where it now flourishes. On October 1, 1884, the Corcoran Scientific School, now the College of Engineering, was founded. Under Dean Charles E. Munroe the School of Graduate Studies was organized in 1893. Teachers College was started as The Division of Education in 1907. In 1919, the National College of Pharmacy, organized in 1905 as an affiliated college of the University and suspending during the last year of the war, was reopened as the School of Pharmacy, a division of the Department of Medicine, Dentistry and Pharmacy.

ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT

The Annual Commencement is held thirty-six weeks after the last Wednesday in September. Students who have satisfied the requirements for degrees subsequent to the June Commencement may be awarded degrees at the Fall Convocation on October 28.

The Winter Convocation is held on February 23.

UNIVERSITY ASSEMBLIES

The University Assemblies will be held from time to time. The attendance of students may be required.

THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

The University Library comprises the Library of the Department of Arts and Sciences, the Law Library, and the Medical Library. It contains 64,000 volumes.

In addition to its general collections the Library of the Department of Arts and Sciences contains the Library of the late Professor Richard Heinzel, of the University of Vienna, containing 7,200 books and pamphlets in Germanic philology and literature, and cognate branches; the library of the late Professor Curt Wachsmuth, of the University of Leipzig, containing 7,900 books and pamphlets in Greek and Roman literature, archaeology, and history; the Mount Vernon Alcove containing 4,000 volumes in political history, international law, and the social sciences. Besides, the library of the American Institute of Architects, consisting of 1,063 volumes and portfolios of plates and drawings, is deposited in the reading room as a loan collection, where it is accessible, also, to all local architects. The library is open from 9 a. m. to 10:30 p. m.

The Law Library, containing 10,000 volumes, is open from 8.30 a. m. to 10 p. m.

The Medical Library, containing more than 2,000 volumes, is open from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

PRIVILEGES IN GOVERNMENTAL INSTITUTIONS OPEN TO UNIVERSITY STUDENTS

In order to promote research and the diffusion of knowledge, the Congress of the United States has made the scientific resources of the Government accessible to students under the terms of the following joint resolution, approved April 12, 1892:

"Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the facilities for research and illustration in the following and any other governmental collections now existing or hereafter to be established in the city of Washington for the promotion of knowledge shall be accessible, under such rules and restrictions as the officers in charge of each collection may prescribe, subject to such authority as is now or may hereafter be permitted by law, to the scientific investigators and to students of any institution of higher education now incorporated or hereafter to be incorporated under the laws of Congress or of the District of Columbia, to wit:

1. Of the Library of Congress.
2. Of the National Museum.
3. Of the Patent Office.
4. Of the Bureau of Education.
5. Of the Bureau of Ethnology.
6. Of the Army Medical Museum.
7. Of the Department of Agriculture.
8. Of the Fish Commission.
9. Of the Botanic Gardens.
10. Of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.
11. Of the Geological Survey.
12. Of the Naval Observatory.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Student Activities are supported by a Student Activities Fee, subscribed to by all students in the University and collectible as a regular University fee by the Treasurer. Control and direction of all student activities are vested in a Faculty Committee of Student Activities, which in turn is subject to the supervision and control of the President's Council.

The Student Activities Fee was fixed by the Board of Trustees at eight dollars for the academic year 1924-25, this fee to be graduated in the case of students carrying six semester-hours work or less.

Delta Tau Delta Activity Award.—The Gamma Eta Chapter of the Delta Tau Delta Fraternity awards each year to "that member of the senior class who throughout his course at George Washington University has done the most constructive work in the furtherance and upbuilding of the University Student Activities" a gold medal.

Pi Beta Phi Medal.—This medal is awarded annually by Columbia Alpha Chapter of Pi Beta Phi Fraternity to that girl of the Senior Class who throughout her college course has done the most constructive work in the promotion of Student Activities among the women of the University. The award will be made by a committee consisting of the Chairman of the Student Activities Committee, the Dean of Women and one other faculty member who shall be appointed by the President of the University.

SCHOOL OF GRADUATE STUDIES

GRADUATE COUNCIL

DEAN GEO. N. HENNING, Chairman, ex-officio.

PROFESSORS G. M. CHURCHILL AND R. F. GRIGGS, terms expiring in 1925.

PROFESSORS D. C. CROISSANT AND C. E. HILL, terms expiring in 1926.

PROFESSORS H. C. MCNEIL AND J. L. DONALDSON, terms expiring in 1927.

The Graduate Council has power to pass on students' petitions, to approve provisionally students' choice of studies for the degree of Ph. D., and such other powers as the Faculty of Graduate Studies may delegate.

HIGHER DEGREES

The higher degrees conferred in course by the University in the School of Graduate Studies are: Master of Arts (A. M.), Master of Science in Engineering (M. S. in Eng.), Master of Science in Chemistry (M. S. in Chem.), and Doctor of Philosophy (Ph. D.)

ADMISSION

Candidates for admission to courses for higher degrees must make application to the Dean of the School of Graduate Studies or to the Registrar on application blanks, which may be obtained at either office. Candidates must present certificates of the degrees they hold from the institutions conferring such degrees. Until such certificates are presented, registration is merely provisional. Candidates requesting advanced standing must present detailed certificates of the work for which they ask credit.

To be admitted to candidacy for the Master's degree a student must have completed an undergraduate course of study such as is required by colleges of good standing antecedent to the baccalaureate degree. The faculty of Graduate Studies reserves the right to decide in all cases whether the antecedent training fulfills the requirements. Moreover, the course of study pursued must have been such as to qualify the candidates for pursuing the subjects chosen for the Master's or other higher degree sought.

Properly qualified students may be admitted as Students in Attendance, without becoming candidates for degrees.

CHANGE OF COURSE AND WITHDRAWAL

A student desiring to change any course must secure the permission of the Dean. In case of withdrawal from the School, students should send prompt notice to the Dean or the Registrar, and are liable for tuition charges until such notice is received. Notification to a professor, of withdrawal from his course, does not constitute notice of withdrawal.

DEGREES OF MASTER OF ARTS AND MASTER OF SCIENCE

Candidates to attain the degree of A. M., M. S. in Eng. or M. S. in Chem., must complete successfully 24 semester hours of work, in addition to the thesis, forming a consistent plan of study. Courses may be elected from one, two or three departments. At least 12 semester hours, plus the thesis, must be in a major subject. The minimum amount in any one subject that will be counted towards the Master's degree is 4 semester-hours. The candidate's choice of subjects must be approved by his major department. Whenever possible, it is advisable for students to consult members of the major department before registering.

First Section courses, "Primarily for Undergraduates," may under no circumstances be counted towards any higher degree, though a graduate student may be allowed or if necessary as a prerequisite for advanced courses may be required to take them without receiving academic credit. Second Section courses, "For Undergraduates and Graduates," may count towards a higher degree only with the previous approval of the department concerned. Candidates must take at least one Third Section course, "Primarily for Graduates," unless excused by the major department.

Advanced courses taken in the Senior year of college may be counted to the extent of not over 12 semester-hours towards a higher degree, provided that the student shall notify the Dean of the School of Graduate Studies at the beginning of each such course of his desire to count it towards such higher degree; but no work counted towards a Bachelor's degree shall be counted also towards a higher degree.

Part of the work for the Master's degree may be taken in the Medical School or the Law School, but work so taken cannot be counted both towards the Master's degree and a degree in Medicine or Law. A candidate for the Master's degree may not take more than 12 semester-hours, plus his thesis, in the Medical School or Law School.

Advanced work in other institutions of learning may be credited towards the Master's degree in this University, to the extent of not more than 12 semester-hours. No work, whether done here or elsewhere, will be credited towards a Master's degree unless the student attains at least grade "B" or its equivalent on work aggregating at least 12 semester-hours and at least grade "C" on the remainder.

A student who expects to continue his studies for the Ph. D. after receiving the Master's degree is strongly advised so to plan his course from the beginning that work done for the lower degree may count for the higher.

A candidate who takes his major work in Engineering shall register for the degree of M. S. in Eng.; in Chemistry, for the degree of M. S. in Chem.; in any other subject, for the degree of A. M.

A candidate for a Master's degree must pass in residence and study at this University at least two semesters, or one semester and one summer session of 9 weeks, or three summer sessions of 9 weeks each, or four summer sessions of six weeks each. No credit shall be granted for work done in absentia, i. e., without formal instruction here or at some other institution of learning, except for the thesis, which may be completed in absentia with the permission of the department concerned.

Students taking courses only after 5 o'clock shall not be allowed to take over 18 semester-hours in a year (as defined above). No student shall take courses aggregating more than 9 semester-hours in one summer session, nor more than 6 if a part-time student.

A candidate for a Master's degree must present a thesis in his major subject. The thesis, which counts six semester-hours towards the degree and is charged for the same rate as courses, must be registered for by the candidate, preferably at the time of original registration. The choice of the thesis-subject must be approved by the Professor in charge of the major, and recorded at the Registrar's office at least four months before the date on which the thesis is due. The student is expected to consult the professor in charge frequently in regard to the progress of work on the thesis. The thesis in its final form must have the approval of the Professor in order to count towards the degree. Attention is also called to "Regulations Regarding Theses," below.

COURSES IN THE AMERICAN UNIVERSITY

Certain courses in the American University may be taken with the consent of the Department concerned and in some cases will be prescribed in partial satisfaction of the requirements for advanced degrees.

DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

The degree of Doctor of Philosophy is conferred only upon students who have acquired a broad and thorough knowledge of their field of learning, as evidenced by courses followed or other formal instruction received, and who have shown marked ability in original research in some particular branch of that field, as proved by the results set forth in their theses. Formal requirements of courses and residence, although essential, are wholly subordinate to the above principle. In courses in which grades are assigned, whether followed here or elsewhere, the student must attain at least grade "B," or its equivalent, on one-half of his work and at least "C," or its equivalent, on the remainder.

ADMISSION TO REGISTRATION

Before the student can be admitted to registration for this degree he must give evidence that he has completed a liberal undergraduate course of academic study such as is required by colleges of good standing antecedent to the baccalaureate degree, and of such a character as to fit him to pursue to advantage researches in the field chosen for his graduate work. The Faculty of Graduate Studies reserves the right to decide in all cases whether the antecedent training fulfills the requirements. Admission to registration does not necessarily imply admission to candidacy for the Ph. D.

ADMISSION TO CANDIDACY

To be admitted to candidacy for the degree, the student must make application to the Dean on a blank provided for that purpose, not less than 12 months after receiving his Bachelor's degree. To be admitted to candidacy, the student must have fulfilled the following requirements not later than November 1 if he expects to graduate the following June, and not later than May 1 if he expects to graduate the following February: (a) Have satisfied the Departments of French and German that he can read understandingly, in the original, French and German works pertaining to his special field, and have satisfied such other language-requirements as his major Department shall have prescribed; (b) Have passed his preliminary examination before members of his Division; (c) Have selected his thesis-subject and received the approval of the subject by the major Department.

RESIDENCE

Before receiving the degree of Doctor of Philosophy, the candidate shall have spent at least three years, since receiving his baccalaureate degree, in graduate study in recognized institutions of learning. A part-time student shall be required to devote a proportionately longer time, the amount of additional time to be determined by the student's committee. In part satisfaction of residence requirements, the candidate, in addition to his research work, must follow regular courses, to an amount prescribed by his committee. The candidate may be credited with work done at other approved institutions, but must spend at least his last year at this institution.

CHOICE OF STUDIES

Students must in general confine choice of studies to one of the Divisions enumerated below. At the option of the Graduate Council, all courses may be in that department, or some in other departments of the same Division, or some in one other Division.

DIVISIONS

I. Languages and Literatures:

Classics, English,
Germanic, Romance, Semitic, Comparative Literature.

II. History and the Social Sciences:

Commerce, Economics and Sociology, Education,
Ethnology, History, Law,
Political Science.

III. Philosophy and Art:

Architecture, Art and Archaeology, Education,
Philosophy, Psychology.

IV. Mathematics and Physical Sciences:

Applied Mathematics, Architecture,
Astronomy, Astro-Physics, Chemistry, Engineering (Chemical, Civil, Electrical and Mechanical),
Mathematics, Meteorology,
Nautical Science, Physics.

V. Biological Sciences:

Bacteriology, Botany, Ethnology,
Geology and Mineralogy, Medicine, Psychology, Zoology.

GUIDANCE OF STUDENTS

In the pursuit of studies, the student shall be under the guidance of a committee consisting of the professors of the major department and any other professor under whom he shall take work counting towards his degree. This committee shall have power to determine what work he shall complete, in regular courses or otherwise, to approve his choice of a thesis-subject, to conduct all examinations, and to determine whether he shall be recommended for the degree.

EXAMINATIONS

Before being admitted to candidacy, the student (as provided above) shall pass a preliminary oral examination before representative professors of his Division. Before being recommended for the degree, he shall pass a written examination, conducted by his committee, not later than one month before Commencement, on the general field of his major subject. If successful in this, he shall be given an oral examination, conducted by members of his Division, on his thesis and any subjects bearing on his work. The questions and answers to the written examination, together with the decision of the examiners, shall be sent to the Dean not later than 10 days before Commencement and shall form part of the student's file.

DOCTORAL THESES

Not later than the date specified in the University calendar, the candidate for the degree of Ph. D. shall submit a typewritten copy of his thesis and also a typewritten summary of not more than 2,500 words, of the thesis. The summaries of accepted theses will be printed in a volume forming a number of the University Bulletin. After being notified that his thesis has been accepted, and before receiving his degree, the candidate shall pay to the Treasurer $25.00 to meet the cost of printing.

Students who have received the degree of Ph. D. are urged to print their theses in full if possible.

GRADUATION

The degree of Ph. D. will be conferred only in June and in February.

REGULATIONS REGARDING MASTERS' AND DOCTORS' THESES

All theses for each degree sought must, in their final form, be presented by the student to the Dean by the dates announced in the University Calendar. They must previously have been typewritten on official thesis paper, which may be obtained from the Treasurer of the University. The title-page must read: [Title] by [name of candidate], a thesis submitted to the Faculty of graduate studies of George Washington University in part satisfaction of the requirements for the degree of [name of degree]. [Date.] The typewritten thesis must be bound in cloth or leather.

The Dean will present theses to the Chairman of the Committees on the candidates. Accepted theses, with their accompanying drawings, are the property of the University, and will be deposited in the University Library, but the authors of them are permitted to make copies.

THE COLLEGES

The College session of 1924-25 begins Wednesday, September 24, 1924.
The Colleges are open to men and women.

ADMISSION

Every applicant for admission is required to present a certificate of standing and regular dismissal from the school or college which he has last attended.

Candidates for admission to the Freshman Class may present certificates of admission or take an examination in the required subjects. Certificates, in lieu of any or all examinations, will be accepted from schools whose work is attested by well-prepared students admitted to the University in previous years, and from schools that present evidence of affording adequate preparation in the required subjects. The Registrar will, on application, furnish certificate blanks to the principals of such accredited schools.

The certificates of the College Entrance Examination Board will be accepted.

The requirement for admission is a four-year high-school course, or its equivalent, amounting to fifteen "units." For prescribed studies see the specifications of each college.

A unit represents a year's study in any subject in a secondary school, constituting approximately a quarter of a full year's work.

SCHOLARSHIP REQUIREMENTS

1. Students who fail in one-half or more of their work shall be dropped.
2. Students who in any term (a) fail in one-third of their work, or (b) do not make at least "C" in two-thirds of their work and fail in one or more courses; or (c) students who fail to make at least "C" in two-thirds of their work in two successive semesters, shall be put on probation.
3. A student put on probation at the end of the first semester shall discontinue all courses in which he has failed, nor shall he be permitted to take over 15 hours if he is a full-time student; nor more than nine hours if he is a part-time student. Nor shall he serve as an officer or member of a committee in any class or student organization. A student on probation shall have his probation removed at the end of one semester if he passes all courses, with the grade of at least "C" in two-thirds of them. A student in group (c), rule 2, shall be dropped at the end of one semester if he fails to pass all courses, with the grade of at least "C" in two-thirds of them. A student in group (a) or (b), rule 2, shall be continued on probation after one semester if he passes all work, but fails to make the Grade "C" or better in at least two-thirds of his work, and shall be dropped at the end of the second semester of his probation if he does not pass all courses with the grade of at least "C" in two-thirds of them.

4. A student who has been dropped may reenter the Department of Arts and Sciences after an interval of one semester. A student who has been dropped twice in accordance with these provisions may not reenter.

5. Except in case of withdrawal from the University, no student shall be permitted to drop a course during the last month of a semester.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

The regular examinations for admission are held about May 22, and the schedule for examinations is issued May 15. Examinations will also be given in the fall at dates to be announced.

Unless admitted by certificate, every undergraduate candidate for a degree is required to pass an examination.

Candidates from the Washington high schools for the Kendall and the University Scholarships will be examined on nine units. These units upon which the examinations will be given are the following: the specified subjects—English (three units), Mathematics (two units), and one other language (two units); the remaining two units will be in language, history, mathematics, physics, chemistry, biology—as the candidate shall elect. The remainder of the fifteen units must be certified from the high schools.

Definition of Requirements

ENGLISH

(Three Units)

The requirement in English is that recommended by the National Conference on Uniform Entrance Requirements in English.

However accurate in subject matter, no paper will be considered satisfactory if seriously defective in punctuation, spelling or other essentials of good usage.

The examination will be divided into two parts:

1. Grammar and Composition

In grammar and composition, the candidate may be asked specific questions upon the practical essentials of these studies, such as the relations of the various parts of a sentence to one another, the construction of individual words in a sentence of reasonable difficulty, and those good usages of modern English, which one should know in distinction from current errors. The main test in composition will consist of one or more essays, developing a theme through several paragraphs; the subjects will be drawn from the books read, from the candidate's other studies, and from his personal knowledge and experience quite apart from reading. For this purpose the examiner will provide several subjects, perhaps eight or ten, from which the candidate may make his own selections. He will not be expected to write more than four hundred words per hour.

2. Literature

The examination in literature will include:

A. Reading.—General questions designed to test such a knowledge and appreciation of literature as may be gained by an intelligent reading of at least two books under each of five groups as follows: Group I—Classics in Translation (a selection from any other group may be substituted for this); Group II—Shakespeare; Group III—Prose Fiction; Group IV—Essays, Biography, etc.; Group V—Poetry. Other books than those named in the Uniform Entrance Requirement list will be accepted under each group, provided the books are of standard literary character. The candidate will be required to submit a list of the books read in preparation for the examination, certified by the principal of the school in which he was prepared; but the books named in this list will not be made the basis of detailed questions.

B. Study.—The books provided for study are arranged in four groups, from each of which one selection is to be made.

GROUP I, DRAMA

GROUP II, POETRY

Milton: L'Allegro, Il Penseroso, and either Comus or Lycidax.

Tennyson: The Coming of Arthur, The Holy Grail, and The Passing of Arthur.

The selections from Wordsworth, Keats and Shelley in Book IV of Palgrave's Golden Treasury (First Series).

GROUP III, ORATORY

Burke: Speech on Conciliation with America.

Macaulay's Two Speeches on Copyright, and Lincoln's Speech at Cooper Union.

GROUP IV, ESSAYS

Carlyle: Essay on Burns, with a selection from Burns' Poems.

Macaulay: Life of Johnson.

Emerson: Essay on Manners.

A test on the books prescribed under the Study groups will consist of questions upon their content, form, and structure, and upon the meaning of such words, phrases, and allusions as may be necessary to an understanding of the works and an appreciation of their salient qualities of style. General questions may also be asked concerning the lives of the authors, their other works, and the periods of literary history to which they belong.

For the George Washington University Scholarship Entrance Examinations the books for Reading and Study will be the required English of the Washington High Schools.

LATIN

Elementary (two units)

a. I. Latin Grammar: The inflections; the simpler rules for composition and derivation of words; syntax of cases and the verb; structure of sentences in general, with particular regard to relative and conditional sentences, indirect discourse, and the subjunctive.

II. Latin Prose Composition: Translation into Latin of detached sentences and easy continuous prose based on Cæsar.

b. Cæsar: Any four books of the Gallic War, preferably the first four.

Advanced (two units)

a. Cicero: Any six orations from the following list, but preferably the first six mentioned. The four orations against Cataline, Archias, the Manilian Law, Marcellus, Rosius, Milo, Sestius, Ligarius, the Fourteenth Philippic.

b. Virgil: The first six books of Æneid.

c. Advanced Prose Composition, consisting of continuous prose of moderate difficulty based on Cicero.

d. Sight Translation, based on prose of no greater difficulty than the easier portions of Cicero's orations.

GREEK

Elementary (two units)

a. I. Greek Grammar: The topics of the examination in Greek grammar are similar to those detailed under Latin grammar.

II. Greek Prose Composition, consisting principally of detached sentences to test the candidate's knowledge of grammatical constructions. The examination in grammar and prose composition will be based on the first two books of Xenophon's Anabasis.

b. Xenophon: The first four books of the Anabasis.

Advanced (one unit)

a. Homer: The first three books of the Iliad (omitting II, 494, to end).

b. Sight Translation, based on prose of no greater difficulty than Xenophon's Anabasis.

FRENCH

Elementary (two units)

Candidates in Elementary French must have a good knowledge of the essential parts of grammar, with stress on pronouns and on regular verbs and the common irregular verbs. They must know the principles of pronunciation; must be able to translate simple English sentences or easy connected prose into French, and to translate accurately ordinary modern French prose. Candidates must have translated not less than 450 duodecimo pages by at least four different authors, of which amount at least one-third must be history. Candidates must have had a two-years' course of five periods per week.

Advanced (two units)

Candidates in advanced French must have partly translated, partly read, in addition to the requirements for Elementary French, at least 1,000 pages of difficult French of several different authors, including history, fiction, drama, and poetry. Candidates must have had a four-years' course of five periods per week.

Fraser and Squair's French Grammar or Grandgent's Essentials of French Grammar is recommended.

SPANISH

(Two units)

Candidates in Spanish must have a good knowledge of grammar, including syntax, with stress on pronouns and verbs, regular and irregular. They must know the principles of pronunciation. They must be able to translate simple English sentences or easy connected prose into Spanish, and to translate accurately fairly difficult modern Spanish prose and verse. Candidates must have translated not less than 500 pages by at least four different authors, of which amount at least one-fourth must be history or drama. Candidates must have had a two-years' course of five periods per week.

GERMAN

Elementary (two units)

Candidates in Elementary German must have had a two-years' course of five periods a week. They must be able to read fluently at sight and to translate easy narrative prose and poetry. An accurate knowledge of the elements of German grammar and the ability to translate simple prose into German are requisite. About 300 pages of graduated narrative prose, one short play, and such poetry as is usually found in a First Reader will be considered an adequate preparation.

Advanced (two units)

Candidates in Advanced German must have had a four-years' course of five periods a week. They should be well trained in the syntactical laws of the language, have read about 800 pages of good literature in prose, preferably such prose works as are given in the Report of the Committee of Twelve of the Modern Language Association, and poetry, especially dramas by Lessing, Schiller, and Goethe, and studied an elementary history of German literature. German composition should comprise a number of short themes upon assigned historical or literary topics, lives of the authors read, etc.

HISTORY

In this subject special importance is attached to preparation in geography.

Ancient (one unit)

a. Greek History, through the Roman Conquest; as much as is contained in Myer's, Bottsford's, or West's History of Greece.

b. Roman History; as much as is contained in Allen's, Bottsford's, or West's History of the Roman People.

Mediaeval History (one unit)

As much as is contained in the first twenty chapters of Robinson's Mediaeval and Modern Times.

Modern European History (one unit)

As much as is contained in Robinson's Mediaeval and Modern Times from Chapter 21 to the end.

English History (one unit)

As much as is contained in Larned's or Cheyney's History of England.

American History with the Elements of Civil Government (one unit)

As much as is contained in Fiske's History of the United States, and Fiske's Civil Government.

MATHEMATICS

Elementary Algebra (one unit)

Algebra to Quadratics: The four fundamental operations for rational algebraic expressions, factoring, highest common factor, lowest common multiple, complex fractions, the solution of equations of the first degree containing one or more unknown quantities, radicals, including the extraction of the square root of polynomials and numbers, and fractional and negative exponents.

Intermediate Algebra (one-half unit)

Quadratics, etc.: Quadratic equations and equations containing one or more unknown quantities that can be solved by the methods of quadratic equations, problems depending upon such equations, ratio and proportion, and the binomial theorem for positive integral exponents.

Advanced Algebra (one-half unit)

The progressions; the elementary treatment of permutations and combinations; the use of four and five-place tables of logarithms; undetermined coefficients; the elementary treatment of infinite series, the binomial theorem for fractional and negative exponents; the elementary treatment of the theory of equations.

Plane Geometry (one unit)

General text propositions, including the solution of simple original exercises and numerical problems.

Solid Geometry (one-half unit)

Properties of straight lines and planes, of dihedral and polyhedral angles, of projections, of polyhedrons, including prisms, pyramids, and the regular solids; of cylinders, cones, and spheres; of spherical triangles and the measurement of surfaces and solids.

Plane Trigonometry (one-half unit)

The definitions and relations of the six trigonometrical functions as ratios, proof of important formulas, theory of logarithms and use of tables, solution of right and oblique plane triangles.

PHYSICS

It is recommended that the candidate's preparation should include:

- a. Individual laboratory work, comprising at least thirty-five exercises well distributed over the subjects of physics.
- b. Instruction by lecture-table demonstrations.
- c. The study of at least one standard text-book, supplemented by the use of many and varied numerical problems. The metric system should be familiar to the student.

The laboratory note-book must be submitted for inspection, whether the candidate is admitted on certificate or by examination.

CHEMISTRY

The candidate's preparation in chemistry should include:

- a. Individual laboratory work, comprising at least forty experiments. The laboratory note-book should be submitted for inspection.
- b. Instruction by lecture-table demonstrations.
- c. The study of at least one modern text-book.

Requirements.—The ground to be covered and the character of the work should be analogous to that required by the College Entrance Examination Board.

ADDITIONAL SUBJECTS

Certificates will be accepted in botany, zoology, physiology, physiography, political economy, drawing, music, and other accredited subjects in secondary schools.

Manual-training High School Subjects

Technical subjects in manual-training high schools, or schools of similar grade, when duly certified, will be credited as follows:

Shopwork (not exceeding two units), domestic science and domestic art (not exceeding two units).

Business High School Subjects

Commercial subjects in business high schools or schools of similar grade, when duly certified, will be credited to the extent of four units.

ADMISSION TO ADVANCED STANDING

Due credit is given for properly certified courses of study pursued in other colleges and universities.

SPECIAL STUDENTS

All the courses of instruction are open to students of suitable age and attainments who wish, without reference to any degree, to pursue special studies. Candidates must show that they are familiar with the subjects preliminary to the studies which they wish to pursue.

SCHOLARSHIPS AND PRIZES

Applications for scholarships should be filed with the Dean of the College in which the student is to register not later than September fifteenth. All scholarships except the Kendall Scholarship, the Elma Lewis Harvey Scholarship, and the University Scholarships are awarded for one year only, but they may be renewed. Any student holding a scholarship who fails to obtain a general average of 85 per cent on the work of any term, or whose deportment is unsatisfactory, will be reported to the President's Council, and in the absence of extenuating circumstances the scholarships will be revoked.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR COMPETITION

The University offers the following scholarships to be awarded on competitive examination given at the time of the May entrance examinations. Holders of these scholarships are expected to pursue a regular course in one of the colleges of the Department of Arts and Sciences. No scholarship is awarded to a candidate whose examination average is below 80 per cent.

Kendall Scholarship.—The Kendall Scholarship, founded by the late Hon. Amos Kendall, is annually conferred on that member of the graduating class of any of the Washington High Schools who attains the highest average in the entrance examinations. This scholarship continues throughout the undergraduate course, and the student holding it pays only the registration, laboratory and graduation fees.

University Scholarships.—The University offers also six scholarships, to be awarded annually to members of the graduating classes of any of the Washington High Schools. These scholarships continue throughout the undergraduate course, and students holding them pay only the registration, laboratory, and graduation fees.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR ASSIGNMENTS

Davis Scholarship.—This is the income of a fund of one thousand dollars given to the University in October, 1869, by Hon. Isaac Davis, of Massachusetts.

Mary Lowell Stone Scholarship.—This scholarship was founded by a woman in memory of a woman student of science. It consists of a fund of two thousand dollars, the income from which is to be paid to needy women students of science in the University.

Maria M. Carter Scholarship.—This is the income of a fund of one thousand dollars given to the University in 1871 by Mrs. Maria M. Carter.

Farnham Scholarship.—This is the income of a fund of one thousand dollars given to the University in 1871 by Mrs. Robert Farnham.

Withington Scholarship.—This scholarship was founded in 1830, by the New York Baptist Theological Seminary, to be known as the Withington scholarship. It has annual stipend in tuition fees of sixty dollars.

Walker Scholarship.—This scholarship was founded in 1824 by William Walker, Esq., of Putnam County, Georgia. It carries an annual stipend of one hundred dollars in tuition fees available for an undergraduate intending to enter the Christian ministry.

Morehouse Scholarship.—This scholarship was founded by Mr. A. Morehouse, of Washington, D. C., in 1861. It carries an annual stipend of sixty dollars in tuition fees available for an undergraduate intending to enter the Christian ministry.

Nellie Maynard Knapp Scholarship Fund.—A fund of $5,000 established in 1915 by the Columbian Women in memory of its president, Mrs. Martin A. Knapp, to provide scholarships for women. Application may be made to any of the Deans in the Department of Arts and Sciences.

Henry Harding Carter Scholarships.—These scholarships, founded by Mrs. Maria M. Carter in memory of her husband, Henry Harding Carter, consist of four scholarships of the annual value of fifty dollars each, and may be awarded to deserving students who are preparing for the civil engineering profession.

The Byron Andrews Scholarship Fund.—A fund founded by Mrs. Belle Fisk Andrews in memory of her husband, the late Byron Andrews, to provide scholarships "For ambitious and needy students, who desire to pursue courses in English, Latin, Journalism, History, Literature or Political Science."

Founders of Columbian Women Scholarships.—This scholarship was established by the Columbian Women in 1920. At present it consists of a fund of approximately $4,000, the income from which may be assigned to a deserving woman student. Application may be made to any of the Deans of the Department of Arts and Sciences.

The Elma Lewis Harvey Scholarship.—This scholarship was founded in 1921 by Mrs. Emma Elizabeth Harvey, in memory of her daughter, and is to be awarded every four years, or as often as vacant, to a young woman of the Protestant faith and of the Caucasian race who shall be selected for scholarship and moral qualifications.

The John Hitz Metzertott Scholarship.—This scholarship was established in 1923 in memory of John Hitz Metzertott, M. D. '91, by members of his family, and is to be awarded every six years, or as often as vacant, to a young man preparing to enter the medical profession.

The David Spencer Scholarship Fund.—This fund was established by a bequest from Louisa J. Spencer. The income is used to aid in defraying the expenses of students who meet certain conditions established by the terms of the bequest.

Admiral Powell Endowment.—The Admiral Powell Endowment was made by Admiral Levin M. Powell, U. S. Navy. The income from this endowment is for the "free education of such young men as may desire to take advantage of the said endowment by way of their preparation for entrance into the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, or such as may fit them to become mates or masters in the Merchant Marine Service of the United States," and of "such apprentices as, having filled their time in the great steam manufactory establishments of the country, may apply for appointment from civil life in the Steam Engineer Department of the United States Navy." The number of scholarships awarded each year will be determined by the income from the endowment. Each scholarship will entitle the beneficiary to free tuition for one year. Such special courses of study are offered to each student as will give him the instruction needed to accomplish the purpose for which he is awarded the scholarship.

These scholarships are especially applicable to those who intend to come up for examinations as warrant officers in the Engineer Department of the Navy, to warrant officers who are preparing for examination for appointment as Ensign, to persons desiring to enter the Navy as Acting Ensigns for engineering duty, or to those who desire to fit themselves for responsible positions in the mercantile marine.

The subjects to be taken by a student will vary according to his preparation and according to the purpose for which he has been awarded the scholarship, but a year's work can be selected from the following topics:

Ministerial Aid.—The University authorizes the remission of a stated amount in tuition fees, to be called Ministerial Aid, which may be given to students, resident in the District of Columbia or its immediate vicinity in the regular courses of Columbian College, preparing for the ministry and not yet ordained. Any student receiving Ministerial Aid may be called upon for clerical or like work to the extent of not more than one hour a week for every twelve dollars of tuition remitted, and of not more than four hours in any one week.

University Aid.—The University authorizes the remission of a stated amount in tuition fees, to be called University Aid, which may be loaned to undergraduate students in regular courses in the Department of Arts and Sciences, whose circumstances warrant pecuniary assistance. Any student receiving University Aid is expected to repay it as soon as possible. In occasional instances he may be enabled, while still a student, to repay it in part or whole through clerical or like service rendered the University.

PRIZES

Staughton and Elton Prizes.—The Staughton Prize, for excellence in the Latin Language and Literature, and the Elton Prize, for excellence in the Greek Language and Literature, founded by the Rev. Romeo Elton, D. D., of Exeter, England, consist of two gold medals, annually awarded to the best scholar in each of these languages.

Ruggles Prizes.—The Ruggles Prizes, for excellence in Mathematics, founded by Professor William Ruggles, LL.D., consist of two gold medals, annually awarded upon examination to the best two scholars in Mathematics.

Davis Prizes.—The Davis Prizes were founded by Hon. Isaac Davis, of Massachusetts, in 1847. The original endowment was five hundred dollars, "proceeds of which will afford three premiums, in cash or gold medals, of the value of five dollars, ten dollars, and of fifteen dollars annually—these premiums or prizes to be distributed annually to such members of the Senior Class as shall have made the greatest progress in elocution since their connection with the College." Only members of the Senior Class are eligible to compete for these prizes.

Daughters of the American Revolution Prize.—This prize, founded by the Daughters of the American Revolution of the District of Columbia, consists of a gold medal, awarded annually to the student in the graduating class who, having maintained a high standing in the several courses in History offered by the University, shall produce the best essay upon an assigned topic of American history.

The Thomas F. Walsh Prize.—This prize, established by Thomas F. Walsh, Esq., of Colorado, and based upon the income of one thousand dollars, consists of a gold medal awarded annually to that student of the graduating class who, having maintained a high standard in the several courses in History, shall produce the best essay upon a designated period of the History of England in its association with the History of Ireland.

E. K. Cutter Prize.—The E. K. Cutter Prize in English was founded by the late Marion Kendall Cutter. The endowment is a fund of one thousand dollars, the income of which is given annually as a prize "for excellence in the study of English." The prize will be awarded to the member of the graduating class whose record in English, combined with general excellence, shows most marked aptitude and attainment in English studies.

Willie E. Fitch Prize.—The Willie E. Fitch Prize, for highest excellence in all branches of Chemistry, founded by James E. Fitch, Esq., in memory of his son, consists of fifty dollars, which is awarded annually for the best examination in Chemistry.

The Gardiner G. Hubbard Memorial Prize.—This is a prize in American History established by Mrs. Gertrude M. Hubbard in memory of her husband, the late Gardiner G. Hubbard. The endowment is a fund of one thousand dollars, the income from which is to be given annually to that member of the graduating class who has during four years maintained a high standing in the several classes in History, and who has produced the best essays upon subjects based upon a study of some assigned period of American history.

Muth Prize.—Geo. F. Muth and Company offer a slide rule to the student who makes the highest record in Mechanical Drawing 1.

Colonial History Prize.—The Society of the Colonial Dames of America, Chapter III, offers annually a gold medal for excellence in American Colonial History. This prize will be awarded by the professor of History for general excellence in this subject as shown by class standing, by special essays, and by such other tests as shall be prescribed.

James Macbride Sterrett, Jr., Prize.—Founded by Professor James Macbride Sterrett, in memory of his son, consists of a gold medal annually awarded to that student taking Course 1 in Physics who obtains the highest average in a special examination on a given subject and in the writing of an essay on an assigned topic.

The Alexander Wilbourn Weddell Prize.—From a fund established by a gift of Mrs. Virginia Chase Weddell, an annual prize of $250 is awarded to a student of the University, who is registered for a degree, for the best essay upon the subject of "the promotion of peace among the nations of the world." The prize essays shall become the property of the University and shall not be printed or published without the written consent of the University. The University reserves the right to withhold the award if no essay attaining the required degree of excellence is submitted.

The Chi Omega Prize in Sociology.—An annual prize of fifteen dollars is offered by the Phi Alpha Chapter of the Chi Omega Fraternity for the best essay on a sociological subject to be announced by the Committee in Charge. Essays must meet the requirements defined by the Committee and be submitted on or before April 1.

Sigma Kappa English Prize.—An annual prize of a set of books to the student passing the best examination in the year's work in English Rhetoric. All members of the classes in English Rhetoric are eligible for this special examination, which will be given during the final examinations.

Phi Mu Prize in Playwriting.—An annual prize is offered by the Phi Mu Fraternity for a one-act play of approved excellence written by a student in the University. The award will be made by the English Department of the University, and the George Washington University Players shall have the opportunity to give the first production of the play.

Sigma Kappa Prize in Chemistry.—A prize of ten dollars is offered annually by Zeta Chapter of Sigma Kappa Fraternity to that student who passes the best examination in Chemistry, 1, 2 and 23.

Genevieve Chatterton McCutchins Prizes.—Two cash prizes of $25.00 and $15.00, based on the income of a memorial fund of one thousand dollars, to be awarded annually for the best and the next best essays on subjects connected with Archaeology or Painting. In their award consideration will be given to students' knowledge of contemporary literature, history, or music, as relating to the progress of fine arts. These prizes are open to both graduates and undergraduates.

Kappa Alpha Prize in Economics.—An annual prize of ten dollars is offered by the Alpha Nu Chapter of Kappa Alpha Fraternity for the best essay on a subject in the field of Economics. The essays will be judged by a committee of three, consisting of the Professor of Economics, a member designated by the Fraternity and a third member designated by the first two. The essays must be submitted by the first of May.

Alchemists Prize.—The Alchemists offer annually a gold medal to the graduating student who has attained the highest average in Chemical subjects, provided that he has completed an amount of Chemistry equal to the minimum required for a degree in Chemistry or Chemical Engineering and that at least three-fourths of this work has been done at George Washington University.

Dietzgen Prize.—The Eugene Dietzgen Co. offers a drop bow pen to the student making the highest record in Machine Drawing.

Dietzgen Prize in Architecture.—The Eugene Dietzgen Company offers a water color set to the freshman making the highest record in Architectural Drawing.

Chemical Society Prize.—A medal is offered annually to that student belonging to the society who presents the best paper during the year.

Sigma Tau Prize.—The Xi Chapter of Sigma Tau offers annually a gold medal to the freshman in the College of Engineering who maintains the highest scholastic standing throughout the year.

Goddard Medal in Commerce.—This prize was founded by Mary W. Goddard, Alice Douglas Goddard and Frederick J. Goddard of Georgetown, D. C., in memory of Morgan Richardson Goddard, and is awarded to the student making the highest average in Commerce. The prize consists of a gold medal and twenty-five dollars in gold.

Goddard Medal in Pharmacy.—This prize was founded by Mary W. Goddard, Alice Douglas Goddard and Frederick J. Goddard of Georgetown, D. C., in memory of James Douglas Goddard, and is awarded to the student making the highest average in Pharmacy.

Goddard Medal in French.—This prize was founded by Mary W. Goddard, Alice Douglas Goddard and Frederick J. Goddard of Georgetown, D. C., in memory of Edward Carrington Goddard, class '31, and is awarded to the student making the highest average in the French language and literature.

Círculo Español Cervantes Medal.—The Spanish Club of the University, El Círculo Español, offers annually a bronze medal for the best essay dealing with a subject chosen from the life or works of Miguel de Cervantes Saavedra. Essays must be submitted on or before April 1, and the prize will be awarded on April 23, the anniversary of the death of Cervantes.

Phi Sigma Prize in Chemistry.—A gold medal is offered annually by Phi Sigma Sorority to that woman student who maintains the highest average standing in Chemistry 1 and 2, exclusive of second semester final examinations.

Kappa Delta Scholarship Prize.—The Kappa Delta Fraternity offers, annually, a silver loving cup to that girl of the Freshman Class, registered for a degree in one of the colleges of the Department of Arts and Sciences, who attains the highest average during her first year of not less than twenty-four semester-hours of work.

DEPARTMENT OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Alpha Delta Pi Prize.—Alpha Pi Chapter of the Alpha Delta Pi Fraternity offers an annual prize of ten dollars to the student doing the best work in third year French.

Engineering Society Prize.—The Engineering Society offers annually a gold medal, bearing the insignia of the Society, to the student presenting before the Society the best speech on a technical subject.

DAVIS PRIZE SPEAKING

The Davis Prize Speaking is held on the second Tuesday after the Easter holidays. The award of these three prizes is determined by a public speaking contest, in which the participants deliver original orations. Senior students wishing to enter the competition should report to Professor Croissant not later than five weeks before the contest, and submit their orations not later than three weeks before the contest. The prizes are awarded by a committee consisting of three members, appointed by the Department of English.

(Graduated in cases when students carry six semester-hours or less.)

Students are registered for the college year unless otherwise stated on the registration paper. All requests for withdrawals or for changes in courses of study must be made in writing to the Registrar, and a student is liable for all charges for the courses for which he has registered unless changes are approved by the Registrar.

All charges are by the scholastic year. Registration, library and other special fees and laboratory deposits are due in full in advance. Tuition and laboratory material fees may be paid in eight monthly installments in advance.

A student is not entitled to attend a class until his registration has been approved by the Registrar and payment has been made at the Treasurer's office. The first payment is due not later than October first, and subsequent monthly payments are due on the first of each following month. In case a student fails to make his monthly payments promptly he may be excluded from classes. Continued delay in making payments will be followed by dismissal of the student from the University.

Students will not be assigned desks in the Chemical Laboratory until they exhibit a receipt for the payment of the laboratory deposit, or present an authorization from the Dean.

Students unable to pay their fees monthly in advance will be required to furnish as security an acceptable personal or corporate bond for $200, for which a charge of $3.00 will be made.

All fees are payable at the office of the Treasurer of the University, 2033 G Street.

COLUMBIAN COLLEGE

ADMISSION

Candidates for admission to the Freshman Class in Columbian College must meet the general admission requirement (p. 25) of fifteen units. A unit represents a year's study in any subject in a secondary school, constituting approximately a quarter of a full year's work. The fifteen units of the entrance requirement must include English, 3 units; Algebra, 1 unit; Plane Geometry, 1 unit; and one of the following languages: Latin, Greek, French, German, or Spanish, 2 units. The remainder of the requirement is elective and may be satisfied in general by any accredited secondary school subjects.

No secondary school work is credited towards a college degree. For admission to advanced standing or as special students, see p. 31.

REQUIREMENTS FOR DEGREES

The undergraduate degree offered by Columbian College is Bachelor of Arts. To be recommended for this degree, the student must satisfy the admission requirements, and must complete at least one hundred and twenty semester-hours of undergraduate courses at least twenty-four semester-hours of which (or eighteen semester-hours in the combined courses), and one year in residence, must be completed in the Department of Arts and Sciences. Residence may be satisfied, in whole or in part, in the Summer School, by periods aggregating not less than twenty-four weeks. A semester-hour of credit is one recitation or lecture a week or one laboratory period a week for one semester. No time limit for the course is prescribed and the degree is given when the total of prescribed and elective studies is completed and the residence requirement satisfied.

Amount of Work.—Fifteen hours a week constitutes a normal year's work. More than eighteen hours may not be taken, except under unusual circumstances, with special permission.

Quality of Work.—Two-thirds of the minimum number of semester hours required for graduation must be passed with a grade of "C" or higher.

"With Distinction."—One grade of special distinction is recognized in awarding the bachelor's degree. It is shown by inserting the words "With Distinction" on the diploma after the name of the degree. It is awarded under the following conditions:

"That the names of all students who have received a mark of at least B (90 per cent) on courses representing at least sixty (60) per cent of all hours taken by them be submitted by the Dean to the Faculty of the Department in which the student shall be studying for a degree;

"That the Faculty, after separate consideration of each individual case, shall, if it see fit, recommend the awarding of the degree 'With Distinction' to students who shall have fulfilled the conditions above specified."

Suggestions.—Information about all studies is given in the alphabetical arrangement of subjects under "Courses of Instruction."

Most courses come three times a week, either on Monday, Wednesday and Friday, or on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Most general culture subjects are given in two sections, one early in the day and one late. Students who have all their time for college work should take the early sections. The late sections are given in the last two periods, at five-ten o'clock or at six o'clock, in order to afford to those employed in Government offices the opportunities of college study. Teachers in the public schools can usually take also the courses announced for four o'clock. When the college work is limited to the last two periods and the evening laboratory periods, the length of the course is generally six years.

FOR THE DEGREE OF BACHELOR OF ARTS

To be recommended for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, the student must complete courses of study amounting to at least one hundred and twenty semester-hours, and satisfy the specifications of a curriculum group.

There are four curriculum groups, each leading to the degree of Bachelor of Arts. Every candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Arts selects one of these groups, and thereafter he is not permitted to change to another group except on condition that he fulfill the requirements of the group to which he changes.

A foreign language that is begun in satisfaction of a curriculum requirement must be continued the following year.

Sophomores are free to elect any first or second section subject for which the work of the Freshman year has prepared them.

COMBINED SIX-YEAR COURSE FOR THE DEGREES OF BACHELOR OF ARTS AND BACHELOR OF LAWS

Professional courses in Law will be credited towards the degree of Bachelor of Arts to the extent of thirty semester-hours. On the completion of ninety semester-hours of work in college, at least eighteen semester-hours of which must be taken in the Department of Arts and Sciences, including all of the required subjects in some one of the curriculum groups, and of the first year of the regular course in the Law School, the student will receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts. This combined course contemplates three years of college study and three years in the Law School. The effect is to shorten the period of study for the two degrees one year.

COMBINED SEVEN-YEAR COURSE FOR THE DEGREES OF BACHELOR OF ARTS AND DOCTOR OF MEDICINE

Professional courses in Medicine will be credited towards the degree of Bachelor of Arts to the extent of thirty semester-hours. On the completion of ninety semester-hours of credit in college, at least eighteen semester-hours of which must be taken in the Department of Arts and Sciences, including all of the required subjects in some one of the curriculum groups, preferably Group IV, and on the completion of the first year of the regular course in the Medical School, the student will receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts. This combined course contemplates three years of college study and four years in the Medical School. The effect is to shorten the period of study for the two degrees one year.

The Council on Medical Education of the American Association states: "Of the 60 semester-hours required as the measurement of 2 years' work, at least 18, including the 6 semester-hours in English, should be in subjects other than the physical, chemical, or biologic science."

PUBLIC SERVICE COURSES

These courses are designed to impart general culture and a broad grasp of public questions, and thus to provide a training that will prove of value in commercial life, the practice of law, or public service. The work prescribed is broader than the requirements for entrance into the Consular and Diplomatic Service and the Field Service of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, so that the student who completes with credit the appropriate courses has a training that will fit him to rise to the higher positions in the service to which he may be appointed.

Regular students who are preparing for the Government Service should register for the General Curriculum Group or for the Commerce Group (Domestic or Foreign) of the curriculum requirements for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, and should elect, also, the subjects named in Section 2 of the "Regulations Governing Examinations Promulgated by the Board of Examiners, December 13, 1906" for the field service of the Department of State, or the subjects named in Section 4 of "Qualification Standards for Field Service" from "Appointments to Positions at Home and Abroad in the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce," published in 1922.

REGULATIONS GOVERNING EXAMINATIONS PROMULGATED BY THE BOARD OF EXAMINERS, DECEMBER 13, 1906.*

Section 2 reads as follows: The examinations will consist of an oral and a written one, the two counting equally. The object of the oral examination will be to determine the candidate's business ability, alertness, general contemporary information, and natural fitness for the service, including moral, mental, and physical qualifications, character, address, general education and good command of English. In this part of the examination the applications previously filed will be given due weight by the Board of Examiners, especially as evidence of the applicant's business experience and ability. The written examination will include those subjects mentioned in the Executive order, to-wit, at least one modern language other than English—French, German, or Spanish;* the natural, industrial, and commercial resources and the commerce of the United States, especially with reference to possibilities of increasing and extending the foreign trade of the United States; political economy, and the elements of international, commercial, and maritime law. It will likewise include American history, government, and institutions; political and commercial geography; arithmetic (as used in commercial statistics, tariff calculations, exchange, accounts, etc.); the modern history, since 1850, of Europe, Latin America, and the Far East, with particular attention to political, commercial, and economic tendencies. In the written examination, composition, grammar, punctuation, spelling, and writing will be given attention.

Students who seek a designation for consular and diplomatic examination should apply to the Department of State for full information. Consular service examinations are held in Washington only.

* As amended by Board of Examiners, February 18, 1911.

"QUALIFICATION STANDARDS FOR FIELD SERVICE," FROM "APPOINTMENTS TO POSITIONS AT HOME AND ABROAD IN THE BUREAU OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC COMMERCE, 1922."

Section 4 reads, in part, as follows:

..... some of the requirements may be enumerated as follows: .....

(f) Knowledge of the fundamental principles as well as the practical routine and the chief problems of international trade.

(g) General knowledge of the history, institutions, and present economic conditions of the country in which the assignment is made.

(h) Thorough understanding of the principles of political economy and their application to domestic and foreign commerce.

(i) A broad knowledge of the resources of the United States and familiarity with the industrial development of the country in its relation to the export trade.

(j) Some knowledge of international law, diplomatic procedure, and the methods and regulations of Government departments and bureaus is desirable.

COURSES FOR A DEGREE

Seven courses are offered:

- I. CIVIL ENGINEERING.
- II. ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING.
- III. MECHANICAL ENGINEERING.
- IV. CHEMICAL ENGINEERING.
- V. CHEMISTRY.
- VI. ARCHITECTURE.
- VII. PHYSICS.
- VIII. ADMINISTRATIVE ENGINEERING.

These courses occupy four years each, and lead to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering, in Electrical Engineering, in Mechanical Engineering, in Chemical Engineering, in Chemistry, in Architecture, in Physics, and in Administrative Engineering, respectively. Graduate courses of one year under the Faculty of Graduate Studies of the George Washington University are open to those who receive the appropriate engineering degrees, and lead to the degree of Master of Science in Engineering.

PART-TIME STUDENTS

The class hours are so arranged that persons who can give only part time to college work may complete a full engineering course and obtain a degree. Such students usually take six years to complete the course. Classes in all the general studies of the engineering courses and in many of the technical subjects are regularly scheduled in the two class periods from five-ten o'clock to six-fifty; and other technical courses are given in alternate years in these periods. The drawing rooms and laboratories are open from nine o'clock in the morning until half past ten at night.

To be recommended for a degree in the College of Engineering students must satisfy all entrance requirements and must complete at least 140 semester-hours of undergraduate work of which 24 semester-hours or more must be completed at George Washington University. A semester-hour of credit is one recitation or lecture a week or one laboratory period a week for one semester.

The normal schedule for students in the College of Engineering is 17 or 18 periods per week. Only in exceptional circumstances will students be permitted to take more than this amount of work.

Two-thirds of the minimum number of semester-hours required for graduation must be passed with a grade of "C" or over.

"Graduation with Distinction." One grade of special distinction is recognized in awarding the bachelor's degree. It is shown by inserting the words "With Distinction" on the diploma after the name of the degree. It is awarded under the following conditions:

"That the names of all students who have received a mark of at least B (90) per cent, on courses representing at least sixty (60) per cent of all hours taken by them be submitted by the Dean to the Faculty of the College in which the student shall be studying for a degree;

"That the Faculty, after separate consideration of each individual case, shall, if it sees fit, recommend the awarding of the degree 'With Distinction' to students who shall have fulfilled the conditions above specified."

ATTENDANCE AND SCHOLARSHIP

Regular attendance at all classes is required of all students. Repeated absences in any course will be reported to the Registrar who will notify the student. Unless satisfactory explanation of absences is given, the student will be dropped from the course in which the absences occur.

For regulations in regard to scholarship requirements see page 24.

REQUIREMENTS FOR DEGREES

The arrangement of the topics in each of the regular courses for degree is shown below. The numbers following the names of subjects refer to the courses as given in the list of Department Subjects on page 63, to which reference should be made for more complete description.

DEPARTMENT OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

SPECIAL STUDENTS

All the courses of instruction are open to students of suitable age and attainments who wish, without reference to any degree, to pursue special studies. Candidates must show that they are familiar with the subjects preliminary to the studies which they wish to pursue.

FEES

The annual tuition fee for a student taking courses aggregating fifteen or more hours a week throughout the year is one hundred and eighty dollars. Part-time students pay in accordance with the amount of work taken, the fee being six dollars for each semester-hour credit. For courses in the laboratories there are additional laboratory fees. Full statements in regard to the fees are given on page 36.

TEACHERS COLLEGE

Teachers College provides a four years' college course, the first two years of which are devoted to a foundation of general culture courses, and the last two to professional courses and to specialization in the subjects which the student expects to teach. The schedule of courses is arranged so as to meet the convenience of both full-time and part-time students. By attending afternoon and Saturday classes, teachers in the schools of Washington and vicinity may complete all the requirements for a degree without giving up their positions.

ADMISSION

Candidates for admission to the Freshman Class must meet the general admission requirements (p. 24) of fifteen units. Three of these must be in English, two in Mathematics, and two in one of the following languages: Latin, Greek, French, German, or Spanish. The remainder of the required fifteen units may be satisfied by any accredited secondary subjects.

All persons capable of satisfying the entrance requirements are admitted as regular students. Others may be admitted as special students to certain classes on the presentation of evidence that they are qualified to pursue the work to advantage.

ADVANCED STANDING

Students transferring from normal schools, colleges, and other schools of similar rank will be admitted to such advanced standing as the courses they have pursued warrant. Graduates of normal schools with two-year courses resting upon graduation from an approved four-year high school are granted forty-eight semester-hours of advanced standing. No college credit is given for secondary school work.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

On the completion of courses of study amounting to at least 124 semester-hours, the University confers the degree of Bachelor of Arts and a Bachelor's Diploma in Education. A minimum of 24 semester-hours of work must be completed in residence. Summer School work may be counted on residence, but in no case may the periods of attendance aggregate less than 24 weeks.

Amount of work.—Fifteen hours a week constitute a normal program of work. More than eighteen hours may not be taken except with special permission justified by unusual circumstances.

Quality of work.—Two-thirds of the minimum number of semester-hours required for graduation must be passed with the grade of "C" or higher. The following grades are given: A, 96-100; B, 90-95; C, 80-89; D, 70-79; E, conditioned; F, failure; and I, incomplete.

"With Distinction."—Graduation "With Distinction" is recommended by vote of the Faculty as follows: The names of all students who have received a mark of at least B(90) on courses representing at least sixty (60) per cent of the work completed by them are referred by the Dean to the Faculty who, after consideration of each case, designate those deemed most worthy of being awarded their degrees "With Distinction."

For the subjects marked with an asterisk (*) electives may be substituted to the extent that approved secondary school work has been done in them. The foreign language requirement must fall in one language, while in history it is required that a survey of the world's history be obtained.

Before graduation a student must complete a minimum of 24 semester-hours of work in a major field, in addition to the first required courses, if any, in the same subject. At least 48 semester-hours of work must consist of second and third section courses.

NORMAL SCHOOL GRADUATES

Graduates of approved normal schools may satisfy the requirements in Education by the completion of 12 semester-hours of work, exclusive of the 4 semester-hours of credit granted for successful teaching experience. The requirements in the general subjects may be waived to the extent that corresponding courses have been completed in the normal school. The unsatisfied requirements in these fields should be determined in consultation with the Dean.

EXPERIMENTAL WORK

Teachers College maintains a psychological laboratory for introductory experimental work. The equipment is specially adapted to the investigation of problems of interest to students of education.

The school system of a large city, moreover, offers abundant opportunity for observation and for the study of methods and other practical educational problems.

TEACHERS' APPOINTMENT BUREAU

Teachers College maintains a Teachers' Appointment Bureau for the purpose of aiding students who are studying, or have studied, in the University, to secure positions as teachers. This service is performed gratuitously, in the interest both of students and of superintendents of schools and boards of education wishing to employ teachers.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION PROVIDED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Courses of instruction are divided into three sections.

First section courses may be taken by third or fourth year students only by permission of the Dean and the professor in charge of the subject. They may sometimes be recommended to graduate students, but are not counted toward the higher degrees. The courses in the second section are in general for advanced students, candidates for the bachelor's degree; they serve, however, with additional work, as minors for the higher degrees, provided they have not already counted toward a degree. They may be taken by students in the second year of their course only by special permission of the professor in charge. The courses in the third section are in general for graduate students only, candidates for one or other of the higher degrees. They are open to undergraduates only on the recommendation of the instructors, and no undergraduate student shall take in one year more than one course in the third section. When an announced course has not been applied for by at least three students, candidates for a degree, the instructor may withdraw the course. First section courses are numbered 1 to 19, inclusive; second section courses 20 to 49, inclusive; third section courses, 50 and upwards. The number of hours, unless otherwise specified, indicate hours per week throughout the year. The unit of credit is one hour of recitation or lecture work per week for one semester; laboratory hours in chemistry and drawing count one-third unit each, in other subjects one-half unit each. Laboratories and drawing rooms will be open from 9.15 a. m. till 10. p. m., with competent assistants in charge to direct students. No student is admitted to a course unless he fulfills all the preliminary requirements for the course, or otherwise satisfies the instructor that he is prepared to pursue it. Every student must make his election of courses so as to avoid conflict between the hours appointed for recitations.

Under each course is stated the number of credits for which the course is counted toward satisfying the requirements for the undergraduate degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science, or for the graduate degrees of Master of Arts and Master of Science, or for the graduate degree in engineering.

APPLIED MATHEMATICS

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. Analytical and Applied Mechanics.—(1) Statics: including composition, resolution and equilibrium of forces; center of gravity; moment of inertia. (2) Kinematics and Kinetics: including rectilinear, curvilinear and rotary motion; dynamics of machinery; work and energy; friction; impact. Four hours, first half-year. Four semester-hour credits. Prerequisites: Math. 18 or 19. Physics 1 or 3. Professor MILLER.

21. Hydraulics.—The theoretical principles of hydraulics: including hydrostatics, flow through orifices, over weirs, through pipes and in open channels, and the dynamic pressure of water. Two hours. Four semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Math. 18 or 19. Professor LAPHAM.

22. Mechanics of Materials and Theory of Elasticity.—Elastic and ultimate strength and deformation; simple, cantilever and continuous beams: shear, riveted joints, torsion, columns, resilience, combined stress, curved beams and hooks; theories of elastic limit and failure. Four hours, second half-year. Prerequisite: Ap. Math. 20. Professor MILLER.

23. Statics and Mechanics of Materials.—Short course intended primarily for Architects. Composition, resolution and equilibrium of forces; center of gravity; moment of inertia; beams and columns. Two hours. Four semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Math. 15. *(Not given 1924-25.)

ARCHAEOLOGY AND HISTORY OF ART

Second Section. For Graduates and Undergraduates.

20. History of Art.—An introductory course in the history of architecture, sculpture and painting, illustrated by photographs, lantern slides and casts. 1923-24, Prehistoric, Classical and Mediaeval Art; 1924-25, Renaissance and Modern Art. Section A: Wed. and Fri., 4 p. m. Section B: Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor CARROLL.

21. History and Appreciation of Painting.—Illustrated lectures on the schools of painting from the Renaissance down to the American school. Supplemented by courses of reading and visits to galleries in Washington and neighboring cities. Tues. and Thurs., 5.10 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. (Not given 1924-25.) DR. BRIGHAM.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Pro-Seminary of Art and Archaeology.—Prehistoric Art and Archaeology. Mon., 4.30-6.10 p. m. One hour research in addition in National Museum. Six semester-hour credits. Professor CARROLL.

51. American Archaeology.—In conjunction with the School of American Archaeology in Santa Fé. Six semester-hour credits. Professor CARROLL.

52. The American School of Painting.—The development of the art impulse in America, from the early portrait period through the landscape artists, the mural and portrait painters, to the present. Illustrated lectures, gallery visits and outside reading. Tues. and Thurs., 4 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. (Not given 1924-25.) DR. BRIGHAM.

Use is made of the illustrative material in the National Museum, the Library of Congress and the Corcoran Gallery of Art. Students are invited to the open meetings of the Art and Archaeology League, and the Washington Society of the Archaeological Institute of America.

ARCHITECTURE

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. Mechanical Drawing.—Correct use of drafting instruments; mechanical and freehand lettering, and pen and pencil drawing as applied to architectural subjects. One semester-hour credit. First semester. Professor CRANDALL and Mr. ALBERT.

2. Freehand Drawing.—Drawing from casts. Four semester-hour credits. Professor BIBB.

3. Elements of Architecture.—Study of architectural elements including the Five Orders. Two semester-hour credits. First semester. Professor CRANDALL and Mr. ALBERT.

4. Shades and Shadows.—Principles of descriptive geometry methods of casting the conventional shades and shadows used in architectural design. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Mechanical Drawing 8. Second semester. Professor CRANDALL.

5. Elementary Design.—Problems in elementary design and rendering involving the use of the elements of Architecture. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 3 and 4 or may be taken concurrently with Architecture 4. Criticisms by Professor CRANDALL and Mr. ALBERT.

6. Antique.—Charcoal drawing from casts of Antique sculpture. Four semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 2. Professor BIBB.

7. Architectural Design.—Problems in elementary architectural design of the small ensemble and in the design of architectural motives. Four semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 5. Criticisms by Professor CRANDALL and Mr. ALBERT.

8. History of Architecture.—The development of the art in ancient Egypt, in Greece and Rome and through the Mediaeval period. Tues., Thurs. at 5:10. Four semester-hour credits. Professor BIBB.

9. Architectural Design.—Continuation of Architecture 7. Four semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 7. Criticisms by Professor CRANDALL and Mr. ALBERT.

10. Principles of Composition.—Elements of composition of architectural design. Discussion of typical motives of Buildings and expression by mass, proportion and line. One semester-hour credit. Second semester. Professor CRANDALL.

11. Principles of Planning.—Elemental principles of plan composition. Analysis, design and indication of plans and their relation to the structure. One semester-hour credit. Prerequisites: Architecture 5 and 10. First semester. Professor CRANDALL.

12. Perspective and Stereotomy.—Theory and application of mechanical perspective and practical problems in stone jointing. One semester-hour credit. Prerequisite: Mechanical Drawing 8. Second semester. Professor CRANDALL and Mr. ALBERT.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. History of Architecture.—A study of the Architecture of the Renaissance in its relation to Ancient and Modern Architecture. Tues. and Thurs. at 6 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 8. Professor BIBB.

21. Building Construction.—A study of the artistic and practical value of the various materials used in building construction including standard indication and details of construction. Two semester hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 5. First semester. Mr. JUSTEMENT.
22. Sanitation.—History of sanitation; pollution of water sources; modern plumbing practice; methods of sewage disposal; septic tanks, sewage disposal fields, etc. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 39. First semester. Professor HARRIS.
24. Pen and Ink.—A study of the renderings of the best pen and ink draftsmen, with practice in the use of the pen for architectural rendering. One semester-hour credit. Prerequisite: Architecture 6. Professor CRANDALL.
25. Architectural Design.—Problems in architectural composition, archaeology problems and measured drawings. Six semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 9. Criticisms by Professor CRANDALL and Mr. ALBERT.
26. Architectural Design.—Problems in architectural composition and the planning of important buildings. Six semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 25. Criticisms by Professor CRANDALL and Mr. ALBERT.
27. Architectural Design.—Problems in architectural composition and the planning of important buildings and groups of buildings. Eight semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 26. Criticism by Professor CRANDALL.
28. History of Sculpture and Painting.—An advanced course offering a comparative study of the development of art as the expression of civilization; an outline of the lives of great artists and a critical analysis of their achievements. Tues. and Thurs. at 4.00 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor BIBB.
29. Modern Architecture.—Nineteenth century Architecture in the principle European countries and Colonial and more recent work in the United States. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 20. Professor BIBB.
30. Life Class.—Drawing from the nude model and exercises in composition. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisites: Architecture 6. Professor BIBB.
33. Water Color.—Drawing in water color from still life, and outdoor sketching. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 6. Professor BIBB.
34. Life Class.—Drawing from the nude model in various mediums, and exercises in composition. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 30. Professor BIBB.
35. Modeling.—Modeling in clay from casts of architectural ornament and fragments from antique sculpture. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 30. Professor BIBB. (Not given in 1924-25.)
39. Building Construction.—Continuation of Architecture 21. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 21. Mr. JUSTEMENT.
41. Heating and Ventilating.—Elementary principles of heating and ventilating; details of installation of hot air, hot water, and steam heating plants. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 39. Second semester. Professor HARRIS.

42. Office Practice.—Exercises in the drafting room to illustrate the principles which govern the preparation of working drawings, details and specifications. Plans of executed work will be examined and discussed, and visits made to buildings under construction. Three semester-hour credits. Prerequisites: Architecture 39 and one semester of C. E. 22. Mr. JUSTEMENT.

43. Specifications.—The content, form and English used in the best specifications and a study of standard specifications for various types of design and construction. (For Engineering students.) Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: First semester of C. E. 22 or M. E. 20. First semester. Professor HARRIS.

44. Professional Relations.—The personal, ethical, business and legal relations of the architect with clients, builders, craftsmen, engineers, etc., with whom he has to work in the practice of his profession. References will be made to legal handbooks upon the laws governing Architecture and building and to various handbooks that are issued by the American Institute of Architects. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Economics I. Professor HARRIS.

45. Architectural Humanities.—Lectures by speakers of distinction in different fields not strictly architectural, but so related to architecture as to be of value to students about to assume their professional responsibilities. Written reports will be required on all lectures announced on the bulletin board as a part of this course. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisites: Architecture 26 and 48.

46. Architectural Design.—A continuation of Architecture 27 with at least two months devoted to a thesis for the degree. The thesis will be an important final problem. Ten semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Architecture 27. Professor CRANDALL.

47. Office Practice.—An analysis of the methods followed in Architects' Offices in the preparation of plans and specifications. Must be taken concurrently with Architecture 42. One semester-hour credit. Prerequisites: Architecture 39 and first semester of C. E. 22. Mr. JUSTEMENT.

ASTRONOMY

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. Popular Astronomy.—A course in elementary descriptive astronomy, designed to give facts of general interest without the use of higher mathematics. Recitations, lectures and papers on special topics assigned to each student. Tues. and Thurs., 11.15 a. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor ERWIN.

ASTRO-PHYSICS

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

54. A lecture course on the astro-physical instruments employed in modern research. Six semester-hour credits. Mr. FOWLE.

55. Some applications of Astrophysics, Geophysics, Chemical Physics and Colloidal Physics to Meteorology. Six semester-hour credits. Mr. FOWLE.

56. Some interrelations between Astrophysics, Geophysics, Atomic Physics and Colloidal Physics. Six semester-hour credits. Mr. FOWLE.

BACTERIOLOGY AND CLINICAL MICROSCOPYSecond Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.*

20. Bacteriology.—General bacteriology; bacteriological technic; preparation of culture media; methods of sterilization and disinfection; routine study of about ten non-pathogenic bacteria; cultural, microscopical and serological study of about forty pathogenic organisms. Students are also taught the preparation of vaccines, agglutinating, hemolytic and other immune sera, commonly employed in diagnosis, including the Wassermann Reaction. Moulds, yeast, spoilage of food and contamination of water are also considered, together with methods for qualitative and quantitative estimation. This course consists of 48 lectures and quizzes, and 96 hours in the laboratory. Special tuition fee, $60.00.

22. Clinical Microscopy.—Technic for counting red and white blood cells, various methods of hemoglobin estimation, differential counting of white blood cells; study and recognition of the various blood diseases, including the anemias malarial parasites and other blood parasites. Microscopic study of the sediments of normal and pathologic urines, stomach contents, feces, including a detailed study of animal parasites and their eggs; microscopical examination of sputum, spinal fluid, exudates, etc. The significance and value of these findings as applied to pathology and diagnosis are considered. This course consists of 16 lectures and quizzes and 32 hours in the laboratory. Special tuition fee, $25.00.

BOTANYFirst Section. For Undergraduates.*

Courses 1 and 2, in General Botany aim to present in orderly fashion such a knowledge of the vegetable kingdom as everyone needs to understand plants, their mode of life and their bearing on human affairs. Text: Sinnott. Botany, Principles and Problems.

1. The Living Plant.—A study of the structure and function of the flowering plant as a working mechanism. Section A: Mon. and Wed., 9.15 a. m. Laboratory, Fri., 9.15–11.15 a. m. Section B: Mon. and Wed., 10.15 a. m. Laboratory, Sat., 10.15–12.15 a. m. Section C: Tues. and Thurs., 5.10 p. m. Laboratory, Sat., 5.10–6.50 p. m. Three semester-hour credits. First half-year. Professor GRIGGS, Mr. ———.

2. The Plant Kingdom.—A rapid survey of the principal groups of plants followed by practice in determining the common native plants. Prerequisite: one semester's work in college biology. Section A: Mon. and Wed., 9.15 a. m. Laboratory, Fri., 9.15–11.15 a. m. Section B: Mon. and Wed., 10.15 a. m. Laboratory, Sat., 10.15–12.15 a. m. Section C: Tues. and Thurs., 5.10 p. m. Laboratory, Sat., 5.10–6.50 p. m. Second half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Professor GRIGGS, Mr. ———.

4. Field Botany.—First-hand study of the local flora, designed to familiarize the student with the native plants and with methods of field study, including the identification of plants. An excursion Saturday afternoon is followed by a laboratory period Monday, 2.00-4.00 p. m. Second half-year. Two semester-hour credits. Professor GRIGGS.

Second Section. For Graduates and Advanced Undergraduates.

20. Flowering Plants.—A survey of selected groups of angiosperms chosen to give the student an understanding of the evolution and natural relationships of the class together with practice in identifying unknown plants. Prerequisite: Botany I and 2. Lecture, Wed., 6 p. m. Laboratory, Mon. and Fri., 5.10-6.50 p. m. The year. Six semester-hour credits. Professor GRIGGS.

21. Evolution.—Assigned readings, lectures and discussion of evolution, and other fundamental problems of biology. Text, Newman, Readings in Evolution, Genetics and Eugenics. Prerequisite: One year's work in college, Botany, Geology, or Zoology. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 11.15 a. m. Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Professor GRIGGS.

22. Genetics and Eugenics.—Continuation of course 21 but may be taken independently. Three semester-hour credits. Professor GRIGGS.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Research.—Open to qualified workers in special fields. Hours and credits to be arranged. Professor GRIGGS.

51. Seminar.—Discussion of problems of broad botanical interest; Tues. and Thurs., 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor GRIGGS.

CHEMISTRY

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. General Chemistry.—A series of illustrated lectures, accompanied by exercises and tests on theoretical, inorganic, organic and technical chemistry. Section A: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 11.15 a. m. Section B: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL.

2. Laboratory Practice.—A laboratory course for the study of the principles of chemistry and the method of conducting chemical experiment. Two three-hour periods. Tues. and Thurs., 1.15 p. m. or at 7 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL, Professor SWETT, Mr. HAMILTON and Assistants.

3. Preparation and Study of the Properties of Chemical Substances.—A laboratory course. Two three-hour periods. Tues. and Thurs., 1.15 p. m. or at 7 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL, Professor SWETT, Assistant Professor PHILLIPS, Mr. HAMILTON.

7. Qualitative Analysis.—A laboratory course for the study of the principles of chemistry and an intensive course in qualitative analysis, intended primarily for students in engineering. Two three-hour periods. Tues. and Thurs., 1 p. m. or 7 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL, Professor SWETT, Assistant Professor PHILLIPS, Mr. VALAER.

8. Elementary Organic Chemistry.—A lecture and laboratory course including both the aliphatic and aromatic series of compounds. Two lectures and three hours laboratory work per week. Section A: Tues. and Thurs., 1 p. m. Section B: Mon. and Wed., 7 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL.

9. Quantitative Analysis.—A brief laboratory course designed to acquaint the student with the principles of both gravimetric and volumetric methods of analysis. Two three-hour periods. Mon. and Wed., 1 p. m. or 7 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL, Professor SWETT, Assistant Professor PHILLIPS.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. Qualitative Analysis.—A laboratory course in the study of properties and reactions of chemical substances, and of the means employed for their detection and identification. Three three-hour periods. Six semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL, Professor SWETT, Assistant Professor PHILLIPS, Mr. VALAER.

21. Quantitative Analysis.—A laboratory course in the quantitative estimation of the constituents of a specially selected and typical set of chemical substances which are particularly adapted for teaching the student the aims and methods of quantitative chemical analysis and for imparting facility in manipulation. Three four-hour periods. Mon., Wed. and Fri. Eight semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL, Professor SWETT, Assistant Professor PHILLIPS.

23. Organic Chemistry.—Advanced course. Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SWETT.

24. Organic Chemistry.—Advanced course. A continuation of Course 23. Thurs. and Sat., 6.00 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SWETT.

25. Chemistry of the Carbon Compounds.—A laboratory course in the preparation and study of the properties of a characteristic series of organic compounds. Four three-hour periods. Eight semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL, Professor SWETT, Mr. LEPPER.

26. Physical Chemistry.—A lecture course designed to be an introduction to physical chemistry, and to treat of the modern theories of chemistry from that standpoint. Special attention is given to the ionic theory, electro-chemistry, colloids, mass action, and the phase rule. Mon. and Wed., 6.00 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL.

27. Stereo-Chemistry.—This course deals with the arrangement of atoms in space from a theoretical standpoint, while the student is taught how to form models by which to illustrate their arrangements. Two hours. Mon., 7. p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor HILL.

28. Biochemistry.—A lecture and laboratory course. The physico-chemical processes concerned in the functional activity of the cell and quantitative principles essential for biochemical analysis are thoroughly considered, followed by physiological chemistry including a study of carbohydrates, fats, proteins, body tissues, secretions, and the physiological chemical processes, such as the digestion, absorption and assimilation of food, general enzyme action, metabolism, and the fundamental principles of nutrition. Two lectures and two three-hour laboratory periods. Eight semester-hour credits. Professor ROZ.

29. Industrial Chemistry.—This course deals with the manufacture of substances styled "chemicals" and with the application of chemistry to the arts and industries. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 7.00 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Mr. BRATTAIN.

30. Physical Chemistry.—A laboratory course, designed to illustrate and supplement Chemistry 26; and especially adapted to the needs of those students who have taken or are taking that course. Two three-hour periods. Mon. and Thurs., 7.00 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor HILL.

31. Chemical Microscopy.—A laboratory course in the use of the microscope and microscopical methods in chemical work. Two three-hour periods. Mon. and Thurs., at 7.00 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor HILL.

NOTE.—The number of students will be limited and preference will be given in the order of registration.

32. Dyestuffs.—A lecture and laboratory course for the study of the basic principles involved in the production of crudes, intermediates and finished dyes; methods of manufacture and purification; identification and separation in bulk, on textiles and from foods; theories of color; photographic developers and color filters; applications of dyestuffs commercially; market conditions and patent literature; research. Twelve hours per week; eight semester-hour credits. Miss DOYLE.

33. Explosive Substances.—A course in the fundamental principles of explosives and explosions, accompanied by laboratory experiments and field demonstrations. Assistant Professor PHILLIPS in consultation with Dr. CHARLES E. MUNROE.

34. Chemical Engineering.—A lecture course on the methods employed in the industrial application of chemical and engineering principles, including materials used in the construction of apparatus needed in large-scale chemical work, the principal types of apparatus and machines, practice in the solution of problems connected with commercial chemical processes, and the design of chemical equipment. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 6.00 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Mr. BRATTAIN.

35. Microchemical Analysis.—A course covering qualitative analysis of minute quantities of an unknown, special attention being given to crystal form as seen under the microscope. One three-hour period. Thurs., 7.00 p. m. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor HILL.

36. Applied Microscopy.—The use of the microscope and its accessories in the microscopy of (a) technical products, or (b) vegetable foods, as the student may elect. One three-hour period. Thurs., 7.00 p. m. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor HILL.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

51. Analytical Methods.—Six semester-hour credits. Additional credits may be earned by special arrangement. Professor McNEIL.

57. Research in Physical Chemistry.—Six semester-hour credits. Additional credits may be earned by special arrangement. Professor McNEIL.

58. Research. Special Problems.—Facilities for research are available in a number of lines, especially dyestuffs and explosive substances. For particulars consult Professor McNEIL.

60. Thermodynamics.—An advanced lecture course treating the subject from the standpoint of the chemist and including essentially the matter covered in Lewis and Randall's text. A course in physical chemistry and a working knowledge of calculus are prerequisites. Four (or six) semester-hour credits. Will be given in 1924-25 if enrollment is sufficient. Dr. A. G. LOOMIS.

61. Electrochemistry.—An advanced lecture course on the theory and applications of electrochemistry, dealing with such phases as electrochemical measurements, electrolytic preparation of materials, electro-deposition of metals, primary and secondary batteries, and electrolysis at high temperatures. An elementary knowledge of calculus and thermodynamics is desirable. Four semester-hour credits. Will be given in 1924-25 if enrollment is sufficient. Dr. H. D. HOLLER.

Students in Chemistry are invited to attend the meetings of the Chemical Society of Washington, which are held on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month, from October to May, in the Assembly Hall of the Cosmos Club, at 8 p. m., and also the meetings of the Chemical Society of the George Washington University, which is a most active and efficient student organization.

CIVIL ENGINEERING

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. Surveying (Plane and Higher) and Geodetic (Practical) Astronomy.—Lectures, recitations, field work, computations and drafting. Lectures and recitations include the theory, adjustment and use of surveying instruments; methods of making land, topographic, hydrographic and geodetic surveys, and determining time, latitude, longitude and azimuth.

Field work includes adjusting the various surveying instruments, determining areas, leveling, traverses, stadia distances, topography, triangulation, time, latitude, longitude and azimuth. Computation and drafting include the reduction of all field work and plotting results. Breed and Hosmer's Surveying, two vols. Three recitations per week and three hours per week for field and drafting work throughout the year. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 1.45 p. m. Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6.00 p. m. Eight semester-hour credits. Prerequisites: Mathematics 9 or 12. Professor FRENCH.

2. Railroad Engineering.—This course includes recitations, field and drawing-room work. The recitations cover railroad curves and earth-work, methods of location and construction of railway lines. The field work consists of a preliminary and location survey; the laying out of circular and transition curves, etc. The computations and mapping consist of making an estimate of quantities and cost of a piece of line, making maps, profiles and a mass diagram. Two lecture-recitations and one three-hour field or drawing period a week throughout the year. Six semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: C. E. 1. Professor FRENCH.

3. Highways and Pavements.—This course comprises the study of highway economics, location, construction and maintenance; the various methods of surfacing; the materials used and the standard tests of these materials. A study is also made of the methods of street paving, street grades, etc. Two hours a week. Four semester-hour credits. Should be taken concurrently with C. E. 1 and 4. Professor FRENCH.

4. Materials of Construction.—A course in the study of the chemical and physical properties of: stone, brick, lime, wood, iron, steel and a few of the minor alloys. Stress is laid on the manufacture and the properties of the materials that affect their use in engineering construction. The class-room work is supplemented by laboratory tests and by inspection trips to testing laboratories and manufacturing plants. Two hours a week. Four semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Chemistry 1. Professor LAPHAM.

5. Elementary Surveying.—A course for Mechanical and Electrical Engineering students, covering the use of the compass, transit, and level. Lectures and field exercises. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Mathematics 9 or 12. Professor FRENCH.

9. City Planning.—Lectures and recitations covering the principles governing the planning of a modern city. It includes transportation systems, street layout, park and recreation facilities, public buildings, zoning for various purposes, etc. Two hours per week during the first semester. Two semester-hours credit. Professor FRENCH.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

21. Hydraulic Engineering.—A study of stream flow; dams; hydraulic motors, and water power plants. Two recitations per week for one semester. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Applied Mathematics 21. Professor LAPHAM.

22. Structures.—A course covering the determination of stresses in simple framed structures and their deflections by graphical and analytical methods. The first term is principally devoted to graphic statics; the second to bridge trusses under uniform and wheel loads. Two lectures and one design period. Six semester-hour credits. (Mechanical Engineering and Architectural students take only the first term. Three semester-hour credits.) Prerequisites: Physics 1 and Mathematics 18 or 19, and should be taken concurrently with Applied Mathematics 20. Professor MILLER.

23. Structures.—A course covering the determination of stresses in the more complicated framed structures such as arches, drawbridges, cantilever bridges and suspension bridges; also the design of timber and steel roof trusses and buildings; plate girder, riveted and pin connected bridges; bridge piers and abutments. Three lectures and two design periods. Ten semester-hour credits. Prerequisites: C. E. 22 and Applied Mathematics 20 and 22. Professor HITCHCOCK.

24. Sanitary Engineering.—Water supply; the collection, storage and distribution of water; the design and construction of dams, reservoirs and storage tanks; construction and maintenance of water distributing systems; pumping machinery; quality of water; interpretation of water analyses; methods of water purification; the relation of water supply to infectious diseases; the design of a water supply system for a small town.

Sewerage; sewerage and drainage systems; methods of disposal of sewage and trade wastes; treatment of sewage; garbage and refuse disposal; the design of a sewer system for a small town. Three lectures and one design period. Eight semester-hour credits. Prerequisites: Chemistry I and Applied Mathematics 21. Professor LAPHAM.

27. Reinforced Concrete Construction.—The theory and design of reinforced concrete slabs, beams, columns, foundations and walls; estimating reinforced concrete work; structures of plain concrete and masonry; tests of cement and concrete. Two recitations and one design period. Six semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Applied Mathematics 22. Professor LAPHAM.

28. Reinforced Concrete.—Short course for Architecture students. Includes two recitation periods of C. E. 27 during first semester. Two semester-hour credits. Professor LAPHAM.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Reinforced Concrete Structures.—Theory and design; buildings, bridges retaining walls, dams, tanks, etc. One lecture and two design periods. Six semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: C. E. 27.

51. Advanced Steel Structures.—Theory and design of suspension, cantilever, movable and arch bridges. One lecture and two design periods. Six semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: C. E. 23.

53. Railroad Engineering.—An advanced course in railroad location, construction and maintenance of way. It must be preceded by Civil Engineering Course 2. Six semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: C. E. 2.

54. Water and Sewage Purifications.—An advanced course dealing with the practical application of the principles and methods involved in the purification of water supplies and in the disposal and treatment of sewage. One lecture and two design periods. Six semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: C. E. 24.

CLASSICAL LANGUAGES AND LITERATURES

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

A. Elementary Course.—For students who have not taken Greek before matriculating. It aims to cover as much as possible of the entrance requirement in Greek, with the exception of Homer. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 10.15 a. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH. Not given in 1924-25.

B. Homer: Iliad I-IV.—For students who have taken Course A and desire to prepare themselves to enter Course I. Tues. and Thurs., 9.15 a. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

1. Herodotus (selections); Lysias (selected orations); Euripides (Alcestis); Greek prose composition. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 2.45 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

2. Xenophon (Memorabilia); Thucydides (Book VII); Sophocles (Antigone). Mon., Wed. and Fri., 11.15 a. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. Plato (selections, including the Apology and Crito); Aristophanes (Clouds or Frogs). Tues. and Thurs., 1.45 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH. (Not given in 1924-25.)

21. Demosthenes (selected orations); Lucian (selected dialogues); Homer (selections). Tues. and Thurs., 1.45 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

Latin

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

B. Cicero's Orations and Virgil's Aeneid.—For students who have satisfied the admission requirements in elementary Latin but have not done the work specified under the advanced requirements. It will include a thorough study of several of the Orations and of selected parts of the Aeneid, supplemented by private reading and some practice in the writing of Latin. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 11.15 a. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

1. Livy (Book I or XXI); Cicero (De Senectute); Horace (Odes and Epodes); Latin prose composition. Open to students who have satisfied the admission requirements in elementary and advanced Latin, or have satisfactorily completed Course B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 1.45 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

2. Cicero and Pliny (selected Letters); Horace (Satires and Epistles); Martial (selections). Mon., Wed. and Fri., 4.00 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. Tacitus (selections); Terence (Phormio); Plautus (Captivi). Tues. and Thurs., 10.15 a. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

21. Quintilian, Book X, and Horace, Ars Poetica; Catullus, Tibullus and Propertius. Tues. and Thurs., 10.15 a. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH. (Not given in 1924-25.)

22. Advanced Latin Composition and Reading at Sight.—Practice in Latin expression and style. Thurs., 2.45 p. m. Two semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

The work in this section is designed to afford discipline in the methods of philological criticism, with special reference to the interpretation of classical authors, and will include opportunities for original research on the part of competent students. In order to make the work as helpful as possible for those who expect to become teachers, the center of study each year will be one of the authors usually taught in the secondary schools. With the approval of the instructor, properly qualified Seniors may be admitted to these courses. The authors selected are as follows:

50. Virgil, and Roman Epic Poetry.—Two hours. Six semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH. (Not given in 1924-25.)

51. Caesar and the Roman Historians.—Two hours. Six semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH. (Not given in 1924-25.)

52. Cicero, and Roman Oratory.—Two hours. Six semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

Classical Literature

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

21. General Survey of Classical Greek Literature (in English).—This course is designed to give an outline of the development of the different departments of literature in ancient Greece and will include readings, in translation, from the most important authors. Being primarily intended for students who are not taking Greek or Latin, it does not require a knowledge of those languages, and is open to all undergraduates as an elective. Tues. and Thurs., 4 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH.

22. General Survey of Latin Literature (in English).—This course is similar in purpose and method to Course 1, and will alternate with it. The subject of study will be the work of the most important ancient Roman authors. Tues. and Thurs., 4 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SMITH. (Not given in 1924-25.)

COMMERCE

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. Marketing.—This is a fundamental course in the principles, methods and problems of marketing. It is intended as a basic course for students interested in salesmanship, advertising and merchandising. It will include a discussion of the marketing of raw materials and manufactured products considered from both the retail and wholesale points of view. Attention will be given to the place of the chain store and the mail-order house in our marketing organization. Such specific marketing problems as speculation, elimination of the middle man, price control, and the relation of the state to marketing agencies will be considered. The course will be concluded by a study of the co-operative movement as a means of effecting marketing reform. Lectures, assigned readings and discussions. Prerequisite: Economics 1 or 2 or the equivalent. Mon., Wed., Fri., at 5:10. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor BENNER.

24. Industrial and Commercial Geography.—An analysis of the economic aspects of the facts and principles of geography, and a survey of the chief industries of the world and of the principal commodities in world trade. Consideration is given to important markets and sources of raw materials. Prerequisite: General Economics. Section A, Mon., Wed., and Fri., 1:45 p. m. Section B, Mon., Wed., and Fri., 6:00 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor DONALDSON.

25. Foreign Trade.—A general survey course in international commerce; basic economic principles; methods of making shipments; rail and ocean transportation; market development; foreign trade. The second semester will be devoted to the analysis of international trade financing; structure of international credit; rates of exchange; monetary and credit standards; the problem of re-establishing the international basis of credit and exchange. Prerequisite: General Economics. Mon., Wed., and Fri., 5:10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor SUTTON.

30. History of Commerce.—A study of the influence of the processes of commerce and industry upon the history of civilization, and of the development of commercial and industrial institutions from antiquity to the present time; includes consideration of World War changes and post-war problems. Prerequisite: General Economics. (Not given in 1924-25.) Three semester-hour credits.

31. Industrial and Commercial History of the United States.—A history of the economic development of the nation and of its latter-day commercial and industrial problems. Prerequisite: General Economics. (Not given in 1924-25.) Three semester-hour credits.

33. Commercial and Maritime Law.—A study of the principles of the law relating to commercial transactions, especially contracts, sales, bailments, agency, partnership, negotiable instruments, and common carriers, with some study of Admiralty law. Section A, Tues., and Thurs., 11:15 a. m.; Section B, Tues., and Thurs., 6:00 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor ALDEN.

38. Principles of Railway Transportation.—The principles of transportation; the American railway system; railway administration; services; finance; rates; combination; government aid, operation, regulation; railway labor; the question of Government ownership. Prerequisite: General Economics. Mon., Wed., Fri., 2:45 p. m., first half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Professor DONALDSON.

39. Principles of Ocean Transportation.—Nature of ocean transportation; routes, ports and terminals; the carrier; bunkering; cargo; organization; services and rates; mercantile marine policies—government regulation and aid. Prerequisite: General Economics. (Not given in 1924-25.) Three semester-hour credits. Professor DONALDSON.

40. Railway Traffic and Rates.—Railway services; organization and management; theory and practice of rate-making; documents and processes in railway traffic. Prerequisites: General Economics and Principles of Railway Transportation. Mon., Wed., Fri., 2:45 p. m., second half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Professor DONALDSON.

41. Ocean Traffic and Rates.—Types of services; organization and management; chartering; rates and finances; marine insurance; papers and documents. Prerequisites: General Economics and Principles of Ocean Transportation. (Not given in 1924-25.) Three semester-hour credits. Professor DONALDSON.

ing systems of the world with particular reference to the Federal Reserve Banking System in the U. S. and international banking relations. Prerequisite: General Economics. Given in 1925-26. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor SUTTON.

30. Public Finance.—A study of the principles of the fiscal science and their application to the problems presented in the financial administration of national, state and municipal governments. Prerequisite: General Economics. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 11.15 a. m. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor SUTTON.

35. Corporation Finance. A study of the financial structure and problems of modern business corporations; types of securities; variations of risk, income and control in securities; subsidiaries; guaranteed securities; securities for mergers, combinations and consolidations; amortization of debt; syndicate transactions; management of incomes; financing of receiverships; reorganizations; etc. Prerequisite: General Economics. Tues., Thurs., Sat., 9.15 a. m. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor SUTTON.

36. Social Service Case Work.—The field of social service work; methods in case work; the family; broken homes; child welfare; the adolescent delinquents; defectives, immigrants and newcomers, housing conditions; income and expenditure; social resources. Field work will be provided for students not now engaged in social service work. Second Semester. Tues., Thurs., at 5.10. Two semester-hour credits. Miss DINWIDDIE. (1923-24.)

37. Investments.—A consideration of the tests of an investment as applied to real estate mortgage and realty mortgage bonds; government, state and municipal bonds; nature of their security; analysis of statements. The second semester's work will deal in similar fashion with corporation securities and stocks; use of the sources of investment information; classes of investors and their needs; when and how to make and how to care for investments. Prerequisite: General Economics. Given in 1925-26. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor SUTTON.

43. Combinations, Trusts.—A discussion of the conditions which have favored the growth of large business combinations, the nature of their organization, their influence upon prices and productive efficiency, and the regulation and supervision of them. First half-year. Mon. and Fri., 9.15 a. m. Two semester-hour credits. Professor KERN.

44. Labor Problems.—A brief sketch of the labor movement in the United States and of the aims and methods of trade unions, followed by a discussion of such problems as: child labor; dangerous occupations; workingmen's insurance against sickness, old age, accident, and unemployment; strikes and industrial conflicts; conciliation and arbitration; collective bargaining. Second half-year. Mon. and Fri., 9.15 a. m. Two semester-hour credits. Professor KERN.

45. Elements of statistical methods, including definition and isolation of the problem, collection of material, classification and tabulation, diagrams and graphs, types, dispersion, correlation, error, processes of smoothing, during the first semester. A brief study of index numbers, and an application of elementary statistical methods to some field of inquiry, during the second semester. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Doctor PHILLIPS.

46. A study of curve fitting in which equations of the first and higher orders are used. Development of formulas for the solution of higher order equations. Regression values and correlation. Partial correlation, total correlation, and regression equations. Correlation ratios and their parabolic and cubic regressions. The probability curve, its use, probable error and tests of reliability. An application of each topic to some statistical problem. Prerequisite: Economics 45 or its equivalent. Tues. and Thurs., 7.30 p. m. Given in 1925-26. Six semester-hour credits. Doctor PHILLIPS.

47. A preliminary study of the recognized processes of smoothing data for elimination of trend, seasonal effects. Probability distributions and error of sampling. Vital statistics, including enumeration and registration; birth, death, and marriage rates; methods of adjustment, morbidity rates, and the general application of statistical methods to the field of public health. Prerequisite: Economics 45, or its equivalent. Tues. and Thurs., 7.30 p. m. Given in 1924-25. Six semester-hour credits. Doctor PHILLIPS.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

51. Seminar in Sociology.—A research course for the detailed investigation of special sociological problems, suitable for those who are engaged in original investigation or in the preparation of a thesis. Hours to be arranged. Six semester-hour credits. Professor KERN.

EDUCATION

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

3 or 6. Junior High School Geography.—Same as Geology 3, Principles of Geography, and Geology 6, Human Geography, which are especially adapted to the needs of teachers.

10. Americanization.—The teaching of English to foreigners. Two semester-hour credits. (1923-24.) Miss CLARK.

11. The Elements of Education.—An introductory course in the theory, practice, and administration of Education. Three semester-hour credits. (Not given in 1924-25.) Mr. SULLIVAN.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20a. Principles of Teaching.—A comprehensive course in the principles underlying the teaching process in its intellectual, emotional and motor phases. Special attention is given to making teaching concrete and meaningful. First semester. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 9.15 a. m. Three semester-hour credits. Professor RUEDIGER.

20b. Principles of Education.—A comprehensive course in the bases, aims, values and essential content of education as revealed by biological, psychological, sociological and ethical principles. Second semester. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 9.15 a. m. Three semester-hour credits. Professor RUEDIGER.

21a. Principles of Education.—A brief course in the bases, aims, values and essential content of education as revealed by biological, psychological, sociological and ethical principles. First semester. Tues. and Thurs., 4.00 p. m. Two semester-hour credits. Professor RUEDIGER.

21b. Principles of Teaching.—A brief course in the psychological and logical principles underlying the teaching process. Second semester. Tues. and Thurs., 4.00 p. m. Two semester-hour credits. Professor RUEDIGER.

(Courses 20 and 21 should be preceded or accompanied by general psychology. Course 21 is designed especially for teachers in service.)

22. History of Education.—A brief course in the historical development of educational theory and practice. First semester. Mon., Wed. and Fri., at 10.15 a. m. Three semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

24. History of American Education.—A study of the development of American education from colonial times to the present. Second semester. Mon., Wed. and Fri., at 10.15 a. m. Three semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

25. Secondary Education.—First semester: (a) A study of the administrative and pedagogical aspects of the Junior High School. Second semester: (b) The Senior High School. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

27. School Administration.—The public school system: its development; economic and political relations; organization of administration, financial and educational; problems of administration. First semester. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6 p. m. Three semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

28. Supervision of Instruction.—Second semester. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6 p. m. Three semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

29. The Exceptional Child.—The object of this course is to acquaint teachers with a scientific background for the classification and educational treatment of children. A study will be made of the deviates from the normal, such as, gifted, backward, feeble-minded and neurotic children, as well as those who are morally and socially inadequate. This course includes the study of the standard intelligence tests, performance tests and other methods of measuring these individual differences. Opportunity for giving and scoring tests and evaluation of data will be given. First semester. Sat. 9.15–11.15. Two semester-hour credits. Miss LA SALLE.

31. Tests and Measurements.—This course aims to familiarize teachers with the present status and significance of the movement for scientific measurement of educational achievement and the utilization of such data in guiding instruction and study. It will involve consideration of typical standard tests of school subjects, how to give and score them, how to interpret and graph results; how to get improvement as a project and how to improve the usual classroom examination and assigning of grades. Opportunity will be given for practical experience in giving tests and working with the data. Second semester. Sat. 9.15–11.15. Two semester-hour credits. Miss LA SALLE.

32. History of Education.—First semester, ancient and medieval education. Second semester, modern education. Tues. and Thurs., 5.10 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

34. Observation.—Observation of experienced teachers, under guidance, followed by discussion. The course should normally be taken in the junior year. Two semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

35. Practice Teaching.—Teaching under supervision and criticism. The course should normally be taken in the senior year. Two semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

36. American Education.—A study of the American educational system from the standpoint of its historical development. First semester. Sat., 9.15–11.15. Two semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

38. Foreign Education.—A study of the educational systems of Great Britain, continental Europe, and Latin America, with special reference to recent developments. Second semester. Sat., 9.15–11.15. Two semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

45. Statistical Methods.—Same as Economics 45. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., at 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Dr. PHILLIPS.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Seminar in Education.—Topic for 1924–25: Higher education. A study of the development, administration, and curriculum of the American college and university in comparison with higher education in foreign countries. A paper embodying constructive scholarship will be required of each member of the class. Tues. and Thurs., 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor RUEDIGER.

52. Seminar in Vocational Guidance.—Members will cooperate in a major research program and a survey of research studies in special abilities. The research will include aptitude tests, rating scales, and personality studies. It will be based on data from junior high schools and industrial training courses. Limited to ten members approved by professor in charge. Thurs., 7.15–9.15 p. m., and individual consultations. Six semester-hour credits. Dr. O'ROURKE.

53. Research in Educational Psychology.—Advanced students who select educational psychology as major or minor for degree of A. M. or Ph. D. will be given special topics for research in education or psychology. To be preceded or accompanied by Education 52 or equivalent. Individual consultations. Six semester-hour credits. Dr. O'ROURKE.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. Engineering Electricity.—General course in Electrical Engineering for non-electrical students, including a study of magnetism, electro-magnetism, direct currents, direct current machinery, alternating current theory, alternating current machinery, and the more important applications of direct and alternating currents. The entire scope of electrical engineering is covered as completely as time will permit, including inspection of operating power plants. Prerequisites: Physics 1, 2. Two hours. Four semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor AMES.

2. Direct Current Theory; Dynamo Machinery, Alternating Current Theory.—A comprehensive course beginning with magnetism, electro-magnetism, theory of direct currents, direct current instruments and machinery, storage batteries, arc lamps and other applications of direct currents.

During the second semester the theory of simple and complex alternating current circuits and the application of complex numbers and vectors are taken up in preparation for alternating current machinery the following year. Problems involving the theory studied are assigned from Lyon's "Problems in Electrical Engineering." Prerequisites: Physics 1, 2; Mathematics 18; Calculus. Three hours. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor AMES.

4. Electrical Laboratory.—A combined course in measurements and dynamo laboratory paralleling the class-room work in E. E. 1 and 2. Representative experiments are assigned in the testing of various instruments, motors, generators, arc lamps, fuses and circuit breakers. A complete report covering all work done and results obtained with a discussion thereof is required. This will consist of a preliminary report which must be submitted and approved at least one day prior to performance and a final report showing experimental data and calculated results therefrom with discussion. One laboratory period per week throughout the year. Credit given is based on work done under supervision in the laboratory and outside in the working up of results. Four semester-hour credits. Prerequisites: E. E. 1 or E. E. 2 or equivalent. Assistant Professor AMES.

Second Section. For Graduates and Undergraduates.

21. Alternating Current Theory and Machinery.—A continuation of E. E. 2, including a brief review of alternating current theory covered therein and a thorough study of synchronous generators, transformers, synchronous motors, rotary convertors, and various asynchronous machines, including single and polyphase induction motors, series and repulsion motors. Problems involving the theory studied are taken from Lyon's "Problems in Alternating Current Machinery."

An insight into actual engineering practice is obtained from current engineering journals and inspection of power plants. Prerequisites: Physics 1, 2; E. E. 2. Four hours. Eight semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor AMES.

22. Electrical Distribution.—A course covering the more important phases of the distribution of electricity for light and power, such as systems of distribution, voltage regulation, substations, distribution lines and cables, metering and transformer practice; problems and references to current technical literature on the subject. Prerequisites: E. E. 2, concurrently with E. E. 21. Two hours, first half-year. Two semester-hour credits. Dr. MEYER.

23. Elements of Transmission.—A course covering the elements of high tension transmission theory and practice for short and long lines, induction and capacitance, charging current, corona, and methods for calculating voltage and power loss in lines, sags, and mechanical construction. Prerequisites: E. E. 2, E. E. 22 and E. E. 21, or concurrently with the latter. Two hours, second half-year. Two semester-hour credits. Dr. MEYER.

24. Advanced Electrical Laboratory.—A continuation of E. E. 4 with experiments on alternating current circuits and machinery, including watt hour-meters, transformers, synchronance and asynchronous motors generators and motors. The same requirements as to reports. Performance and other work, and credits as followed in E. E. 4 apply. Prerequisites: E. E. 4 or equivalent; E. E. 21 or concurrently therewith. Assistant Professor AMES.

26. Theory and Practice of Hydro-Electric Stations.—A course for Seniors in Electrical Engineering dealing with present-day theory and practice in Hydro-Electric Engineering, including so much of hydraulics as is essentially applied and electrical equipment required for a complete hydro-electric station and system. Familiarity with development as set forth in accepted current electrical periodicals and journals will be required. Two hours second half-year; 2 semester-hour credits. Prerequisites: App. Math 21, E. E. 21 or concurrently therewith. Assistant Professor AMES.

27. Electric Railways.—A course for Seniors in Electrical Engineering covering the theory and practice of modern direct and alternating current railways. Familiarity with development as set forth in accepted current railway journals will be required. Two hours second half-year. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisites: E. E. 21 or concurrently. Assistant Professor AMES.

28. Telephones.—A course for Electrical Engineering Seniors covering briefly the fundamental principles of existing systems and taking up more fully automatic or machine switching systems, both step-by-step and panel type. Inspections of modern exchanges are made. Prerequisites: E. E. 2. Two hours a week. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor AMES.

29. Illumination.—A study of the principles and practices of scientific illumination, exterior and interior. Detailed study is made of various light sources, lamps, shades, reflectors, etc. Two hours first half-year. Two semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: Physics 1 or 3. Assistant Professor AMES.

30. Electrical Design.—A course for Electrical Engineering Seniors covering principles of design with reference to materials of construction, and electrical equipment. Practical exercises are assigned in connection with class-room work. Prerequisite: E. E. 21 or concurrently. Two hours with one three-hour drafting room period, first half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor AMES.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Radio-Electricity.—A mathematical treatment of the fundamental principles with an exposition of their application to present-day practice. Problems based on the methods used and the apparatus employed in the generation of oscillatory currents; the reception of signals; and other features developed in the utilization of this method of transmission will be discussed. Six semester-hour credits, as a Minor; ten semester-hour credits, as a Major. Professor COHEN.

51. Transient Electric Phenomena.—A course introductory to the more advanced problems in electrical engineering practice. Simple transients, distributed line constants, the equations of the transmission line, waves along wires and radiation. The course is based on Steinmetz's "Transient Electric Phenomena and Oscillations." Prerequisites: E. E. 21, 22, 23. Two hours throughout the year. Four semester-hour credits. Dr. MEYER.

ENGLISH

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. English Rhetoric.—A study of the principles of self-expression through language, with practice in composition. Lectures and Quiz sections. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 10.15 a. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor WILBUR, Mr. BROSS, Miss ROSE, Mr. SMITH, Mr. ANDERSON, Mr. MALLORY.

2. English Rhetoric.—Parallel with Course 1. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor WILBUR, Mr. BROSS.

NOTE.—Credit for Course 1 or 2 is requisite for admission to any other course in English except 5 or 6.

5. Survey of English Literature.—Lectures and Quiz sections. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 9.15 a. m. Six semester-hour credits. Associate Professor BOLWELL, Mr. SMITH, Mr. ANDERSON, Mr. MALLORY.

6. Survey of English Literature.—Parallel with Course 5. Lectures and Quiz sections. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Associate Professor BOLWELL, Mr. SMITH, Mr. ANDERSON, Mr. MALLORY.

9. English Composition.—Mon., Wed., Fri. at 6.00 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Mr. SMITH.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

GEOLOGY AND MINERALOGY

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. Mineralogy.—Crystallographic, descriptive, and determinative mineralogy. This course is designed with especial reference to minerals as rock constituents or segregated as ore deposits. It includes, therefore, a discussion of not merely the crystallographic and theoretical, but the practical side of the subjects as well. Whenever possible, it should be considered as introductory to the courses in either systematic or economic geology. Mon. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor BASSLER and Dr. RESSER.

2. General Geology.—Systematic geology; dynamical, structural, and stratigraphical. The course is designed to form a part of a general culture course or a preliminary course for those intending to make a specialty of geology. It includes lectures, recitations, laboratory and field work so far as hours will permit. Paleontology is treated as a branch of geology, having especial reference to stratigraphy and correlation. Textbook: Cleland's Geology. Mon. and Fri., 6.00 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor BASSLER and Dr. RESSER.

3. General Geography.—This course presents the principles of geography by a study of the phenomena of the earth as a whole, the interrelations of these phenomena and their influence upon human affairs. It consists of two parts: first, a study of the general geographic principles; and second, a brief survey of several regions and countries for the application of these principles. It is a general culture lecture course illustrated by charts and lantern slides. No course is prerequisite. Wed., 5.10 p. m. Two semester-hour credits. Dr. RESSER.

6. Human Geography.—A general culture course in the newer treatment of geography. Human geography has as its object the study of the relationships between human activity and the phenomena of physical geography. It is of particular value in broadening one's ideas and in the study of such human subjects as History and Sociology. Wed., 6.00 p. m. Two semester-hour credits. Dr. RESSER.

12. Engineering Geology.—This course is intended primarily for civil engineers and others interested in applied geology. The work covers the general principles of geology with special emphasis upon those relating to engineering problems. The structure of rocks relative to building operations, the controlling factors of water supply, water purification and similar problems are discussed in detail. Textbook, Engineering Geology by Ries and Watson. Mon. and Fri., 4.20 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Dr. RESSER.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. Economic Geology.—[Geology 1 and 2 and Chemistry 1 are prerequisite for this course.] The course covers the subjects comprised under: (1) Mineral veins and metalliferous deposits, their mode of occurrence, origin, and classification; (2) the ores of iron, copper, lead, zinc, tin, silver, gold, mercury, antimony, etc.; and (3) the non-metallic minerals as the coals and hydrocarbon compounds; salts and minerals used in chemical manufactures; abrasive, refractory, and fictile materials, pigments, gems, ornamental stones, building stones, limes, cements, and mineral waters. Textbook: Ries' Economic Geology. Given in alternate years. Six semester-hour credits. Professor BASSLER.

22. Paleontology.—A course in lecture and laboratory work on the biological and geological relations of the more important types of animals and plants, with especial reference to their value in stratigraphic geology. Six semester-hour credits. Professor BASSLER.

23. Advanced Historical Geology.—A lecture, laboratory and field course dealing with the interpretation of earth history as recorded in the physical features of the formations of the earth's crust, the physiographic forms developed upon them and the characteristic life remains present in many of them. Given in alternate years. Six semester-hour credits. Professor BASSLER.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. (A) Advanced Geology; (B) Mineralogy; (C) Paleontology.—Advanced courses in these subjects may be arranged for competent students. Six semester-hour credits. Professor BASSLER.

51. Advanced Geography.—Advanced courses may be arranged in this subject for qualified students. Six semester-hour credits. Dr. RESSER.

GERMANIC LANGUAGES AND LITERATURE

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. Elementary.—The essentials of German grammar, translation of easy prose and poetry; beginning conversation; composition and dictation. ### MATHEMATICS

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

3. College Algebra; Solid Geometry; Plane Trigonometry.—Algebra is studied during the first half-year, solid geometry during February and March, and trigonometry during April and May. Section A: Mon. Wed. and Fri., 9.15

a. m. Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 11.15 a. m. Associate Professor HODGKINS.

4. Algebra; Plane Trigonometry.—Algebra is studied until April 1, and trigonometry during April and May. This course is planned for students who present only one admission unit in Algebra and for students who need a review of intermediate Algebra. Six semester-hour credits. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Section B: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 6.00 p. m. Assistant Professor BORDEN.

5. Algebra; Plane Trigonometry.—Parallel with Course 4. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 9.15 a. m. Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 11.15 a. m. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor BORDEN.

6. College Algebra; Solid Geometry; Plane Trigonometry.—Parallel with Course 3. Six semester-hour credits. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6 p. m. Mr. WALLIS.

8. College Algebra.—Second half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Mr. WALLIS.

9. Trigonometry; Analytic Geometry.—Trigonometry until Jan. 1, analytic geometry for the remainder of the session. The completion of Courses 3, 4, 5 or 6 is requisite for admission to this course. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 10.15 a. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor ERWIN.

12. Trigonometry; Analytic Geometry.—Parallel with Course 9. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6 p. m. Section C: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 6 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Associate Professor HODGKINS.

15. Analytic Geometry and Calculus.—Required course for Freshmen in Architecture, and elective by the College student who has presented four entrance units in Mathematics or who has completed one of the courses 3, 4, 5 or 6, and who does not plan to specialize in Mathematics. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., at 5.10. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor BORDEN.

18. Differential and Integral Calculus; Elements of Differential Equations.—Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Section B: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor HODGKINS and Professor ERWIN.

19. Differential and Integral Calculus; Elements of Differential Equations.—Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 9.15 a. m. Six semester hour credits. Professor HODGKINS.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

24. An Elementary Treatise on the Theory of Equations; The Number-System of Algebra.—Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 10.15 a. m. First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Professor ERWIN.

25. Elements of the Theory of Infinite Processes; Hyperbolic Functions.—Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 10.15 a. m. Second half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Professor ERWIN.

26. Coordinate Geometry of Three Dimensions.—Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 10.15 a. m. First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Professor ERWIN.

27. Projective Geometry.—Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 10.15 a. m. Three semester-hour credits. Professor ERWIN.

30. Differential Equations.—Tues. and Thurs., 10.15 a. m. Four semester-hour credits. Professor HODGKINS.

32. Differential Equations.—First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Professor ERWIN.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

54. Theory of Functions of a Complex Variable.—Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor ERWIN.

55. Differential Geometry.—Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor ERWIN.

NOTE.—Not more than two of the Courses 24 25, 54 and 55 will be given during any one semester.

56. Mathematical Logic.—The nature of mathematical reasoning; the fundamental concepts of mathematics; mathematical systems; consistency, independence and completeness of postulates; postulates for geometries, algebra and logic; the "algebra" of logic. Second half-year. Three semester-hour credits. (Not given in 1924-25.) Mr. HANKIN.

MECHANICAL DRAWING

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. Mechanical Drawing.—A general course embracing engineering lettering, principles of dimensioning, use of instruments, engineering conventions, drafting room practice and standards, curve construction, isometric and orthographic detail sketches, working drawings, tracings. Section A: Mon. and Wed., 1.45 to 4.45 p. m. Section B: Mon. and Fri., 7.30 to 10.30 p. m. Section C: Tues. and Thurs., 7.30 to 10.30 p. m. Assistant Professor JOHNSON, Mr. WILSON, Mr. EHRMAN.

2. Machine Drawing.—A course in working drawings especially designed for Mechanical and Electrical Engineering students. The course is largely one of empirical design of standard parts. Much stress is laid upon drafting-room practice, arrangement of views and conventional forms and standards. Section A: Mon. and Wed., 1.45 to 4.45 p. m. Section B: Tues. and Thurs., 7.30 to 10.30 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor JOHNSON, Mr. WILSON.

8. Descriptive Geometry.—A course in the graphic geometry, of the point, line and plane; single and double curved surfaces; intersections of lines, planes and solids; shades and shadows; amplified by problems applying the principles of the subject to engineering practice. First Semester. Drawing periods: Section A, Fri., 1.45 to 4.45 p. m.; Section B, Wed., 7.30 to 10.30 p. m.; Section C, Fri., 7.30 to 10.30 p. m. One additional lecture hour to be arranged. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor JOHNSON, Mr. EHRMAN.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. Mechanism.—A course in the study of machine elements and the kinematics of machinery in which the functions and the mechanical movements are analyzed. Carefully developed problems and diagrams of changes of position and speed in mechanism are constantly used. Some attention is given to the design of gearing, and part of the second semester is devoted to the study of steam engine valve gears. Prerequisites: Mechanical Drawing I. Section A: Mon., and Fri., 10:15 a. m. Section B: Mon., and Fri., 6 p. m. Four semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor JOHNSON.

9. Engineering Laboratory.—A laboratory course for Engineering Students. This course consists of testing and calibrating engineering instruments; testing of materials used in construction; the study of the flow of water through wiers, orifices and pipes. Prerequisites: Physics 1, Applied Mathematics 20, and to be taken concurrently with Applied Mathematics 22. Two three-hour periods, second semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT and Assistant.

10. Engineering Laboratory.—A laboratory course intended primarily for Chemical, Electrical and Mechanical Engineering students. It includes a series of tests on power plant equipment featuring steam as the prime mover. It will be necessary for the student to be present one whole day during the later half of this semester in order to assist when an evaporative test will be made of a steam boiler. Prerequisite: Mechanical Engineering 20. Two three-hour periods, first semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

11. Engineering Laboratory.—An advanced laboratory course primarily for Mechanical Engineering Students. This course covers the study and testing of Internal Combustion Engines. Prerequisites: Mechanical Engineering, 10, 20, 30. Two three-hour periods, second semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. Thermodynamics.—The first semester is devoted to the study of the principles of thermodynamics; the gas and vapor cycles; and the properties of steam. The second semester is devoted to the study of the steam engine and the practical applications of the above principles. Prerequisites: Mathematics 18 or 19; Physics 1; and Mechanical Engineering I. Three hours throughout the year. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

21. Boilers.—This course includes a study of the design, construction, and operation, of modern power boilers, and such auxiliary equipment necessary to their operation when solid, liquid, and gaseous fuels are used. Prerequisite: Mathematics 18 or 19. Two hours, first semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

23. Hydraulic Machinery.—This course provides for an elementary study of hydraulic prime movers and pumping machinery. It includes the study of the theory and design of turbines and turbine blades for high and low heads, and turbine governors. Prerequisites: Applied Mathematics 21, 22; Mechanical Engineering 1. Two hours, first semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

24. Methods of Manufacture.—A study of modern manufacturing methods, machine tools, automatic machines and quantity production. Prerequisites: Mechanical Drawing 2, Mechanical Engineering 1, Civil Engineering 4. Two hours, first semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor JOHNSON.

25. Machine Design.—This course consists of the applications of principles already acquired to problems of design. The constructive details and calculations are discussed and the limitations of theoretical and empirical formulae pointed out. Prerequisites: Applied Mathematics 22, Civil Engineering 4, 22, Mechanical Engineering 24. One lecture recitation period and two three-hour drawing periods the first semester, two three-hour drawing periods the second semester. Five semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor JOHNSON.

27. Power Plants.—This course includes a study of the design, layout, and installation of modern Power Plants and Power Plant Equipment. It also includes a study of the auxiliary equipment necessary to the economic operation of the power plant, as well as that necessary to meet the present-day safety laws of the various states. Practical problems based upon the text will be assigned throughout the semester. Prerequisites: First semester, Mechanical Engineering 20. Two hours, second semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

29. Heating and Ventilating.—This course includes a study of the design, installation and economic operation of modern heating and ventilating systems installed in all types of buildings. Practical problems will be assigned throughout this semester which will involve all the principles studied. Prerequisites: First semester, Mechanical Engineering 20. Two hours, second semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

30. Internal Combustion Engines.—A more advanced study of the theoretical gas cycles, the design, construction and the operation of internal combustion engines than that given in Mechanical Engineering 20. Prerequisites: Mechanical Engineering 20. Two hours, first semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor JOHNSON.

31. Steam Turbines.—This course includes a study of the design, construction and installation of modern steam turbines, and in addition such auxiliary equipment necessary to their economic operation. Prerequisites: First semester, Mechanical Engineering 20. Two hours, first semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

32. Industrial Management.—This course consists of the study of the forming and development of manufacturing organizations, and the interrelationships of their various departments. Process planning and routing as well as modern efficiency methods are discussed. Prerequisite: Civil Engineering 4. Two hours, first semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

33. Engineering Economics.—A course in economics intended primarily for engineering students. The problems selected for this course feature the consideration of the first cost, operating expense, depreciation and salvage value of equipment used in the various fields of engineering. Prerequisite: Commerce 33. Two hours, second semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

34. Refrigeration.—This course includes a study of the design, construction, and installation of modern mechanical refrigeration equipment, and in addition such auxiliary equipment necessary to their economic operation. Practical problems will be assigned during the semester which will involve a knowledge of the principles of mechanical refrigeration as studied in this course. Prerequisite: First semester, Mechanical Engineering 20. Two hours, first semester. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor PLATT.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Advanced Machine Design.—In this course the student may either select his own problem or be assigned one by the Department of Mechanical Engineering. If the problem is selected by the student it must be approved by the professor in charge. Not more than two students may select the same problems and work together. Prerequisite: Mechanical Engineering 25. Three three-hour periods throughout the year. Six semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor JOHNSON.

51. Advanced Power Plant Design.—For this course the student will select his own problem, which must be approved by the professor in charge. Not more than two students may select the same problem and work together. Prerequisites: Mechanical Engineering 20, 21, 25, 30, 31, 34. Three three-hour periods throughout the year. Six semester-hour credits. "Refrigeration." Assistant Professor PLATT.

METEOROLOGY

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Applied Meteorology.—Investigation of the underlying laws governing meteorological phenomena and of the methods employed in practice for their interpretation and applications. Six semester-hour credits. (Not given in 1923-24.) Professor MOORE.

51. Meteorological Physics.—This course presupposes collegiate training in general physics. Particular attention will be given to the interpretation of meteorological phenomena in the light of modern physics; and those wishing to make this their principal study will be assisted in the selection of a suitable problem for investigation and advised in the collection of data necessary to its solution. Six semester-hour credits. Professor HUMPHREYS.

NAUTICAL SCIENCE

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. Nautical Science.—Marine and aerial navigation; nautical astronomy; nautical almanac; production and use of nautical charts; tides; applications of meteorology, terrestrial magnetism and oceanography to navigation and seamanship; deviation of the compass in iron and steel ships; theory and use of instruments of navigation. Four semester-hour credits. Professor LITTLEHALES.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Nautical Science.—Special investigations requiring original thought in relation to avenues of progress, such as the neutralization of the effects of the ship's magnetism upon the compass, the development of the gyroscopic compass, the supplying of means to enable seamen to make astronomical observations at night or when the horizon is hidden from view. The applications of nautical astronomy to aerial navigation. Conferences, assigned readings, direction of research. Six semester-hour credits. Professor LITTLEHALES.

PHILOSOPHY AND PSYCHOLOGY

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

11. Psychology.—(a) First Semester: An introductory study of human behavior. (b) Second Semester: The applications of psychology in the fields of business, industry, law, medicine, and education. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 11.15 a. m. Six semester-hour credit. Mr. CRANE.

12. Psychology.—Parallel with Course 11. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Mr. CRANE.

14. Psychology.—This course is designed for pre-medical students. First semester: General psychology with emphasis on the neural and physiological basis of behavior. Second semester: Special attention will be given to the use of mental tests in medicine and to some of the elementary problems of psychiatry. Tues., Thurs., Sat., at 5.10 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Dr. SOLNITZKY.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. Experimental Psychology.—Six semester-hour credits. (Not given in 1924-25.) Associate Professor MOSS.

21. Principles of Philosophy.—A course in the problems, theories and underlying principles of philosophy. Six semester-hour credits. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 9.15 a. m. Professor RICHARDSON.

22. Principles of Philosophy.—Parallel with Course 21. Six semester-hour credits. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Professor RICHARDSON.

23. History of Philosophy.—(a) First Semester: Ancient and mediaeval philosophy. (b) Second semester: Modern philosophy. Special attention is directed to the relation of philosophical conceptions to the world's progress. Six semester-hour credits. Tues., Thur. and Sat., 10.15 a. m. Professor RICHARDSON.

24. History of Philosophy.—Parallel with Course 23. Six semester-hour credits. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6.00 p. m. Professor RICHARDSON.

25. Logic.—The field of logic; the organization of knowledge; induction and deduction; logical analysis. Special attention is paid to the historical development of inductive science. First semester. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 10.15 a. m. Three semester-hour credits. Professor RUEDIGER.

26. Logic.—Parallel with Course 25. First semester: Mon., Wed. and Fri., at 5.10 p. m. Three semester-hour credits. Professor RUEDIGER.

27. Ethics.—A consideration of the principle ethical theories from the historical and social points of view. Second semester: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 10.15 a. m. Three semester-hour credits. Professor RUEDIGER.

28. Ethics.—Parallel with Course 27. Second semester: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Three semester-hour credits. Professor RUEDIGER.

29. The Exceptional Child.—Same as Education 29. First semester: Sat., 9.15–11.15. Two semester-hour credits. Miss LA SALLE.

31. Psychological Tests.—Same as Education 31. Second semester: Sat., 9.15 to 11.15 a. m. Two semester-hour credits. Miss LA SALLE.

36. The Psychological Study of the Delinquent.—Delinquency as mal-adjustment; psychological bases of delinquency; methods of studying the delinquent; types of delinquency; sexual abnormalities; problems of adolescence; the "moral imbecile;" the "born criminal;" relation of criminality in youth and adult. Tues. and Thurs. at 6.00 p. m. Two semester-hour credits. Dr. RICHMOND. (1923–24.)

40. Social Psychology.—First semester: Mon., Wed., Fri., at 6.00 p. m. Three semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: General Psychology. Mr. CRANE.

42. Vocational Psychology.—Second semester: Mon., Wed., Fri., at 6.00 p. m. Three semester-hour credits. Prerequisite: General Psychology. Mr. CRANE.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Seminar in Psychology.—A study of the atypical individual. Attention will be paid to those who deviate very far from the average in either direction, to the genius as well as to the idiot. Abnormal emotional reactions will also be considered, especially the behavior characteristic of the insane individual. Tues., 7.30–9.30. Six semester-hour credits. Associate Professor MOSS.

51. Metaphysics.—The principles of metaphysics and problems of philosophy. An advanced course tracing the origin and development of metaphysical questions, and a critical examination of the attempted solution of these questions. Reading, conferences and written reports. Wed., 7–9 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. Professor RICHARDSON.

52. Advanced Experimental, Abnormal or Physiological Psychology.—In 1923–24 the topic will be Personality. Prerequisite: General and experimental psychology. Conferences, reading of recent literature, and demonstrations. Tues., 7.30–9.30 p. m. Six semester-hour credits. (Not given in 1924–25.) Professor FRANZ.

53. Research in Psychology.—Advanced students who select psychology as major or minor for the degree of A. M. or Ph. D. will be given special topics for investigation in abnormal, physiological or experimental psychology. To be preceded or accompanied by Course 52 or its equivalent. Six semester-hour credits. (Not given in 1924-25.) Professor FRANZ.

54. Psychology of the Handicapped.—A study of the mental life of the deaf and blind and other handicapped folk. Some attention will be given to the education of the handicapped. A paper embodying construction scholarship will be required of each member of the class. Tues., Thurs., at 6. Six semester-hour credits. Professor GAULT.

PHYSICS

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. General Physics.—A recitation and lecture course, embracing the fundamental principles of mechanics, heat, electricity and magnetism, sound, and light. The prerequisites are: elementary (High School) Physics, Mathematics 9 or 12, and Mathematics 18 or 19, the latter of which may be taken concurrently. This is a required course for students in Engineering and for students specializing in Physics. Six semester-hour credits. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 11.15 a. m.; Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Associate Professor CHENEY.

2. Laboratory Physics.—Laboratory methods, accurate measurement of physical quantities, and experimental study of physical laws and apparatus. A systematic schedule of experiments is performed, and a formal report presented for each experiment. Course 2 is arranged to accompany Course 1, and may not otherwise be taken without previous preparation in Physics equivalent to Course 1. Four semester-hour credits (this takes into consideration both the time required for performance of the experiments and that required for preparation of the reports). Tues. and Thurs., 10.15 a. m., or 2.45 p. m., or Mon., Tues. and Wed., 7.30 p. m. Associate Professor CHENEY, Mr. BROMBACHER, Mr. EICHLIN, and assistants.

3. Introductory General Physics.—Recitations, and lectures illustrated by experimental demonstrations. Similar in scope to Course 1, but less mathematical in treatment. Planned with reference to the needs of the student who desires an acquaintance with the facts and principles of Physical Science in their relation to the other sciences. Six semester-hour credits. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 1.45 p. m. Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6 p. m. Professor BROWN.

4. Introductory Laboratory Physics.—Course 4 is similar in character to Course 2, but with somewhat greater emphasis placed upon the study of physical principles and their applications. It is arranged to accompany Course 3, and may not otherwise be taken without previous preparation in Physics equivalent to Course 3. Tues. and Thurs., 10.15 a. m., or 2.45 p. m., or Mon., Tues. or Wed., 7.30 p. m. Professor BROWN, Associate Professor CHENEY, Mr. BROMBACHER, Mr. EICHLIN, and assistants.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. Mechanics, Molecular Physics, and Heat.—An introduction to Theoretical Mechanics, including the dynamics of wave motion, hydrodynamics, and molecular phenomena such as surface tension, elasticity, viscosity, etc. A study of Heat from both the experimental and theoretical points of view followed by an introduction to thermodynamics. Six semester-hour credits. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 5.10 p. m. Associate Professor CHENEY. (Not given in 1924-25.)

22. Light and Sound.—The topic of Light constitutes the major portion of the course. Sound for the most part is not studied separately but in parallel with correlated light phenomena. Six semester-hour credits. Mon., Wed., and Fri., 5:10 p. m. Professor BROWN.

23. Electricity and Magnetism.—A recitation and lecture course, using Starling's Electricity and Magnetism as a class text, and the more advanced texts and the literature for reference reading. Special attention will be given to the electron theory and its relation to modern physical science. Six semester-hour credits. Tues., Thurs., and Sat., 5.10 p. m. Associate Professor CHENEY.

NOTE.—Courses 21 to 23 inclusive, constitute a complete intermediate course in Physics which may be taken during their Junior and Senior years by students specializing in physics and allied sciences. They should be accompanied wherever possible by laboratory work in Course 25. (See the schedule for such students on page 52.) Physics 1 and 2, and Mathematics 18 or 19, or the equivalents of these, are required for admission to any of these courses.

25. Advanced Laboratory Physics.—This course is planned to follow Course 2, and is given for students especially interested in Physics. The experimental work may be of a general nature, or may follow special lines of study, according to the needs of the individual student. Course 25 may advantageously be taken by students in Courses 21, 22 and 23. One or more periods per week. Two semester-hour credits for each period. Hours by arrangement. Professor BROWN and Associate Professor CHENEY.

28. Radio Principles and Practice.—A study of the elementary theory of electric oscillations and electro-magnetic waves, and of their applications to wireless communication. Physics Courses 1 and 2, and Mathematics 18 or 19, or their equivalents, are required for admission. Six semester-hour credits. Two recitations and one laboratory period. (Not given in 1924-25.) Professor BROWN.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

51. Bibliography and Survey.—In recognition of the value to the research student of a thorough study of the literature of his chosen field as a prelude to active research, credit is offered under this course for (1) the preparation of a bibliography of that field, including brief abstracts of the more important articles, and (2) a systematic analysis of the lines of investigation along which further development is most promising, and a listing of available research problems. Three semester-hour credits. Professor BROWN and Associate Professor CHENEY.

52. Introduction to Mathematical Physics.—The plan of this course is to make the student acquainted with the special tools of Mathematical Physics, such as vector analysis, generalized co-ordinates, etc. The prerequisites are: Mathematics 18, 19, or the equivalent, and at least one of the physics Courses 20 to 23. Six semester-hour credits. (Not given in 1924-25.)

55. Laboratory Physics for Graduate Students.—This course must be preceded by two or more of Courses 21-23, inclusive, and three or more semester-hour credits in Course 25, or their equivalents. The experimental problems are somewhat longer than those of Course 25, and along more specialized lines, requiring more originality and initiative on the part of the student. This course is primarily intended to supply the laboratory experience required for active research work. One or more laboratory periods. Two semester-hour credits for each period. Hours by arrangement. Professor BROWN and Associate Professor CHENEY.

57. Statistical Mechanics and Kinetic Theory.—This course is a study of the physical properties of gases from the standpoint of general dynamics. Viscosity, diffusion, heat conduction, Brownian movements, Van der Wall's equations and molecular aggregation and dissociation. Gibb's statistical mechanics and Jean's Dynamical Theory of Gases. A lecture and seminar course. Mon. at 5.10 p. m. Two semester-hour credits. (Not given in 1924-25.) Mr. VAN ORSTRAND.

58. Elasticity.—The physical properties of solids as applied to problems in geophysics. Homogenous stress and strain. Potential energy of strained solids. Transmission of force. Propagation of earthquake waves. Love's Mathematical Theory of Elasticity. A lecture and seminar course. Mr. VAN ORSTRAND.

60. Least Squares.—Derivation of the law of errors and adjustment of observations with special reference to the determination of the constants of empirical formulas. Merriman's Method of Least Squares. A lecture and recitation course. First half-year. Two semester-hour credits. (Not given in 1924-25.) Mr. VAN ORSTRAND.

61. Conduction of Heat.—Fourier's analysis is applied to numerous problems in the diffusion of heat and substances. Ingersoll and Zobel's Mathematical Theory of Heat Conduction. A lecture and recitation course. Second half-year. Two semester-hour credits. (Not given in 1924-25.) Mr. VAN ORSTRAND.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

First Section. Primarily for Undergraduates.

1. Government of the United States.—Besides an analysis of the structure of the Federal Government this course includes a study of the powers and the influence of the President, the power to make treaties, to tax, to control the railroads and the wires, and to restrict immigration. The course surveys the functions of the courts and of the various commissions. The problems connected with the currency, the tariff, foreign commerce, and with our colonial empire are discussed. Governmental changes in foreign countries are noted and compared with those at home. First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 9.15 a. m. Professor HILL. Section B:

Mon., Wed. and Fri., 10.15 a. m. Dr. TILLEMA. Section C: Mon., Wed., and Fri., 11.15 a. m. Dr. WEST. Section D: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 11.15 a. m. Dr. WEST.

2. Government of the United States.—Parallel with Course 1. Three semester-hour credits. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Dr. TILLEMA. Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6.00 p. m. Dr. WEST. Section C: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 5.10 p. m. Dr. TILLEMA. Section D: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 6.00 p. m. Dr. TILLEMA.

3. State Government.—Political Science 1 continued.—The relation of the states to the United States, the privilege of voting, the formation of public opinion, direct legislation, police power, public utilities, and executive responsibility form the chief topics. A rapid survey is made of the types of city government and of the county and township governments. Second half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 9.15 a. m. Professor HILL. Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 10.15 a. m. Dr. TILLEMA. Section C: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 11.15 a. m. Dr. WEST. Section D: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 11.15 a. m. Dr. WEST.

4. State Government.—Parallel with Course 3. Three semester-hour credits. Section A: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Dr. TILLEMA. Section B: Mon., Wed. and Fri., 6.00 p. m. Dr. WEST. Section C: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 5.10 p. m. Dr. TILLEMA. Section D: Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 6.00 p. m. Dr. TILLEMA.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

21. Comparative European Governments.—First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 11.15 a. m. Dr. TILLEMA.

22. Comparative European Governments (continued).—Second half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 11.15 a. m. Dr. TILLEMA.

23. City Government in the United States.—A study of the origin and structure of the mayor and council, commission, and city manager plans, home rule, the relation of the city to the state, municipal powers and officers, social and individual rights, and of references to European experience. First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Dr. TILLEMA. (Not given in 1924-25.)

24. Constitutional Law.—The interpretation of clauses in the Constitution of the United States and of the separate states affecting officers, courts, powers of Congress, police power, and private rights as found in judicial decisions forms the subject matter. Prerequisite: Political Science 1 or the equivalent. First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 10.15 a. m. Dr. WEST.

25. Political Theory.—Readings from the political works of Plato, Aristotle, Machiavelli, Hobbes, Locke, Rousseau, and others, and a study of modern political doctrines. The aim of the course is to give the student a knowledge of ancient and modern ideas of the purpose for which the state exists, and to analyze the state as a legal entity. First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Dr. WEST.

26. American Political Parties.—The organization, policies, platforms, and campaigns of American political parties of the past, and a special study of modern party machinery. Second half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 5.10 p. m. Dr. WEST.

27. International Relations.—The leading European treaties, especially those during the last century, are studied. The purpose is to find what principles of international law and diplomacy have been evolved and applied. First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 5.10 p. m. Professor HILL.

28. International Relations (continued).—Leading American treaties and the principles of diplomacy form the basis of this course. Second half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Tues., Thurs. and Sat., 5.10 p. m. Professor HILL.

29. International Law.—The purpose is to acquire an understanding of the elements of this subject. A text book, illustrative cases and problems form the basis for discussions. First half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 11.15 a. m. Professor HILL.

30. International Law (continued).—Second half-year. Three semester-hour credits. Mon., Wed. and Fri., 11.15 a. m. Professor HILL.

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE AND HYGIENE

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Preventive Medicine and Hygiene.—A reading and discussion course dealing with etiology and prevention of communicable diseases, including disinfection and quarantine; immunity, heredity and eugenics; air and air conditioning, ventilation and heating; food and problems in nutrition; water; sewage and refuse disposal, soil; industrial hygiene; school sanitation; personal hygiene; mental hygiene; and vital statistics. Each student prepares an essay on some preventive medicine topic in which he is interested. Hours to be arranged. Six semester-hour credits. Professor WHITMORE. (Given in alternate years. Not given in 1924-25.)

51. Public Hygiene.—A didactic, laboratory and field course on the methods used in public health work; chemical and bacteriological examination of water and milk; light and lighting; air—humidity, dust, CO<sub>2</sub> and poisonous gases; altitude; standardization of disinfectants and disinfection; meningococcus isolation and detection; gonococcus diagnosis; pneumococcus typing; tuberculosis diagnosis; typhoid diagnosis and examination of feces; diphtheria diagnosis and the Schick test; smallpox vaccine and vaccination; bacterial vaccines; control and testing of biological products; and vital statistics.

The field work will consist of a sanitary survey; visits to water purification plants, sewage disposal works, refuse disposal plants, dairies, pasteurization plants, industrial plants, and a model county health organization.

This course is open to persons who have taken Course 50 or its equivalent. The course may be modified to suit the needs of the class. Hours to be arranged. Six semester-hour credits. A laboratory fee of ten dollars is charged in this course to cover the cost of material used. Students will pay their own expenses on the field visits. Professor WHITMORE. (Given in alternate years. Given in 1924-25.)

53. Parasitology (Except Bacteriology) and Venomous Animals.—The course begins with a study of the filtrable viruses, and the problems concerning this group of organisms. The higher fungi are next studied, with special reference to the ones parasitic for man. The animal parasites are studied, beginning with the protozoa, and passing through the helminths and arthropods.

The work consists of discussions and laboratory work with fresh and preserved material, with attention to the methods of preparing material for study, including theories of staining. The problems of immunity in the different groups receive special consideration. While special stress is placed on the forms parasitic for man, the related parasites of other animals are also considered, wherever they help to explain the parasites of man. The life-cycles are studied; and the work is arranged systematically, in order to bring out the systematic positions of parasitic forms, and to indicate some of the non-parasitic relatives. The development of parasitism receives constant consideration.

The venomous animals are studied, with discussion of the venoms, and the problems of immunity in this group.

A laboratory fee of ten dollars is charged, to cover the cost of material used in the course. Six semester-hours credit. Professor WHITMORE.

Second Section. For Undergraduates and Graduates.

20. Practical Zoology.—A lecture course illustrated with lantern slides and demonstrations. In this course only beneficial and injurious animals of all classes will be considered, especial stress being laid upon the problems of preservation and extermination. The course aims to expound the economic side of zoology. Open to all students. One hour. Two semester-hour credits. Professor BARTSCH.

23. Ornithology.—A systematic course embracing lectures and laboratory work. The lectures are illustrated with lantern slides, showing the home life of birds. The laboratory work consists in classifying bird skins, of which the University possesses an excellent series. Special attention is directed to the study of the birds of the District of Columbia, and frequent field excursions are made to familiarize the student with the haunts and habits of these forms. Lecture, one hour; laboratory, one two-hour period. Four semester-hour credits. Professor BARTSCH.

Laboratory courses in histology and physiology will be arranged for competent students.

Third Section. Primarily for Graduates.

50. Courses may be arranged for competent graduates. Six semester-hour credits. Professor BARTSCH.

SUMMER SCHOOL

ARTS AND SCIENCES

CALENDAR

June 12	Registration begins.
June 16	Instruction begins in the nine-week classes and all others marked by a capital S.
July 4	Holiday.
July 7	Instruction begins in the six-week classes marked by a small s.

ADMISSION

All the work offered is of college grade and rests upon a minimum preparation of high school graduation or the equivalent. The formal presentation of entrance credentials is not required.

REGISTRATION

Registration for courses, changes in registration, and the dropping of courses are effected in the Registrar's office, 2033 G Street, N. W. This office will be open to receive registrations from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m., after June 12 and students are urged to register before the classes they wish to enter begin. Registration for credit in any class closes three days after the class has started, unless written permission to the contrary is granted by the instructor concerned.

CREDIT

The units of credit in semester hours carried by the several courses are indicated both in the schedule of classes on pages 9-11 and in the descriptive outlines of the course on pages 12-22. A semester-hour of work covers a minimum of fifteen class or laboratory periods.

Work satisfactorily completed in the Summer School will be accredited toward a degree at George Washington University on the same basis as work completed during the regular session. Three courses are considered full work, but for reasons of weight a student may be allowed to register for four courses. Students regularly employed should not attempt to carry more than two courses.

A division of courses into three sections is recognized. First section courses, numbered from 1 to 19, inclusive, are planned primarily for lower classmen; second section courses, numbered from 20 to 49, inclusive, for upper classmen; and third section courses, numbered 50 and above, for graduate students. First section courses may not be credited toward the higher degrees, and second section courses may be so credited only after additional work in them has been satisfactorily completed. Third section courses may not be entered by students without a bachelor's degree except with the approval of the instructors concerned. Candidates for the master's degree at George Washington University must complete at least six semester hours of work in the third section.

HIGHER DEGREES

For a detailed statement of the requirements for the higher degrees the student is referred to the regular catalog of the University. For the degree of Ph. D. at least one year of attendance in the regular session is required, but the requirements for the degree of A. M., or M. S. in Chemistry, may be satisfied by Summer School attendance. These requirements involve the satisfactory completion of 24 semester hours of work, the completion of an essay and a minimum attendance of 24 weeks. The candidate's choice of subjects must be approved by his major department. Candidates for a master's degree should register in the School of Graduate Studies as well as in the Summer School.

FEES

Tuition is charged at the rate of $6.00 for each semester hour of work taken. This makes the charge for a course carrying two semester hours of credit $12.00, and for three such courses, which is considered full work, $36.00. Laboratory fees are additional as follows:

Chemistry S 2, S 3, and S 7, each.....	$10.00
Chemistry S 20.....	15.00
Chemistry S 21.....	20.00
Chemistry S 8, Physics 2a or 2b.....	5.00
Breakage deposits, the amount paid in excess of breakage to be returned:
Chemistry S 2, S 3, S 7 and S 8.....	10.00
Chemistry S 20.....	15.00
Chemistry S 21.....	20.00
Microscope rental in Zoology.....	2.00

PAYMENT OF FEES

The Cashier's office, where all fees are paid, is located at 2033 G Street, across the hall from the Registrar's office. Fees are due upon registration but the nine-week students may pay their fees in three equal installments July 1, July 15, and August 1, and the six-week students in two equal installments, July 10 and August 1. Students whose fees are not paid in full by August 5 and who have not made arrangements for later payment with the Director will be dropped.

Students who are compelled to withdraw before the end of the session should promptly notify the Registrar, who will make a fair adjustment of the fees. No separate registration fee is charged, but one dollar of the tuition fee may not be canceled. As the fiscal year of the University ends August 31, no requests for refunds can receive consideration after that date.

LIBRARY

The University Library is located on the first floor of Lisner Hall (Building 4)

DIRECTOR

The office of the Director of the Summer School is located on the second floor of Lisner Hall (4-25).

HOUSING FACILITIES

Arrangements for the comfortable housing of students attending the Summer School have been made in the neighborhood of the University. These arrangements include the following places:

THE COLONIAL SCHOOL. Capacity 125. The Colonial School is located at 18th and Q Streets, N. W., which is near Dupont Circle, in the heart of the best residential section of the city. The School is just one mile from the University and the distance may be walked easily in twenty minutes. The Potomac Park car on the Connecticut Avenue line takes the student within one square of the University. Women only. Room, breakfast and dinner, if 75 or more apply—$12 a week.

THE GRAFTON. Rooms available for the Summer School to accommodate 75. The Grafton is a high class family hotel located on Connecticut Avenue and De Sales Street about three-fourths of a mile from the University. European plan. Rooms $1.25 per day up; meals reasonable.

THE ENDION CLUB. Rooms for about twelve students. The Endion Club is a business women's club located at 1801 I Street, within a ten-minute walk of the University. Double rooms with two meals $47.50 a month. Single rooms $50.00 a month. Meals alone $30.00 a month. Desirable rooms in private houses are available in the neighborhood of the Endion Club at $20.00 a month and up.

THE McAUSTIN. Capacity 50. The McAustin is a high class rooming and boarding house located at 1927 G Street, N. W., within one square of the University. Room, breakfast and dinner, $10.00-$12.00 a week, according to the room selected. Luncheon $2.00 a week additional.

KAPPA DELTA HOUSE, 1517 Rhode Island Avenue, N. W. About one mile from the University. Single room $20, a month; double rooms, $35-$40. Breakfast 35 cents.

GRACE DODGE HOTEL. Situated on Capitol Hill, near the Union Station and the Library of Congress. Accommodations for a limited number of women students. A special rate of $10.00 a week for rooms has been granted to students making reservations for not less than six weeks. Meals at correspondingly reasonable rates. For reservations address Miss Mary A. Lindsley, Managing Director. The University may be reached by street car in 25 minutes.

A few apartments and suites of rooms, desirable for parties, have been listed with the Director of the Summer School.

Rooms in private houses, dining rooms, restaurants, and cafeterias are found in abundance near the University.

Rooms in any of the places mentioned above may be reserved by addressing the place concerned or the Director of the Summer School, 2023 G Street, N. W. Washington, D. C. The six-week classes of the Summer School begin July 7, but the rooms may, as a rule, be reserved also for the week preceding, when the National Education Association meets in Washington. The rates mentioned usually imply that two or more persons occupy one room.

ASSEMBLY EXERCISES

It may truly be said that the education of an American citizen is not complete without a visit to the nation's capital. The knowledge gained forms a background for both intelligent and appreciative citizenship. This is doubly true of the American teacher. He needs this knowledge not only as a citizen but even more as a teacher. History, geography, literature, civics, and current events, are all vivified by a first-hand knowledge of Washington and its environment.

Cognizant of this fact, the Summer School of 1924 will not limit its activities to academic instruction but will endeavor also to interpret the rich and varied assets of the city by means of daily assembly exercises. These exercises will be open without cost to the student body and to the public. Addresses will be given by members of the faculty, by government officials, by experts from the independent foundations, and by other distinguished citizens. Many of the addresses will be illustrated and, whenever possible, the places interpreted will be visited in the afternoons following the addresses. A program of addresses will be published about July first.

COURSES OF INSTRUCTION

The letter S, meaning Summer, is prefixed to the numbers of courses to distinguish them from the courses offered during the regular session of the University. Courses corresponding approximately to those offered during the regular session are given corresponding numbers. Courses not so corresponding are assigned Roman numerals. The letters a and b following some of the numbers signify correspondence respectively to first and to second semester work of the regular session.

ART

s X. Industrial Art and School Drawing.—A course for teachers. Outdoor sketching, studio practice, and gallery visits, with a resumé of early art and schools of painting. An exhibition of class work will be held. At 12:15. Two semester-hour credits. Dr. BRIGHAM.

s 20. History of Art.—A resumé of early art followed by the schools of painting from the Italian Renaissance to our own time. Illustrated lectures, gallery visits and reading. At 10:15. Two semester-hour credits. Dr. BRIGHAM.

ASTRONOMY

S 1. Popular Astronomy.—A course in elementary descriptive astronomy designed to give facts of general interest without the use of higher mathematics. Recitations, lectures, and papers on special topics. At 7:45 A. M. Three semester-hour credits. Professor ERWIN.

BOTANY

S 3. Field Botany.—First-hand study of local flora designed to familiarize the student with the native plants and with methods of identification. A field trip Saturday is followed by a laboratory period Monday afternoon. This course, together with courses 1 and 2 given in the regular session, make up a rounded survey of plant life. The class will be organized June 14, at 9 A. M. Three semester-hour credits. Professor GRIGGS.

CHEMISTRY

S 1. General Chemistry.—A series of illustrated lectures, accompanied by recitations and exercises, on theoretical, inorganic, organic, and technical chemistry. 5:10-6:50. Six semester-hour credits. Professor SWETT.

S 2. Laboratory Practice.—A laboratory course for the study of the principles of chemistry and the method of conducting chemical experiments. 7-10. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SWETT and assistants.

Courses S 1 and S 2 should be taken together.

S 3. Synthetic Inorganic Chemistry.—Syntheses of inorganic compounds. 7-10. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SWETT and assistants.

S 7. Qualitative Analysis.—A brief course intended primarily for students in engineering. 7-10. Four semester-hour credits. Professor SWETT and assistants.

S 8. Elementary Organic Chemistry.—A lecture and laboratory course including both the aliphatic and aromatic series of compounds. Sixty-four lectures and 96 hours of laboratory work. Lectures Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday 5:10-6:50. Laboratory hours to be arranged. Six semester-hour credits. Professor McNEIL.

The following courses will be given if sufficient demand exists:

S 20. Qualitative Analysis.—Six semester-hours.

S 21. Quantitative Analysis.—Eight semester-hours.

S 23. Organic Chemistry.—Four semester-hours.

S 26. Physical Chemistry.—Four semester-hours.

CIVIL ENGINEERING

S 5. Elementary Surveying.—A course for Mechanical and Electrical Engineering students, covering the use of the compass, transit, and level. Lectures and field exercises. Two semester-hour credits. At 5:10. Prerequisite:—Mathematics 9 or 12. Professor FRENCH. (Begins June 9.)

COMMERCE

S X. Commerce and Industry.—A brief survey of the principles of industrial and commercial geography, and of the resources and industries of the world and commodities in world trade. Two semester-hour credits. At 12:15. Professor DONALDSON.

S 24a. Industrial and Commercial Geography.—An analysis of the economic aspects of the facts and principles of geography, and a survey of certain of the resources and industries of the world and commodities in world trade. Economico-geographic environment: land, water, climate; natural resources; the influence of geography upon the economic policies of nations. The survey of the world's resources includes the agricultural industries; the course is equivalent to the first half of the course in this subject given in the winter session. Prerequisite: General Economics. At 5:10. Three semester-hour credits. Professor DONALDSON.

S 33a. Commercial Law.—Contracts. At 5:10. Two semester-hour credits. Professor ALDEN.

S 33b. Commercial Law.—Commercial Paper. At 6. Two semester-hour credits. Professor ALDEN.

S 38. Railway Transportation.—Principles of transportation and its relation to exchange and distribution. The American railway system:

origin and growth; equipment, terminals, and operation. Services: freight, passenger, express, mail. Railway finance: accounts and statistics. Railways and the public: inter-railway relations; competition, monopoly, combinations, agreements, pools, traffic associations. Theory of rates and fares; rate making in practice. Railways and the state: systems in other countries; the American system—public aid to construction, the beginning of regulation, State commissions, the history of Federal regulation, the Interstate Commerce Commission. Government operation in war-time. The Transportation Act of 1920 and the new system. Railway labor; the Railway Labor Board. Current developments and prospects. The question of Government ownership. The relation of railway transportation to inland waterway transportation and coastwise shipping, and to the development of highway and air transportation. Prerequisite: General Economics. At 6. Three semester-hour credits. Professor DONALDSON.

ECONOMICS AND SOCIOLOGY

s 1a. General Economics.—An introduction to the fundamental concepts of economics. Attention is directed to the production and consumption of wealth, value, and price, and the organization of business enterprise. At 9:15. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor SUTTON.

S 2a. General Economics.—This course deals with the problems of the distribution of wealth and such questions as value, prices, wages, rent, and interest. At 5:10. Three semester-hour credits. Professor KERN.

S 2b. General Economics (second semester).—This course deals with the organization of the industrial system and embraces an analysis of marketing, efficient methods of production, and money and banking. A discussion of such modern programs as the trust movement, government ownership, and the like is included. At 6. Three semester-hour credits. Professor KERN.

S III. Junior High School Geography.—Same as Geology S 3. At 5:10. Two semester-hour credits. Dr. RESSER. (June 16-July 26.)

s V. Junior High School History.—Same as History s 5. At 7:45 A. M. Two semester-hour credits. Assistant Professor KAYSER.

s 16a. Junior High School Science.—A course in the teaching of general science. At 4:10. Two semester-hour credits. Mr. HOOVER.

s 18b. Junior High School English.—The teaching of English in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades. Course of study, textbooks, methods of teaching; literature for early adolescence. Selections of various types will be read to the extent that time permits. At 12:15. Two semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

s XX. Visual Aids in Education.—After a brief survey of the various visual aids available in teaching, the course will be devoted to the study of motion pictures in education. Chief topics: Film production, distribution and exhibition; films available for teaching and when, where and how to use them. At 12:15. Two semester-hour credits. Miss THORNBOROUGH.

s 21a. Educational Sociology.—A course in the aims, objectives and content of education from the sociological standpoint. At 7:45 A. M. Two semester-hour credits. Dr. SPROWLS.

s 21b. Principles of Teaching.—A systematic course in the principles underlying the teaching process: Types of subject-matter; classroom procedure; the art of study; supplementing the text; vitalizing instruction. At 9:15. Two semester-hour credits. Professor RUEDIGER.

Ss 22. History of Education.—June 16-July 5, Greek and Roman Education. July 7-Aug. 16, medieval and modern education. This course may be entered July 7th for two semester-hours of credit. At 7:45 A. M. Three semester-hour credits for the full course. Mr. SULLIVAN.

s 25. The Junior High School.—A study of the development of the Junior High School, with special reference to the curriculum and methods of instruction. At 10:15. Two semester-hour credits. Mr. SULLIVAN.

s 26. Elementary Education.—A survey of the present status of the elementary school in reference to organization, management and instruction. Such recent developments as the sectioning of classes, the Gary system, the Dalton plan, and the six-year curriculum will be taken up for special study. At 9:15. Two semester-hour credits. Mr. DEFFENBAUGH.

§ 27. School Administration.—The public school system; its development; problems of organization; the teaching staff; courses of study; school finances; economic and political relations. At 7:45 A. M. Two semester-hour credits. Mr. DEFFENBAUGH.

§ 31b. Educational Tests and Measurements.—In this course the students will be introduced to the study of educational tests with consideration of the technique of their construction and administration, the interpretation of their results, and the modification of methods and programs to meet the conditions revealed. At 10:45. Two semester-hour credits. Professor WRIGHT.

§ XL. Vocational Guidance.—This course undertakes to give the principles of vocational guidance as they affect school procedure and society in general, bringing out the connection with the teaching of vocational subjects. At 9:15. Two semester-hour credits. Professor WRIGHT.

§ 50. Principles of Supervision.—An advanced course intended for those who are engaged in supervisory capacities or for teachers of experience who are preparing for supervisory work. A paper embodying constructive scholarship will be required of each member of the class. At 12:15. Two semester-hour credits. Professor WRIGHT.

Historical

The Medical School of the George Washington University, in chronological order of establishment, is the eleventh Medical School in the United States. The first course of lectures began in March, 1825. For many years the school was known as the National Medical College; subsequently as the Department of Medicine of the Columbian University. By virtue of an act of Congress approved January 23, 1904, the Columbian University changed its name to The George Washington University.

In order to increase the facilities for bedside and clinical teaching, the University Hospital and the University Dispensary were established in 1898 and made a part of the Medical School. In 1902 the old Medical School Building, in which the exercises had been held since 1867, gave place to the present large and commodious structure.

Educational Position

The Medical School of the University has for several years been a member of the Association of American Medical Colleges. It is one of the medical colleges designated as "Class A" by the American Medical Association, and it is accredited for all its work by the Combined (Royal) Medical Examining Boards in England.

The degree of M. D. given by this University admits the holder to all governmental examinations, including those for the Medical Corps of the United States Army and Navy and the Public Health Service and, with evidence of one year of post graduate hospital work in those States which require hospital internship, will admit a graduate of our Medical School to all state examinations.

The alumni of this School are largely represented in all public services, and have been highly successful in passing the rigid examinations given by them. These facts guarantee the character of the work done by the School and insure students and graduates all the advantages which accrue from such association and recognition.

BUILDINGS AND OTHER FACILITIES

All the buildings adjoin each other and consist of the Medical School building, the University Hospital and the University Dispensary. They are most advantageously situated in the heart of the city within one block of both systems of car lines. As the Hospital and Dispensary adjoin the School, their clinical facilities are easily accessible to the students, and the pathological material and the material for clinical microscopy and clinical chemistry afforded by the Hospital and Dispensary are directly used in the School laboratories.

Medical School Building.—A modern, commodious, five-story structure with spacious, well-lighted, well-ventilated lecture and class rooms, laboratories, and students' rooms, equipped with steam heat, gas, electricity, and all modern improvements.

Laboratories.—Five in number (for anatomy, bio-chemistry and clinical chemistry, histology and embryology, physiology and pharmacology and bacteriology and pathology) are fully equipped with the most approved appliances, so that students may adequately pursue the laboratory courses and acquire the technical skill necessary in modern clinical and research work.

Medical Library.—Open for study and reading from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., with a librarian in charge. It contains at present more than 2,000 volumes, and provision is made to add to it as published the important new works on medicine.

The standard medical periodicals are regularly received. The library is an excellent working collection, as it affords opportunity to read up adequately on the subjects presented in the courses.

For purposes of advanced study and research the unequalled resources of the great Library of the Surgeon General of the Army are available to all students and teachers.

Pathological Museum.—Open from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m., with a curator in charge. It contains many valuable and interesting specimens. Their number is increased by additions from time to time. These specimens are particularly valuable to the students as illustrating the changes produced by disease.

No dental or art courses are conducted in the Medical School, and students in medicine have the advantage of being instructed by teachers whose interests are primarily medical and of not having to be in classes or laboratories with students pursuing other courses.

ADVANTAGE OF LOCATION FOR THE STUDY OF MEDICINE

The city of Washington has nearly a half million inhabitants, providing abundant clinical material to the hospitals, which have an aggregate of over five thousand beds. In these hospitals clinical instruction, in addition to that in the University Hospital, is given by members of the faculty.

The great libraries and museums connected with the various Government institutions afford unparalleled facilities for study.

The Library of the Surgeon General's office of the United States Army is the most complete general medical library in the world, and in addition to the great collections of medical works, all leading medical periodicals of the world are subscribed for. There is also the Library of Congress, the Public Library, and the many excellent libraries of the various government offices. All the facilities of these great libraries are open to medical students.

The Army Medical Museum affords an unrivalled opportunity for studying the conditions met with in military and general medicine and surgery. It has on exhibition a collection of anatomical and pathological specimens unequalled by any other museum. The other great government museums—the Museum of Hygiene and the National Museum—as well as the Smithsonian Institution, the Fish Commission, the Botanic Gardens and the Department of Agriculture, all afford opportunities for study both in medicine and its collateral sciences.

On account of the many medical and scientific facilities of this city, the Army and the Navy Medical Schools, with the large Army and Navy General Hospitals, have been located here.

Aside from the special advantages offered for the study of medicine, the cosmopolitan character of the city of Washington, its climate (not excessively cold in winter), its beauty, and its interests, as it is the seat of the General Government, are broad and national, make it an ideal place for a medical student to pass his four years of study.

ADMISSION

The requirements for admission to the Medical Schools are as follows:

Candidates for matriculation must be of good moral character.

The minimum educational requirements for admission are fifteen units of secondary school work and two years of college work made up as follows:

SECONDARY SCHOOL UNITS

Credit may be granted for the subjects shown in the following list and for any other subjects counted by a standard accredited high school as a part of the requirements for its diploma, provided that at least eleven units must be offered in groups I-V:

		Units* Required
Subjects
Group I, English—
Literature and composition.....	3-4	3
Group II, Foreign Languages—
Latin.....	1-4
Greek.....	1-3
French and German.....	1-4	2†
Other foreign languages.....	1-4
Group III, Mathematics—
Elementary algebra.....	1	1
Advanced algebra.....	$\frac{1}{2}$ -1

COLLEGE WORK

	Semester hours required
Chemistry.....	12
Physics.....	8
Biology.....	8
English.....	6
Electives.....	26

Chemistry.—Of the twelve semester hours required, eight hours must be made up of general inorganic chemistry (including four semester hours of laboratory work). Qualitative analysis may be counted as general inorganic chemistry. The remaining four semester hours must consist of organic chemistry, including two semester hours of laboratory work.

Physics.—The eight semester hours required must include at least two semester hours in laboratory work. It is urged that this course be preceded by a course in trigonometry.

Biology.—Eight semester hours required, of which four must consist of laboratory work. This requirement may be satisfied by a course of eight semester hours in either general biology or zoology or by a course of four semester hours each in zoology and botany, but not by botany alone.

English Composition and Literature.—The usual introductory college course of six semester hours, or its equivalent, is required.

Electives.—It is recommended that the twenty-six semester hours required include a modern foreign language, comparative vertebrate anatomy, social science and psychology.

A semester hour is the credit value of one-half year's work consisting of one lecture or recitation period per week, each period to be not less than fifty minutes net; at least two hours of laboratory work to be considered as the equivalent of one lecture or recitation period; and the year to be not less than thirty-three weeks of actual work.

An examination is given by the University in the latter part of May and September of each year to students who are deficient in the subjects required for entrance to the Pre-Medical Course. Candidates desiring examination must submit an application for the examination before the first of the month in which they desire to be examined.

Certificates from reputable instructors recognized by the State Board of Medical Examiners duly authorized by law or by the Superintendent of public instruction in States having no examining boards may be accepted in lieu of any part of the examination.

The laws relating to the preliminary educational qualifications required of physicians differ in many of the States, and candidates are advised that if they meet the pre-medical and other requirements of this School they will be able to comply with the legal demands of all State Examining Boards in the United States. Any admission standard lower than that of this School will not meet the requirements of all the States of the Union.

SPECIAL COURSE FOR ADMISSION TO THE MEDICAL SCHOOL

Courses are offered by the University to meet the required two years of college work necessary to enter the freshman class in Medicine.

COURSE LEADING TO DEGREE OFFERED BY THE UNIVERSITY IN ADDITION TO THE COURSE FOR THE DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF MEDICINE

The University offers a seven-year course for the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Doctor of Medicine.

ADMISSION TO COLUMBIAN COLLEGE

Applicants for admission to the Freshman Class in Columbian College for the combined course leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Doctor of Medicine must meet the general admission requirements of fifteen units. A unit represents a year's study in any subject in a secondary school, constituting approximately a quarter of a full year's work. The fifteen units of the entrance requirements must include English, 3 units; Mathematics,  $2\frac{1}{2}$  units, and one of the following languages: Latin, Greek, French, German, or Spanish, 2 units. The remainder of the requirement is elective and may be satisfied in general by any accredited secondary school subjects.

SEVEN YEAR COURSE FOR THE DEGREES OF BACHELOR OF ARTS AND DOCTOR OF MEDICINE

Regular students in this course must complete at least 90 semester hours of prescribed college work and the first year course in the Medical School. On completion of the prescribed work and the first year of the regular course in Medicine the student will receive the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

The hours of prescribed work, of which at least 18 semester hours and one year in residence must be completed in Columbian College, are as follows:

SUBJECT	SEMESTER HOURS
Zoology 3.....	8
Chemistry 1, 2 and 8.....	16
English.....	6
Modern Languages, preferably French or German.....	12
Physics 3 and 4.....	10
Psychology.....	6
Electives (Including not to exceed 30 semester hours in Medicine)....	62
Total.....	120

ADMISSION OF STUDENTS FROM OTHER SCHOOLS

Students who have satisfactorily attended one or more terms at any other Class A medical school, and who have the necessary preliminary educational requirements, may be admitted to advanced standing.

Students who have been in attendance upon an Arts course in other accredited colleges or universities may be admitted to advanced standing in any of the pre-medical courses offered by the University upon examination or upon presentation of properly certified evidence of satisfactory completion of work for which credit is asked.

Students approved by the Dean, not candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine, may be admitted as special students to any of the courses, provided they have the educational attainments which will enable them to pursue properly the studies they elect.

ACADEMIC YEAR

The Academic Year begins on the last Wednesday in September. It is divided into two half-years of four months each.

The term of study for the degree of Doctor of Medicine consists of four years of thirty-two weeks each, exclusive of vacations and holidays. The next session, the one-hundredth, begins September 24, 1924, and ends June 4, 1925.

Students must register promptly at the beginning of the session, in order that their time of study shall count as a full year.

SYSTEM OF INSTRUCTION

Instruction is carried on by laboratory work, lectures, recitations, bedside instruction, and hospital and dispensary clinics. Particular stress is laid upon laboratory work and clinical teaching. The clinical material of the University Hospital and Dispensary is utilized to the fullest extent, as the Hospital, the Dispensary, and the Medical School are under the same control. Additional clinics are given in other hospitals in the city to which members of the faculty are attached.

While close relations of the laboratories with clinics is maintained and the greatest stress is laid upon laboratory work and clinical teaching, it is recognized that the facts so obtained must be correlated and shown in their due relation to each other and to the science of medicine. To this end didactic lectures are maintained in certain branches, as they have been found necessary to give a systematic and comprehensive idea of the larger subjects in medicine.

The policy adopted by the School is to give a comprehensive, well-graded and well-proportioned course—one that will adequately prepare the graduate to practice general medicine and meet the requirements of State Medical Examining Boards.

ORDER OF INSTRUCTION

The subjects studied in each year are shown in the following table. Major subjects are in italics:

FIRST YEAR	SECOND YEAR	THIRD YEAR	FOURTH YEAR
Anatomy. Histology. Embryology. Physiology. Chemistry. Ethics.	Anatomy. Chemistry. Pathology. Bacteriology. Materia Medica. Pharmacology. Minor Surgery. Physical Diagnosis. Pathological Physiology. Hygiene.	Medicine. Surgery. Fractures and Dislocations. Clinical Microscopy. Obstetrics. Therapeutics. Roentgenology. Anaesthesia. Gynecology. Medical Jurisprudence. Clinical Chemistry Dietetics. Tropical Medicine. Clinics	Medicine. Surgery Orthopedics. Genito-Urinary Diseases. Military. Surgery. Obstetrics. Gynecology. Laryngology and Otolary. Ophthalmology. Dermatology. Psychiatry. Pediatrics. Neurology. Ethics. Clinics.

The clinics above listed comprise the medical, surgical, obstetrical and other clinics given in the third and fourth years, and are as hereafter noted under the announcements of the different clinical subjects.

Students in the medical unit, Reserve Officers' Training Corps, have one additional hour per week of instruction in medico-military subjects.

* The number of hours represents the amount of time each student devotes to the course. In addition to the hours scheduled in the third and fourth years, each student is required to do satisfactorily considerable practical work; he is assigned to cases in hospitals, is required to assist at operations, to attend cases of labor, administer anaesthetics, attend autopsies, and to take the history of cases. Fully 120 hours annually are required to do this unscheduled work.

ANATOMY

GEORGE B. JENKINS, M. D.	Professor
OTHMAR SOLNITZKY, Ph. D.	Instructor
WILLIAM BINFORD KING, A. B.	Instructor
MATHAN S. SMILER, M. D.	Instructor

The work in general anatomy is designed to cover the entire subject in such manner as to afford the student a practical working basis for his later studies in medicine and is so correlated and taught as to emphasize the value of relations and functions as well as that of structure.

While constant surveillance is maintained over the student body by the Division, individual work is encouraged and to those men who demonstrate especial fitness, opportunities for advanced work are offered. Research is encouraged and qualified students will be aided in every way possible.

Careful drawings of selected parts are required, frequent demonstrations are given and conferences are held by members of the Division.

The following courses are offered:

(1) Gross Anatomy.

This includes the careful dissection and study of the entire body during the first year, excepting the central nervous system. The study of the more difficult parts such as the special sense organs and viscera is supplemented by the use of models and prepared specimens.

Osteology and Arthrology are studied during dissection, supplemented by a short laboratory course in the study and drawing of prepared specimens.

(2) Microscopic Anatomy and Embryology.

This includes normal Histology and Embryology and while these courses are taught separately, they are so correlated as to show the structural units of the body developmentally, their morphology and arrangement and their relations to each other and to the other structural units in the construction of the tissues and organs, so that this study may constitute a proper basis for Gross Anatomy, Physiology, Pathology, and the clinical branches.

(3) Neuro-Anatomy is taught in the second year and consists of study, both gross and microscopic, of the central nervous system. Abundant material is provided and models, diagrams and lantern projections are freely used.

(4) Topographical Anatomy is given by a study-room course in drawing and studying prepared specimens, cross-section and other materials.

(5) Clinical and Applied Anatomy (Elective).

A series of demonstrations with study-room facilities is given to correlate the general anatomy of selected regions with the needs of the clinician.

PHYSIOLOGY

The instruction in Physiology is by lectures, recitations, demonstrations, laboratory exercises and conferences.

The courses begin in the third trimester of the first year so that the student may early in his course in medicine be introduced to the functional viewpoint. He is taught to observe accurately and to correlate the observed facts, so that he may draw conclusions regarding the various functions of the body in health and as the basis upon which his knowledge of diseases is built. It is the policy of the department to show the student the relation of physiology to the interpretation of disease and to train him so that in later years he may be able to adapt the methods of investigation learned in the laboratory to the study of morbid conditions.

COURSES I AND 1A FOR FIRST-YEAR STUDENTS—3D TRIMESTER

Course 1. Physiology lectures, recitations, written reviews, conferences, covering muscle, nerve, heart and circulatory system.

Course 1a. Experimental Physiology—muscle and nerve; demonstrations and experiments. Each student is required to keep records of his experiments and have the records checked before he leaves the laboratory for the day. The class is divided into groups of two for the experimental work.

COURSES 2 AND 2A FOR SECOND-YEAR STUDENTS—FIRST AND SECOND TRIMESTERS

Course 2. The functions of the nervous system and special senses, of glands, digestive system, and respiratory system are considered by lectures, recitations and laboratory demonstrations and experiments.

Course 2a. Experimental Physiology. The experiments are selected to illustrate the fundamental principles of Physiology and familiarize the student with methods employed in Experimental Physiology and Medicine. The class in groups of two or four are given practical work in electro cardiography, recording pulse tracings and determining basal metabolism.

PHARMACOLOGY

EUGENE R. NORTINGTON, M. D. .... Professor
 JAMES HOLMES DEFANDORF, A. M. .... Associate Professor

1. Elementary Pharmacy and Principles of Prescription Writing.—In this course the chemical and physical characteristics of the more important drugs are studied and pharmacopoeial preparations of the different pharmaceutical classes are prepared. The study of physical and chemical incompatibilities is carried on in close association with the above work.

While the elements of prescription writing are taught at this time, the student is drilled in the writing of simple prescriptions all through his course in pharmacology.

2. Pharmacology.—The course comprises lectures, laboratory work, conferences and written reviews, which follow the work in pharmacy. Special effort is made to correlate the work closely and to keep before the minds of the students the close association of pharmacology with physiology and chemistry. The experiments are selected to illustrate a wide range of pharmacologic actions, the more important drugs being studied in relation to their effect on different structures.

THERAPEUTICS

HENRY COOK MACATEE, D. D. _____ Professor
F. DENNETTE ADAMS, M. D. _____ Associate

(1) Systematic lectures and recitations on the physiological action of drugs and other remedial agents, their therapeutic use in disease; their modes of administration; and a review of their toxicology. (2) A review of the principles of prescription writing, with practical exercises by students in writing prescriptions in the metric system. (3) Lectures in applied therapeutics, devoted to the study of the application of remedial measures to morbid physiological and pathological states, as they occur clinically.

CHEMISTRY

JOSEPH HYRAM ROE, Ph. D. _____ Professor
OLIVER JOHN IRISH, A. B., M. S. _____ Associate Professor
MARIE O'DEA, M. S. _____ Instructor

The instruction in Chemistry consists of lectures, laboratory work, demonstrations, recitations and informal conferences. The structural side of the subject is emphasized in so far as is essential to equip the student for the subsequent study of Pharmacology and Medicine, and to enable him to read capably medical literature. The functional aspects of biochemistry receive major consideration.

The following courses are offered:

1. Physical Chemistry and Quantitative Principles: A series of lectures, supplemented by laboratory experimentation, is first given upon the physico-chemical processes concerned in functional activity, and upon the recent advances in inorganic chemistry. Such phenomena as diffusion, dialysis, osmosis, colloids, radio-activity and the structure of the atom, are especially emphasized. The student is also taught in the laboratory the standardization of apparatus, hydrogen-ion concentration, the preparation of standard solutions, the theory and use of indicators, and quantitative principles essential for subsequent biochemical analysis.

2. Physiological Chemistry: After the above preliminary training the remainder of the year is devoted to physiological chemistry. This course consists of a study of the chemical structure and reactions of carbohydrates, fats, and proteins; the composition of the tissues of the body, and of milk, urine and the secretions; the physiological chemical processes such as the digestion, absorption and assimilation of foods, general enzyme action, and metabolism; the fundamental principles of nutrition. The laboratory work is planned to supplement the lectures by a qualitative and quantitative study of the substances and physiological processes discussed, concluding with special experiments in metabolism.

3. Clinical Chemistry: A course in the biochemical methods of analysis used as aids in the diagnosis of disease. This consists of a quantitative examination for significant substances in the blood, urine, gastric juice, and alveolar air, and the interpretation of these findings as applied to diseased conditions. The routine qualitative clinical tests are also considered thoroughly. These studies are carried out upon pathological material from the University Hospital and other sources.

4. Graduate Work: A course in clinical chemistry is offered to a limited number of physicians and graduate students who wish to become acquainted with recent advances in laboratory methods of diagnosis.

BACTERIOLOGY

The didactic portion of the course in Bacteriology consists of a series of about thirty lectures and quizzes, in which the entire field of bacteriology, including immunology in its application to human medicine and welfare, is considered. The first few lectures are necessarily limited to the consideration of the general principles of the science after which the pathogenic microorganisms are discussed in a systematic sequence, with the theories of immunity treated of in appropriate places.

In the laboratory portion of the course which occupies about three-quarters of the total time devoted to the subject the students first prepare all the standard culture media and learn the general principles of bacteriologic technic from the study of about a dozen typical, widely different non-pathogenic organisms. Subsequently thirty-five to forty pathogenic bacteria are carefully examined by microscopic, cultural and serologic methods. The students prepare as far as practicable such special media as are needed for this latter work. In addition to this systematic examination of characteristic organisms the students test the efficiency of the commonly employed germicides, prepare a vaccine, and in groups prepare agglutinating, hemolytic and other immune serums and use these as commonly employed in diagnosis. In connection with the preparation of culture media the principles of sterilization are covered. In the microscopic examination of bacteria the students are trained in the use of the high powers of the microscope, in the use of dark ground illumination, and are taught to make microscopic measurements.

During the course where occasion arises in connection with special cases of interest in the University Hospital or elsewhere unusual infections or rarely occurring processes of diagnosis, etc., are demonstrated. The routine bacteriologic and serologic work of the Hospital is done in the same laboratory where the students are working so that they have ample opportunity to observe the practical application of bacteriology.

PATHOLOGY

In Pathology the division of the course into laboratory and lecture teaching is followed, the amount of time devoted to each being about twice the corresponding time in Bacteriology. General pathology, covering inflammation, repair, degenerations, the effects of plant (including bacteria) and animal parasites on the body, the effect of chemical and physical agents, the formation of new growth, etc., is first considered. This is followed by the special pathology of the organs and of the specific diseases.

The laboratory work consists primarily in the histologic study of diseased tissues and neoplasms. Between two and three hundred sections are stained, mounted and loaned to each student. These sections are carefully examined and studied by the student who makes colored pencil drawings of the characteristic lesions shown by them.

Each student is required to freeze, section, stain and diagnose a number of tissues until he becomes thoroughly familiar with frozen section technique.

The microscopic study is supplemented by that of material from the operating room, post-mortem and by specimens in the museum, thus giving a knowledge of gross morbid anatomy.

At St. Elizabeth's Hospital, under Dr. Lewis, students have an excellent opportunity for training in gross and neuro-pathology.

CLINICAL MICROSCOPY AND PARASITOLOGY

In the course in Clinical Microscopy the student is trained in the counting of the red and the white blood cells, in the various methods of hemoglobin estimation, in differential leucocyte counting, in the study of malarial parasites, and such other parasites of the blood as opportunity affords, in the estimation of the coagulation time of the blood, etc., in the microscopic study of the sediments in normal and pathologic urines, in the microscopic examination of stomach contents, of the feces, including a detailed study of animal parasites and their eggs, in the microscopic examination of sputum, of spinal fluids, pleural exudates, etc., as material and opportunities afford. The significance and value of these findings as applied to pathology and diagnosis are considered.

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE AND HYGIENE

The course in Preventive Medicine and Hygiene consists of lectures and recitations, laboratory work, sanitary excursions and sanitary surveys. The lectures and recitations cover the field of preventive medicine and hygiene, including personal hygiene, in a systematic way, using the standard text-books for the basic reading. The laboratory instruction consists of laboratory work and demonstrations in public health laboratory methods and in physiological hygiene. The sanitary excursions include visits to the two principal types of water treatment plants, sewage treatment works, refuse disposal plants, dairy, pasteurization plant, schools, various industrial plants, and a county health organization. A study will be made of the organization and functioning of a city health department; and the students will make sanitary surveys of small towns.

Instruction in Medicine is so given as to conform to the most modern requirements. The work begins in the second year with a complete course in history-taking and normal physical diagnosis, and is continued through the third and fourth years. During the last two years the course consists of lectures, recitations, a study of case histories, clinical conferences, and practical work in the clinical laboratory and at the bedside.

The third year class is divided into small sections, which are required to attend the daily dispensary service in the University Hospital, where they are drilled especially in history-taking and in the technique of practical physical diagnosis.

The fourth-year class is similarly divided into small sections, and these are required to attend the ward clinics in the University Hospital, the Garfield Memorial Hospital, Children's Hospital, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, and the Tuberculosis Hospital of the District of Columbia and others.

The system of ward clinics to small groups of students affords a most effective method of studying disease and gives to every student an opportunity of following a large assortment of diseases from their commencement to the termination of their illness: in no other way is it possible to get a more practical knowledge of the methods of studying disease or a more intimate knowledge of disease itself.

Every patient in the medical wards of the University Hospital is assigned to one, or at most, two senior students, who are required (under proper supervision) to take the history, to make and record a complete physical examination, to determine after due study the nature of the illness (diagnosis), to outline a plan of treatment, and to make daily notes of the progress of the case.

A weekly amphitheatre clinic is given to third-year students in a body and a similar clinic to the fourth-year class. A series of clinics in neurology and psychiatry is provided for the senior class at the Saint Elizabeth's Hospital, where there is a great wealth of material (see announcement of Psychiatry and Clinical Neurology).

PHILIP JOHN TRENTZSCH, M. D.	Clinical Associate in Psychiatry
RAYMOND K. FOXWELL, M. D.	Clinical Instructor
JOHN M. LADD, M. D.	Clinical Instructor

A series of lectures and clinics upon psychosis and neurology in various forms are given at Saint Elizabeth's Hospital which, with its more than three thousand beds, affords one of the largest clinics in this country.

PEDIATRICS

HARRY HAMPTON DONNALLY, A. M., M. D.	Professor
HARRY A. ONG, M. D.	Associate Professor
PRESTON A. MCLENDON, M. D.	Associate
HUGH JEFFERSON DAVIS, M. D.	Clinical Instructor
EDWARD B. BROOCKS, M. D.	Clinical Instructor

The teaching of pediatrics is made as practical as possible by having nearly all the classes in the Children's Hospital. A large outpatient service and the patients in hospital are utilized for instruction in the prevention, diagnosis, and management of the diseases of infancy and childhood. The subject of nutrition is emphasized, and practical application of its principles studied in the baby ward, and child welfare clinic. Care and feeding of premature and delicate infants are observed in a specially fitted warm-room. Small classes at the bedside and in the dispensary give close contact with patients and almost individual instruction.

Amphitheatre clinics are given weekly to the fourth year class.

Didactic lectures, two hours per week for three months, introduce the third year class to the special problems of pediatrics which are fully taught in the fourth year.

PHYSICAL DIAGNOSIS

GEORGE N. ACKER, 2nd, M. D.	Associate
WILLIAM H. TALBOTT, M. D.	Instructor
BENJAMIN F. WEEMS, M. D.	Instructor

Instruction is given in the principles and methods of physical examination by means of recitations, section work or normal subjects, and with clinical cases which typically represent diseased conditions.

DERMATOLOGY

RANDOLPH BRYAN CARMICHAEL, M. D.	Professor
CHARLES B. CAMPBELL, M. D.	Clinical Instructor

The lectures in this course will be principally clinical, supplemented by didactic lectures, illustrated by diagrams, models, and photographic illustrations of disease from life.

MEDICAL JURISPRUDENCE

HARRY S. BERNTON, M. D.	Professor
-------------------------	------------------

This course is designed to familiarize students with the rights and obligations of physicians, both legal and ethical, and to qualify them to apply the facts of medical science to the solution of problems in law.

DIETETICS

WILLIAM JOHNSTON MALLORY, A. M., M. D. .... Professor

A course of lectures and conferences on the physiology of nutrition and principles of feeding in health and disease.

Each student is required to make a thorough dietetic study of one or more cases, and to plan proper dietaries in such cases. Visits are made to Government food exhibits.

The principles of surgery are presented in a systematic course of lectures, so that the student may obtain a comprehensive and adequate concept of the science and art of surgery. The special divisions of surgery are taught by associates and instructors who have made specialties of these branches. The clinical material in the University Hospital and Dispensary, being under the control of the Faculty, is directly used throughout the course to illustrate the subject taught and to familiarize the students with actual clinical conditions.

Surgical technique is taught by instruction in the preparation of materials used in antiseptic and aseptic surgery, the preparation of the patient, and the sterilization of instruments. Practical instruction is given in the Hospital and Dispensary in the application of splints, bandages, and dressings used in the various surgical diseases and injuries. Thorough instruction and practical demonstrations are given in the administration of anaesthetics.

Clinical teaching is carried on in the University Hospital and Dispensary, and in other hospitals of the city to which members of the Faculty are attached.

Ward clinics and bedside instruction are made a prominent part of the course. The classes are divided into sections, which are regularly assigned to clinical work in the University Hospital and Dispensary, and in other hospitals and dispensaries. Senior students are assigned in rotation to individual cases in the wards of the University Hospital.

Amphitheatre clinics are given, in which the general practice of surgical diagnosis and operative technique and therapeutic procedure are shown.

Practical work is required of each student in the preparation of dressings and sterilization of instruments. Each student is required to give, under instruction, at least six anaesthesias and to assist in at least six operations.

A course of lectures and recitations on the etiology, pathology, course, termination and treatment of congenital and acquired diseases of the bones and joints, with clinical instruction in the operations for the relief and correction of deformities, and the use of special apparatus and plaster of Paris.

GENITO-URINARY DISEASES

FRANCIS RANDALL HAGNER, M. D.....	Professor
ADAM KEMBLE, M. D.....	Clinical Associate
HOMER GIFFORD FULLER, M. D.....	Clinical Instructor
CHARLES O. KNOTT, M. D.....	Clinical Instructor
LYLE M. MASON, M. D.....	Clinical Instructor
F. AUGUST REUTER, M. D.....	Clinical Instructor

A thorough course of instruction in genito-urinary diseases is given by lectures, recitations, section clinics, and bedside teaching.

MILITARY SURGERY

SEWELL MUNSON CORBETT, M. D., Major, Med. Corps, U. S. A., Professor

The treatment of gunshot wounds with special reference to civil and military practice is given in a course of lectures and demonstrations, fully illustrated by lantern slides, X-ray photographs, and actual specimens.

The use of the new armaments in recent wars and the characteristic features of the wounds caused by them, as well as the treatment of gunshot wounds in peace and war are dealt with.

OPHTHALMOLOGY

WILLIAM THORNWALL DAVIS, M. D.	Professor
DANIEL KERFOOT SHUTE, A. B., M. D.	Clinical Professor
CARL HENNING, M. D.	Clinical Professor
EDWARD GRANT SEIBERT, M. D.	Clinical Instructor
EARL GRIFFITH BREEDING, A. B., M. S., M. D.	Clinical Instructor
RALPH S. PENDEXTER, M. D.	Clinical Instructor
CARROL E. FOLEY, M. D.	Clinical Instructor

A course of lectures is given on the elementary principles of this subject, together with special instruction in the anatomy and physiological action of the more intricate parts of the eye. It is not intended to qualify the student as a specialist, but to give him a knowledge of what every general practitioner ought to know. The course is supplemented by clinical instruction in the University Dispensary and in the Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital.

LARYNGOLOGY AND OTOTOLOGY

CHARLES WILLIAMSON RICHARDSON, M. D. Sc. D.	Professor
OSCAR ADDISON MACK MCKIMMIE, M. D.	Clinical Professor
WILLIAM H. JENKINS, M. D.	Clinical Associate
EDWARD GRANT SEIBERT, M. D.	Instructor
ALBERT PERKINS TIBBETS, A. B., M. D.	Clinical Instructor
SAMUEL HARRISON GREENE, M. D.	Clinical Instructor
SAMUEL BOYCE POLE, M. D.	Clinical Instructor
EARL G. BREEDING, M. D.	Clinical Instructor
FREDERICK C. SCHREIBER, M. D.	Clinical Instructor
BOYCE R. BOLTON, M. D.	Clinical Instructor
EUGENE A. TAYLOR, M. D.	Clinical Instructor

The course comprises lectures and clinical instruction on diseases of the nasal passages, pharynx, larynx, and the ear. Practical demonstrations are given in the use of the laryngoscope and other instruments required in these special branches.

RADIOGRAPHY

ARTHUR C. CHRISTIE, M. D.....	Professor
THOMAS A. GROOVER, M. D.....	Associate Professor
EDWIN A. MERRITT, M. D.....	Associate

A fully equipped X-ray laboratory is maintained in the University Hospital and Dispensary. Students of the third and fourth year classes are assigned in sections for instructions in the use of apparatus and the application of radiographs and fluroscopic examinations to diagnosis.

OBSTETRICS

HURON WILLIS LAWSON, S. M., M. D.....	Professor
WILLIAM SINCLAIR BOWEN, M. D.....	Clinical Professor
CYRUS W. CULVER, M. D.....	Associate
HOWARD FRANCIS KANE, A. B., M. D.....	Associate
JACOB KOTZ, M. D.....	Clinical Instructor

The course in obstetrics comprises lectures, recitations, laboratory demonstrations and clinical instruction and extends over the third and fourth years. The lectures serve to outline the subject-matter and the recitations insure careful preparation on the part of the student. Special laboratory studies dealing with anatomy, embryology and pathology in relation to obstetrics are conducted in the different laboratories concerned. Models, manikins and cadavers are utilized in teaching the mechanism of labor and obstetrical operations. Clinical instruction is given to the classes in small sections at different hospitals and in the out-patient obstetrical service. Beginning about the middle of the third year each student is given practical instruction in making antepartum examinations and observes the management of labor cases. During the fourth year he conducts, under the supervision of a paid instructor, twelve labor cases in the large and well-organized out-patient maternity service and submits written reports upon the cases attended.

GYNECOLOGY

JOHN WESLEY BOVÉE, M. D.....	Professor
ALBERT LIVINGSTON STAVELY, M. D.....	Clinical Professor
GIDEON BROWN MILLER, M. D.....	Clinical Professor
ELIJAH WHITE TITUS, M. D.....	Associate
VIRGIL B. JACKSON, M. D.....	Clinical Instructor
RICHARD L. SILVESTER, M. D.....	Clinical Instructor

* The total number of clinic hours cannot be given, as each student is required to attend twelve cases, exclusive of the demonstration work and Ward and Dispensary Clinics above enumerated.

Gynecology as taught in the third year comprises a course of lectures, text-book recitations and clinical instruction. In the fourth year individual students are assigned to cases in the wards of the University Hospital, and the class is taken in sections of one or two students each into the Gynecological Dispensaries for clinical instruction in examinations, diagnosis, and treatment. In larger sections the class attends amphitheater and ward clinics given by the Professor of Gynecology and his assistants.

ETHICS

The subject of ethics as given in the order of instruction will comprise didactic lectures on personal ethics in the first year and on medical ethics in the fourth year. Instruction will be given concerning personal hygiene, care of laboratory equipment, general conduct and adaptability for the profession.

CLINICS

BUCKNER MCGILL RANDOLPH, M. D.	Director
JOHN A. REED, M. D.	Assistant Director
CYRUS W. CULVER, M. D.	Associate Director in Obstetrics

The faculty believes that clinical teaching should be as thoroughly systematized as is the teaching in the laboratories. To this end, all clinics are now under the supervision of a Director of Clinics. This secures the highest possible utilization of available clinical material for teaching purposes, a proper supervision of clinicians and students, brings the individual student into direct contact with patients and requires him to do under authoritative supervision the clinical and laboratory work necessary to diagnosis and treatment, to properly interpret the conditions occurring during the progress of cases, and to correctly write up records.

CLINICAL FACILITIES

The following hospitals are open to the students of this school for clinical study, and are extensively used for that purpose:

University Hospital and the University Dispensary

The Hospital and Dispensary are part of the educational equipment of the University. They are integral parts of the Medical School, are entirely controlled by the Faculty of Medicine, and are used primarily in instructing the students in clinical work. The Dispensary has a large out-patient service in all departments, to which several thousand visits are made annually.

The staff is composed of members of the Faculty of Medicine.

Garfield Memorial Hospital

Clinical instruction in medicine, including contagious diseases, surgery, gynecology and obstetrics.

Children's Hospital

Providence Hospital

Emergency Hospital and Central Dispensary

Columbia Hospital for Women

Clinical instruction in obstetrics and gynecology.

St. Elizabeth's Hospital

Clinical instruction in mental and nervous diseases, medicine, surgery, in post-mortem work and gross pathology.

The psychiatric clinic is one of the largest in the country.

The Episcopal Eye, Ear, Nose, and Throat Hospital

Clinical instruction in ophthalmology, otology, laryngology and rhinology.

Casualty Hospital

Tuberculosis Hospital

Clinical instruction in tuberculosis, in all its phases, both medical and surgical.

Washington Asylum Hospital

Clinical instruction in medicine, particularly in chronic conditions.

CLASSIFICATION AND ADVANCEMENT OF STUDENTS

Students are divided into four classes, according to their proficiency and the time spent, viz: first year, second year, third year and fourth year.

Proficiency in all subjects is marked on a scale of 100. The passing grade in each subject is 75.

Examinations are held at the end of the course in each subject. Students who fail to appear at a regular examination will not be examined until the next regular examination except by special permission of the Advisory Committee of the Faculty. For special examinations, a fee of ten dollars will be charged for each subject.

A student who has failed in any subject will not be advanced unless his case is especially meritorious and then only by the authority of the Advisory Committee of the Faculty. A student who has failed in a subject may, in the discretion of the Advisory Committee, be required to make it up in the September examinations.

A student who fails of graduation, may if approved by the Advisory Committee, be re-examined for graduation in the September examinations.

A student allowed to take the September examinations either for graduation or advancement, will be required to take examinations in such subjects as the Advisory Committee may direct. For these examinations a fee of five dollars will be charged for each subject taken.

A student allowed to repeat a year will be required to take such subjects and such examinations as may be directed by the Advisory Committee.

A student who fails of advancement after repeating any one of the first three years or fails of graduation after repeating the final year will not be permitted to maintain his connection with the school.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Every candidate for the degree of Doctor of Medicine must be at least twenty-one years of age and of reputable character. He must have complied with the admission and other requirements set forth. He must have attended at least 80 per cent of all required instruction during four sessions of 32 weeks each in four separate years; must have satisfactorily completed all his courses and passed all his examinations. He must be present at the time specified for the final examinations, and also at Commencement. The degree is not conferred in the absence of a candidate except by special consent of the President's Council. Graduates of other accredited colleges who desire degrees must spend one year in residence at this school.

Candidates who in their work and examinations attain general averages of 90 or more will be presented to the Faculty for consideration with reference to being designated as having graduated with distinction. If in the opinion of the Faculty such candidates have shown themselves to be possessed of more than ordinary merit, they will have inscribed upon their diplomas beneath their degree the words "with distinction."

PRIZES

A prize from the Ordranax Prize Endowment will be awarded to the student of the third, and the student of the fourth-year class who has the highest scholastic standing.

HOSPITAL APPOINTMENTS

Interns are annually appointed in the University Hospital. Appointments to similar positions are open to graduates and undergraduates of this school in the following other hospitals of the city: Garfield Memorial Hospital; Emergency Hospital; Columbia Hospital for Women; Casualty Hospital; Providence Hospital; Washington Asylum Hospital; Children's Hospital; Episcopal Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital; Sibley Hospital, and Walter Reed U. S. Army General Hospital.

UNIVERSITY MEDICAL SOCIETY

The George Washington University Medical Society was established in 1905 by a group of alumni. Its purpose is to cultivate closer friendly relations between the alumni and members of the faculty by means of social gatherings, to advance medical science by the presentation of essays, case reports and specimens for instruction and discussion, at its meetings, and to further the interest of the university in general. All alumni and members of the faculty are eligible for membership on election.

Meetings of the Society are held at the Medical School building on the third Saturday of each month from October to May.

Senior students are invited to attend the meetings of this society so allowing them the valuable opportunity of hearing the papers presented on medical subjects and becoming familiar with the conduct of medical societies.

THE YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

The central building of this Association is situated within a short distance of the Medical School.

On application through the Dean, students non-resident of the District may become members, with full privileges, including gymnasium, shower baths, swimming pools, lockers, etc., at a special rate of ten dollars for the period of the school session.

Further information regarding the Association may be obtained by application to the Secretary, 1736 G Street N. W.

MEDICAL CORPS UNIT—RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS, U. S. ARMY

A Medical Unit (R. O. T. C.) is established in this school by authority of the Secretary of War and an Officer of the Medical Corps of the Army is detailed to the University for supervision and instruction of the students in the unit.

Membership in the unit is voluntary, is open to any physically fit, male student who is a citizen of the U. S. and such membership offers material advantages.

Any student who remains in the unit for the four years of his medical course receives in the last two years compensation from the Government fixed annually and amounting to between $110 and $150 per year.

The instruction in the unit is divided into two courses of two years each and consists of one hour per week of instruction in medico-military science and tactics, additional to the regular hours of medical teaching.

The object of the course is to prepare men for a better appreciation of the obligations as well as the rights of citizenship and to give them basic training in medico-military subjects.

Students who satisfactorily complete the first two years may, if they elect, enter the advanced course of two years during which they receive pay, are obligated to complete the course and to attend one summer camp of instruction for six weeks to which the student will receive travel pay of five cents per mile and return to his home and during which he will have all camp requirements provided, including uniform only worn in camp, other necessary articles, medical attention if necessary, and pay at the rate of $21 per month—really giving an enjoyable outing with pay.

Students who successfully complete the course are upon graduation recommended for commission in the Medical Section, Officers' Reserve Corps, provided they desire appointment. Selected graduates are eligible for and given preference in appointment to internships in Army General Hospitals.

While students are not in any way obligated to enter the unit, it is suggested that for the small obligation and time given, the instruction and pay received is well worthy of consideration.

MEDICAL SCHOOL FEES

Registration, payable on entrance.....	$ 5.00
Registration, each subsequent year.....	2.00
Tuition each year.....	256.00
Material, first, second and third year each.....	10.00
Breakage deposit, unused part returnable.....	10.00
Graduation fee.....	10.00

On account of the large number of applications for admission, places can be reserved only for those qualified applicants who remit with the matriculation fee, the incidental fees and two months' tuition—a total of $89.00.

In case of illness or other unforeseen inability to attend, the tuition and incidental fees paid will be returned up to one month before the opening of the session, or thereafter if the place reserved is filled by another applicant.

There is no charge for use of microscopes but students will be required to pay for injury to microscopes, apparatus and other college property. All breakage and loss not directly traceable to an individual student is assessed pro rata and any unforfeited balance of the breakage deposit will be returned at the expiration of the course.

Persons not candidates for the degree of Doctor of Medicine who take courses in Histology, Embryology, Bacteriology, Pathology or Clinical Microscopy will be charged a fee of $6.00 for the use of the microscope in each of these courses. Should such a student take more than one of the courses mentioned in any one school year, he will be charged a single fee of $6.00 for microscope rental.

Students who elect to take the regular four year course in five years will be required to pay the full tuition for the first four years and will receive the fifth year without additional charge.

Persons are allowed to register as auditors for the tuition fees without being required to take active part in the exercises or to pass examinations but no credit will be allowed for such attendance.

No change in the courses undertaken at the time of registration will be made unless approved by the Dean.

Registration in the Medical School is for a period of one year at a time. Acceptance by the School of a student's fee, does not in any way obligate the School to accept the student for any subsequent year, and the right is reserved to drop any student from the School whenever in the interest of the student or the School the Advisory Committee of the Faculty deems it advisable to do so.

Registration, other fees and deposits are due in full in advance. After the initial payment for two months to secure registration in the freshman class tuition may be paid in monthly instalments in advance. Students who are unable to pay their fees monthly in advance will be required to file an acceptable personal or corporate bond of $200 as security for future payment. In every instance all indebtedness must be discharged on or before May 1 of the current school year. All fees are payable at the office of the Dean.

WITHDRAWALS

Withdrawals will be granted only on recommendation of the Dean and the approval of the President.

A certificate of work done will be given to any student granted a withdrawal or a transfer to another school during the session. A written request for withdrawal or transfer must be filed with the Dean and no permission to withdraw or transfer, and no certificate of work done will be given a student unless all fees and dues chargeable against him up to the end of the month in which he withdraws have been paid.

BOARD AND ROOMS

A register of boarding houses is kept by the Treasurer. Accommodations cost from $30 to $50 a month.

As the number of qualified applicants for admission to the school each year exceeds its capacity, those who wish to insure admission are urged to secure from the schools and colleges attended, completely compiled, remedical credentials and forward them for evaluation as long a time as possible before the opening of the Medical School in September.

While no standard form of statement is required, blank forms for enumerating credentials will be supplied if requested.

For catalogues, application blanks, and further information, address

HOSPITAL

The George Washington University Hospital is a general hospital with 110 beds for white patients only, located in the central part of the city, and connected with it is a Dispensary having a large out-patient service, so that the Institution affords a thorough and practical experience in medical, surgical, gynecological, obstetrical and emergency nursing and the administration work incident to a hospital.

The Staff of the George Washington University Hospital are all members of the Faculty of Medicine of the University Medical School, and the nurses receive the benefit arising from instruction and nursing cases under these trained instructors.

ADVANTAGES

Nurses in training in this Institution have the unusual advantages incident to University association, are carried as students in the University and as such participate in the commencement exercises. The class-rooms and laboratory equipment of the University Medical School, which adjoins the hospital, are used by the student nurses for class work.

The city of Washington being the Capital of the United States is especially attractive as a place of residence during the educational period of a young woman's life. There are more schools for young women in the city than in any other of its size in this country.

The cosmopolitan character of the city of Washington, its climate (not excessively cold in winter), its beauty, and its interests, which, as it is the seat of the General Government, are broad and national, make it an ideal place in which to pass three years of study.

NURSES' HOME

The Nurses' Home with a resident matron is located at 1016 13th Street N. W., a short distance from the Hospital, and furnishes the nurses excellent and adequate accommodations.

BOARD OF LADY MANAGERS

Since the establishing of the Hospital and School for Nurses, both these Institutions have been very materially assisted by a most efficient Board of Lady Managers. This Board has worked most energetically in the interest of both the Hospital and School, and by personal endeavor and financial assistance has done much to improve these Institutions.

REQUIREMENTS FOR ADMISSION

Students are admitted in September and January.

Candidates must apply personally or by letter to the Superintendent of Nurses upon blank forms provided therefor. Applicants must not be less than 18 nor over 30 years of age. They must be in good physical condition and present satisfactory evidence of their preliminary educational qualifications. Graduation from a grammar school and two years' work in a high school or academy (or its equivalent) is required. Approved applicants will be taken for a probationary period of four months as vacancies may occur. Such probationers as are deemed acceptable candidates for the nursing profession, at the expiration of their probationary period, upon subscribing to the requirements of the school, will be accepted as pupil nurses.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION

The course of training (including the probationary period) covers three years and comprises theoretical and practical instruction.

Theoretical instruction is given by the members of the Faculty of Medicine of the University Medical School, and by the Principal of the School for Nurses and a graduate nurse Instructor. Practical instruction is given by demonstrations in class room and follow-up in the wards, conducted by the instructor of the School of Nursing. By affiliation, pupils are given instruction in eye, ear, nose and throat work at the Episcopal Hospital, and Children's diseases, at The Children's Hospital.

Graduates of the School of Nursing who desire to take advanced University work will be given unit credits for their work in Chemistry, Bacteriology, Pathology, Anatomy, Physiology and Materia Medica.

REGULATIONS

I. Probationers when admitted to the school will require the following outfit: Uniform, 3 uniform dresses, 12 uniform aprons, 6 uniform collars, 6 pair of uniform cuffs, 3 uniform caps. The cost will be $32.00, payable on entrance.

II. In addition the applicant must bring 2 laundry bags, 1 pair rubbers, 2 pair black oxford shoes with military rubber heels, 1 kimono, 1 napkin ring marked with name, 1 watch with second hand (Ingersol midget is recommended).

III. To insure uniformity and economy the uniform must be secured through the Superintendent of Nurses, and no nurse will be allowed to go on duty until her uniform has been inspected and found to comply with the requirements of the school.

IV. All articles of clothing must be plainly marked with name in full, using indelible ink.

V. Nurses having bobbed hair are required to wear nets while on duty in the hospital.

VI. When probationers are accepted in the school as student nurses, an equipment of scissors, hypodermic syringe, thermometer, necessary text books and 12 bibs will be given them and charged to their account.

VII. Jewelry is not worn on duty and if of any value is better left at home. If brought, will be at risk of owner.

VIII. Two hours are allowed week days for rest, study and recreation, also one-half day (after 1 p. m.) each week (except week in which entire day is given) one-half day on Sunday, and one entire day each month.

IX. A vacation of two weeks is allowed each year.

X. A pupil nurse may be dismissed at any time if there is sufficient cause for such action, but no dismissal shall be made without the approval of the President of the University.

REMUNERATION

Their education is regarded as compensation for the nurses' services; however, each nurse receives professional instruction, home, board, laundry and medical care, besides a salary of $12 per month (including the probation period) and an additional $108 ($3.00 per month) paid at the expiration of the three years' course.

ACADEMIC YEAR

The Academic Year begins on the last Wednesday in September. It is divided into two half-years of four months each.

The term of study for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy consists of four years of thirty-two weeks each, exclusive of vacations and holidays. The next session, the fifty-fourth, begins September 24, 1924, and ends June 3, 1925.

Students must register promptly at the beginning of the session, in order that their time of study shall count as a full year.

The minimum requirements for admission are fifteen units of secondary school work and two years of college work made up as follows:

SECONDARY SCHOOL UNITS

Credit may be granted for the subjects shown in the following list and for any other subjects counted by a standard accredited high school as a part of the requirements for its diploma, provided that at least eleven units must be offered in groups I-V:

Subjects	Units* Required
Group I, English—
Literature and composition.....	3-4 3

* A unit is the credit value of at least thirty-six weeks' work of four or five recitation periods per week, each period to be not less than 45 minutes. A point is a subject pursued through one-half the above time. Two points may be considered the equivalent of one unit.

Subjects	Units Required

AIM OF THE COURSE

All work offered in the School of Pharmacy meets the highest requirements of pharmaceutical instruction. Its aim is to train pharmacists so as to enable them to intelligently and efficiently perform any work that may be required from a pharmacist with scientific training. The equipment, methods of instruction and courses are arranged to attain the object of its aim, the close association of the College of Pharmacy with the George Washington University by which students in pharmacy share all the advantages and enjoy the spirit of a great educational establishment is in itself an incentive to prepare themselves to meet the requirements of the trend of pharmaceutical education.

Instruction is given during the day.

* Both of the required units of foreign languages must be of the same language, but the two units may be presented in any one of the languages specified.

The degree of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy will be conferred on students who have attended the required course of instruction and pass satisfactory examinations in the same.

CLASSIFICATION AND ADVANCEMENT OF STUDENTS

Students are divided into four classes, according to their proficiency and the time spent, viz: first year, second year, third year, and fourth year.

Proficiency in all subjects is marked on a scale of 100. The passing grade in each subject is 75.

Examinations are held at the end of the course in each subject. Students who fail to appear at a regular examination will not be examined until the next regular examination except by special permission of the Advisory Committee of the Faculty. For special examinations, a fee of $5 will be charged for each subject.

To be advanced, a student must not fail in more than one major or two minor subjects. It is recommended that students advanced conditioned remove their conditions in the September examinations. Students advanced conditioned must remove all such conditions before they can be again advanced.

Students who fail in more than one major or two minor subjects, will not be given re-examinations in the September examinations except by special permission of the Advisory Committee of the Faculty.

Students who fail of graduation because of deficiency in but one major or two minors, if approved by the Advisory Committee of the Faculty, may be re-examined in the September examinations for graduation. Students who are allowed this privilege will be required to take such examinations as the Advisory Committee may direct.

Students who fail of advancement or graduation will be required to repeat a year, taking such subjects as may be directed by the Advisory Committee of the Faculty.

Students who fail of advancement after repeating any one of the first three years or who fail of graduation after repeating the final year, will not be permitted to maintain their connection with the school.

REQUIREMENTS FOR GRADUATION

Every candidate for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy must be at least twenty-one years of age and of reputable character. He must have complied with the admission and other requirements herein set forth. He must have attended at least 80 per cent of all required instruction during four sessions of 32 weeks each in four separate years; must have satisfactorily completed all his courses and passed all his examinations. He must be present at the time specified for the final examinations, and also at Commencement. The degree is not conferred in the absence of a candidate except by special consent of the President's Council. Graduates of other accredited colleges who desire the degree of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy must spend one year in residence at this school.

Candidates who in their work and examinations attain general averages of 90 or more will be presented to the Faculty for consideration with reference to being designated as "having graduated with distinction." If in the opinion of the Faculty such candidates have shown themselves to be possessed of more than ordinary merit, they will have inscribed upon their diplomas beneath their degree the words "with distinction."

MEMBER OF AMERICAN CONFERENCE OF PHARMACEUTICAL FACULTIES

The School of Pharmacy holds membership in the American Conference of Pharmaceutical Faculties. The object of the conference is to promote the interests of pharmaceutical education in all institutions holding membership in the same and to maintain standard requirements for entrance and graduation.

METHOD OF TEACHING

The method of teaching in use, namely the laboratory method, is admittedly the best method of instruction. Besides lectures and recitations, the subjects themselves are studied, books being used as an aid and not as an end in themselves. The faculty is composed of men who are specialists in their respective lines and consequently are enabled to give the student the benefit of their experience.

RECITATION CLASSES

Recitation classes are held in connection with each course in order to provide systematic drill in the subjects under competent instructors. These classes have been found to be one of the most effective auxiliaries to study, as part of a well-planned system of reviewing the subjects taught. They are intended to give the student an additional opportunity for testing his progress throughout the year, and for fixing firmly in mind the facts acquired from the lectures and laboratory work. Students in the Pharmacy have the advantage of instruction in all departments of the University: Arts and Sciences, the Medical School and the School of Pharmacy.

chemicals and preparations being grouped according to characteristics, non-official bodies of like nature being included. Attention is paid to commercial qualities, solubilities, preparation, preservation, storage, and uses of each article.

The laboratory work gives practice on the more difficult operations of manufacturing pharmacy.

Sterilization of solutions, filling and sealing of ampules and the manufacture of compressed tablets are also included in the course.

A great part of the time in the laboratory is devoted to the compounding of typical prescriptions, of which a large number are used for illustrating the methods of overcoming incompatibilities and of making the most presentable and effective compounds. The work has been arranged to meet the wants of young students without store experience, and also for those who have been so situated that the experience has been limited.

JUNIOR YEAR

This course consists of lectures and recitations on the theory of organic chemistry and its pharmaceutical applications, and laboratory work on the qualitative analysis of organic substances, including the examination of official compounds and preparations for identity and purity, the assay of volatile oils, the separation and identification of the important alkaloids, and a variety of other exercises.

SENIOR YEAR

This course consisting of didactic lecture and analytic methods for saponification values, iodine numbers, melting points, congealing points, quantitative assaying of drugs for alkaloids, assaying volatile oils.

The assays made in this course are on the more important drugs and preparation.

The course not only gives direct and varied training in quantitative analysis of pharmaceutical preparations, but also, by its requirement of close attention to details and by its practice on the manipulation of the delicate apparatus, it induces correct habit of work, which are invaluable in manufacturing and dispensing pharmacy.

PHARMACOGNOSY

ROBERT F. GRIGGS, Ph.D.

Professor of Botany

The preliminary work of this course will consist of a brief review of the cellular elements and cell structure in the parts of the plants used as drugs or foods. In this manner the work in vegetable histology of the first year is coordinated to the more detailed study of microscopical pharmacognosy.

Drugs and powders prepared from them representing different parts of the plants will be used as material for study.

The number of specimens studied is necessarily limited by the amount of time which can be given to the work, but the subject matter of the course is so arranged that the representative rather than extraordinary types are considered. The student is expected to construct keys in the identification of powdered materials examined, and to keep a record of his observations by drawings made from his specimens.

The first few lectures are necessarily limited to the consideration of the general principles of the science after which the pathogenic microorganisms are discussed in a systematic sequence, with the theories of immunity treated of in appropriate places.

In the laboratory portion of the course which occupies about three-quarters of the total time devoted to the subject the students first prepare all the standard culture media and learn the general principles of bacteriologic technic from the study of about a dozen typical, widely different non-pathogenic organisms. Subsequently thirty-five to forty pathogenic bacteria are carefully examined by microscopic, cultural and serologic methods. The students prepare as far as practicable such special media as are needed for this latter work. In addition to this systematic examination of characteristic organisms the students test the efficiency of the commonly employed germicides, prepare the vaccine, and in groups prepare agglutinating hemolytic and other immune serums and use these as commonly employed in diagnosis. In connection with the preparation of culture media the principles of sterilization are covered. In the microscopic examination of bacteria the students are trained in the use of the high powers of the microscope, in the use of the dark ground illumination, and are taught to make microscopic measurements.

The following subjects are offered by the Department of Arts and Sciences.

CHEMISTRY

General Chemistry: This course consists of illustrated lectures on the elements and practical laboratory work supplementing the lectures. The lectures include the fundamental principles of chemistry, definitions of elements, atoms, molecules, acids, salts, explanations of the ionic theory, chemical and physical laws. Every student who pays proper attention will obtain a solid foundation of knowledge which will enable him to understand the more advanced work of chemistry.

The elements studied include: Oxygen, hydrogen, nitrogen, chlorine, bromine, iodine, fluorine, sulphur, phosphorus, carbon, silicon, boron, lithium, barium, strontium, calcium, magnesium, aluminum, zinc, cadmium, lead, copper, mercury, iron, cobalt, nickel, manganese, chromium, tin, bismuth, gold, silver, and platinum.

The study of the element is followed by the consideration of its compounds.

Problems in chemistry are suggested for solution by the students, and much practice is required on the writing of chemical equations.

The student may thus lay the foundation of a practical knowledge of chemistry, which, when increased by the work of following years of the course, will prepare him for active work with pharmaceutical processes based on chemical principles.

Several elements and a large number of compounds are prepared in the laboratory and many experiments illustrating the properties of both elements and compounds are performed.

This laboratory practice is of special importance since it gives the student an opportunity to perform a large number of chemical experiments having a direct bearing on the lectures.

By these investigations of chemical phenomena the student has an opportunity to develop self reliance and acquire accurate habits of observation.

The laboratory work is intended to teach the student to observe and to distinguish essential from non-essential phenomena.

Qualitative Analysis: A brief course intended primarily for students in engineering and pharmacy. Two three-hour periods.

Elementary Organic Chemistry: A lecture and laboratory course including both the aliphatic and aromatic series of compounds. Two lectures and three hours laboratory work per week.

Quantative Analysis: A laboratory course in the quantative estimation of the constituents of the specially selected and typical set of chemical substances, which are particularly adapted for teaching the student the aims and methods of quantative chemical analysis and for imparting facility in manipulation. This course includes the care of the analytical balance, metric weights, and measures, the preparation and use of normal and empirical solutions, the calculation of results from analytical data. For three hour periods.

Foreign Languages: Instruction is offered in the following modern languages: French, Spanish and German.

English: English Rhetoric. A study of the principles of self-expression through language with practice in composition.

Physics: General Physics. A recitation and lecture course, embracing the fundamental principles of mechanics, sound, heat, light, and electricity. The lectures are illustrated by experimental demonstrations.

Laboratory Physics: Laboratory methods, and experimental study of physical laws and apparatus, and of the use of the simpler instruments of precision measurements.

Botany: This course aims to present in an orderly fashion such a knowledge of the vegetable kingdom as every one needs to enable him to understand plants, their mode of life and the uses to which they are put. A study of the living plant as a working mechanism is followed by a brief survey of the different kinds of plants and practice in naming the common plants. The bearing of Botany on materia medica is made prominent by introducing lists of official flowers, seeds, etc., in their appropriate places, and by directing particular attention to such points of plant structure and function as are necessary for a proper understanding of drugs.

Commercial Law: A study of the principles of the law relating to commercial transactions, especially contracts, sales, bailments, agency, partnership, negotiable instruments, and common carriers, with some study of admiralty law.

Zoology: A lecture and laboratory course covering the invertebrates, and vertebrates, cell and cell theory, unicellular organisms, cell multiplication, multicellular animals, the difference between animals and plants, mechanics of the living machine, theory of evolution, etc., classification and distribution.

Psychology: 1. General Psychology: An introductory study of general psychology carried on by means of textbook assignments, classroom discussions, lectures, and demonstrations.

2. Logic: A study of the thinking process, the principles of deductive and inductive inference, and the nature, structure and organization of knowledge.

The following courses are given in the Medical School:

HYGIENE

The course in hygiene covers the basic principles and their practical application. Consideration is given also to domestic and municipal sanitation and to the principles underlying legislative control of public health.

PHYSIOLOGY

The course in physiology is given in the physiological department in the medical school and consists of lectures, quizzes and demonstrations of physiological principles on living animals. A written and oral examination is held at the end of each term. The principles of special importance to the pharmacist are emphasized. The course embraces the following subjects: Circulation, respiration, digestion, absorption, metabolism, animal heat, muscle, nerve, central nervous system, senses, reproduction.

MATERIA MEDICA

In these lectures the official names, synonyms, origin, history, habitat, constituents, actions, uses and doses of drugs, and official preparations, and the medical actions of these will be noted, so far as is necessary for an intelligent conception of these subjects. Incidentally much valuable information will be given upon the subject of geographical materia medica. Special attention will be devoted to the toxicological symptoms and antidotal treatment of the actively poisonous drugs.

PHARMACOLOGY

The work in this course occupies nine hours a week during the first trimester. The chemical and physical characteristics of the more important drugs are studied and then pharmacopoeial preparations of the different pharmaceutical classes are considered. The study of the physical and chemical incompatibilities is carried on in close association with the above work. The course comprises lectures, laboratory work, conferences and written reviews, which follows the work, and continues through the remainder of the year.

CLINICAL MICROSCOPY

In the course in clinical microscopy the student is trained in the counting of the red and the white blood cells, in the various methods of hemoglobin estimation, in different leucocyte counting, in the study of malarial parasites, and such other parasites of the blood as opportunity affords, in the estimation of the coagulation time of the blood, etc., in the microscopic study of the sediments in normal and pathologic urines, in the microscopic examination of stomach contents, of the feces, including a detailed study of animal parasites and their eggs, in the microscopic examination of sputum, of spinal fluids, pleural exudates, etc., as material and opportunities afford. The significance and value of these findings as applied to pathology and diagnosis are considered.

BACTERIOLOGY

The didactic portion of the course in Bacteriology consists of a series of about thirty formal lectures in which the entire field of bacteriology, including immunology in its application to human medicine and welfare, is considered. The first few lectures are necessarily limited to the consideration of the general principles of the science after which the pathogenic microorganisms are discussed in a systematic sequence, with the theories of immunity treated of in appropriate places.

In the laboratory portion of the course which occupies about three-quarters of the total time devoted to the subject the students first prepare all the standard culture media and learn the general principles of bacteriologic technic from the study of about a dozen typical, widely different non-pathogenic organisms. Subsequently thirty-five to forty pathogenic bacteria are carefully examined by microscopic, cultural and serologic methods. The students prepare as far as practicable such special media as are needed for this latter work. In addition to this systematic examination of characteristic organisms the students test the efficiency of the commonly employed germicides, prepare the vaccine, and in groups prepare agglutinating hemolytic and other immune serums and use these as commonly employed in diagnosis. In connection with the preparation of culture media the principles of sterilization are covered. In the microscopic examination of bacteria the students are trained in the use of the high powers of the microscope, in the use of the dark ground illumination, and are taught to make microscopic measurements.

TEXTBOOKS

The following textbooks are used in the course in Pharmacy: U. S. Pharmacopœia; Practice of Pharmacy, Remington; Treatise on Pharmacy, Caspari.

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Student activities in the University are carried on under the direction of a Faculty Committee, acting under resolutions adopted by the Board of Trustees. Student Activities, including athletics, debating, and the various student publications, are supported by a fee paid by all students in the University. This fee not only admits the subscriber to athletic contests and entitles him to copies of the publications, but also provides for free medical attention and hospital service under certain conditions. This fee is payable like other University fees, at the office of the Treasurer of the University.

FEES AND CONTINGENT EXPENSES

Registration fee, payable on entrance.....	$5
Registration fee, each subsequent year.....	2
Reinstatement fee .....	2
Tuition each year.....	180
Graduation fee .....	10
Student activities fee.....	8
Material fee and breakage for Chemistry.....	10
Material fee for Physics.....	10
Materials and Microscope for Zoology.....	10
Materials and breakage for Pharmacy.....	10

This includes all laboratory fees and charges for material used in Chemistry and practical Pharmacy. Students will, however, be required to pay all charges for injury to microscopes, apparatus and other college property.

All breakage and loss not directly traceable to the individual student is assessed pro rata; any unforfeited balance will be returned to the student at the expiration of the course.

Persons not candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Science in Pharmacy who take courses in Bacteriology or Clinical Microscopy will be charged a fee of $6 for the use of the microscope in each of these courses. Should such a student take more than one of the courses mentioned, in any one school year, he will be charged a single fee of $6 for microscope rental.

Students who elect to take the regular four-year course in five years will be required to pay the full tuition for the first four years and will receive the fifth year without additional charge.

Persons are allowed to register as auditors for the tuition fees without being required to take active part in the exercises or to pass examinations, but no credit will be allowed for such attendance.

No registration will be accepted for less than a full half-year, and no change in the courses undertaken at the time of registration will be made unless approved by the Dean. Registration in the Pharmacy School is for a period not to exceed one year at a time and acceptance by the School of a student's registration fee does not in any way obligate the School to accept that student for any subsequent year.

Registration, other fees and deposits are due in full advance. Tuition may be paid in eight monthly installments in advance. Students who are unable to pay their fees monthly in advance will be required to file an acceptable personal or corporate bond of $200 as security for future payment. In every instance all indebtedness must be discharged on or before May 1 of the current school year. All fees are payable at the office of the Treasurer.

WITHDRAWALS

Withdrawals will be granted only on recommendation of the Dean and the approval of the President.

A certificate of work actually done will be given to any student granted a withdrawal or a transfer to another school during the session. A written request for withdrawal or transfer must be filed with the Dean and no permission to withdraw or transfer, and no certificate of work done will be given a student unless all fees and dues chargeable against him up to the end of the month in which he withdraws have been paid.

BOARD AND ROOMS

A register of boarding houses is kept by the Treasurer. Accommodations cost from $30 to $50 a month.

GENERAL STATEMENT

History.—The Law School, established in 1865, is the oldest in the city of Washington. Its course of instruction for the degree of Bachelor of Laws, originally requiring two years, was increased in 1898 to three years. A year of graduate work was added in 1877 leading to the degree of Master of Laws. The curriculum has since been increased by a course of study leading to the degree of Master of Patent Law.

RANK OF THE LAW SCHOOL

Member of the Association of American Law Schools.—The Law School is a member of the Association of American Law Schools, an association of fifty-seven law schools, including the leading schools. Members must maintain certain standards of entrance requirements, faculty, library, and course of study. Usually member schools give a maximum of credit to one another's work. This becomes important if students find it necessary to leave Washington and finish their course elsewhere.

Approved by the American Bar Association.—The American Bar Association has, through its Council on Legal Education, undertaken the classification of law schools. In respect to its faculty, library, and curriculum, the George Washington University Law School already complies with the requirements of a class "A" school, and the council has so decided. The school, however, does not until 1925 require two years of college work for admission. It is therefore at present rated by the council as class "B"—that is, one of the schools which has announced its intention of complying by 1926. After September 1, 1925, George Washington University will have complied with all the standards set by the American Bar Association, and will be entitled to be rated in class "A."

Scope of the Course.—The Law School is not a local school. Among last year's student body were representatives of forty-five states. The school does not aim to give special training in local law of any jurisdiction. It gives a general course planned to prepare its graduates for the practice of law in any English-speaking jurisdiction.

While no special instruction is given for any bar examination, the training is so thorough and the caliber of the students so high that the success of the graduates at the bar examinations has been most gratifying. Many graduates take the examination for admission to the bar of the District of Columbia. A record kept for a number of years showed that while nearly half of all applicants at these examinations failed to pass, over ninety per cent of the graduates of the Law School who took these examinations passed the first time.

Method of Instruction.—The method of instruction followed is designed to instill correct modes of legal study, to train the mind in legal reasoning, and to give a thorough grasp of fundamental legal principles. The student studies leading cases—the earlier cases which establish a principle, the later cases which show its qualifications. This study is supplemented by class-room discussion and instruction. Thus while the student is being trained to analyze and to discriminate, he at the same time masters the principles of law, sees the reasons on which they are based, and observes the influence on their development of successive political, economic, and social theories. The method is most practical. The student has always before him actual problems and their solution by the ablest judges of England and America. He begins under his teacher's guidance the work he must do when he enters practice. In no other way can the future lawyer acquire such power to solve the new problems arising from the rapidly changing social and economic conditions of life.

"The only way to clarify and simplify our law as a whole is to reach the lawyer in the making and mold his habits of thought by adequate instruction and training so that when he comes to the Bar he will have learned to think not merely in terms of law but in terms of jurisprudence. The living principle of the case system of instruction in our law schools is that the student is required by a truly scientific method of induction to extract the principle from the decision and continually to state and restate for himself a system of law evolved from its history. He is thus preparing not merely to accept formally dogmatic statements of principles but to receive and assimilate and make his own the systematic thought and learning of the world in the science of jurisprudence. With a Bar subjected generally to that process of instruction, the more general systematic study of jurisprudence would follow naturally and inevitably, and the influence of that study would be universal; and from that condition would evolve naturally the systematic restatement of our law, by men equal to that great work." *

This inductive case system is the antithesis of the lecture and illustrative case method which is often mistaken for it. The case method is now used in over ninety per cent of the schools in the Association of American Law Schools.

The Faculty.—The major part of the course is made up of subjects dealing with the fundamental theories of substantive law as distinct from the principles of practice. Most of these subjects are taught by professors who devote their entire time to the work of the Law School. They have offices in the law building and students have abundant opportunity to consult with them.

The practice courses are taught by professors who are at the same time engaged in active practice. This combination of full time and a part time faculty has, it is thought, several advantages. It gives the school the advantage of the full energy and uninterrupted working time of trained legal scholars for teaching and research, and gives the students more opportunity for personal contact and conference. At the same time the school is brought into closer contact with the bar and with the actual administration of justice. This system has worked well at the George Washington University Law School.

The Student Body.—Maturity, earnestness of purpose, and good preliminary training are the significant characteristics of the student body. Even under the former requirement of a four-year high-school course about one-fourth of the regular students were college graduates, and over one-half had had some college work before entering the Law School. Forty-four per cent of those who entered to regular study at the beginning of the academic year 1923-24 were college graduates, another thirty-six per cent had at least two years of college. Only twenty per cent had the minimum of one year. The average age was 26.8 years.

Many of these mature well-trained men and women are paying their own way. They make the most of their time in the classroom and out. The presence of such students gives to a class a morale which is equalled in not many law schools.

ADVANTAGES OF WASHINGTON FOR THE STUDY OF LAW

The city of Washington has unusual attractions for students and particularly for students of law. It lies between the North and the South. It is a residential city of rare beauty, and its population is drawn from all over the United States. The library facilities of the city, both general and legal, are unexcelled. It is unique in the extent of its legal machinery. It is the seat of Congress, the Supreme Court of the United States, the Department of Justice, the United States Court of Claims, the United States Court of Customs Appeals, and of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, Supreme Court, and Municipal Court, which exercise the dual function of state and federal courts. The various Executive Departments, including the Federal Trade Commission, the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Internal Revenue Bureau and other legal bureaus of the Federal Government, are also located in Washington.

LOCATION

The Law School occupies its own building at 1435 K Street, N. W., and is easily accessible from all parts of the city. The building, which was formerly occupied by the Department of Justice, was purchased in 1920 and remodeled to fit the needs of the Law School. It has ten class rooms with a seating capacity of about 1,100 students, seven professors' offices besides the business office, a large, well-lighted library, and two rest rooms. Four class rooms are arranged and furnished as moot courts.

LIBRARY

The Law School library, comprising more than 10,000 volumes, is open from 9 a. m. to 11 p. m. during week days and 2 to 6 p. m. on Sundays. It contains the complete decisions of the highest courts of all the States and the District of Columbia, the complete reports of the United States

Supreme Court and other federal courts, the complete National Reporters' System, the Century, First and Second Decennial Digest and United States Supreme Court Digest, various encyclopedias of law, the American Decisions, American Reports, American State Reports, and English Annotated Cases, Lawyers' Reports Annotated, American Law Reports, the English Ruling Cases, British Ruling Cases, English Reprints, English Law Reports and English Digests and Statutes and the leading standard text books and legal periodicals.

In addition to these facilities, the students have free access to the Congressional Library, including a law library of one hundred and fifty thousand volumes, and other public libraries.

ACADEMIC YEAR AND REGISTRATION

The academic year 1924-25 begins Wednesday, September 24, and closes Wednesday, June 3. The year is divided into two half-years, the second beginning January 26. The course is so arranged that a student may enter the second half-year and be graduated three years from that time, receiving his degree at the Winter Convocation held on or about February 22 of each year.

Students are urged to register at the beginning of the half-year. Those who register later than three weeks after the opening of the half-year will be restricted to registration for such work only as in the opinion of the faculty they can successfully carry.

ADMISSION

Both men and women are admitted to the Law School on the same terms.

I. For the Degree of Bachelor of Laws.—The requirements for admission to the course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Laws may be satisfied in either of the following ways:

(a) By the presentation of a certificate from an accredited college or university showing the completion therein of one full year of work.

(b) After September 1, 1925, by the presentation of a certificate from an accredited college or university showing the completion therein of two full years of work.

II. For the Degree of Master of Laws or Master of Patent Law.—Candidates for these degrees must be at least twenty-one years of age and hold the degree of Bachelor of Laws from an institution substantially complying with the requirements of the Association of American Law Schools.

III. As Special Students.—Persons who can not qualify as candidates for a degree but are over twenty-one years of age and have had such educational training and practical experience as should enable them to pursue satisfactorily the study of law, may be admitted as special students by consent of the Dean.

The number of such special students admitted each year shall not exceed ten per cent of the average number of students entering the school for the first time during each of the two preceding years.

IV. Advanced Standing.—Students from other law schools which substantially comply with the requirements of the Association of American Law Schools may receive equivalent credit, not exceeding two years' work. Such students must have been qualified to enter this school when they began the study of law. The right is reserved to refuse such credit, in whole or part, save conditionally or after examination, and credit given may be withdrawn for subsequent poor work.

Applicants of whom examination may be required, can take the regular examinations or those held at the beginning of each academic year. (See Examinations.)

No credit will be given for studies pursued in a college or high school before entering on the regular study of law, or for law studies pursued in a law office or through a correspondence course.

HOURS OF INSTRUCTION

The hours of instruction are 7:50-8:40 a. m., 9 a. m.-12 and 5:10-6:50 p. m. A complete course for the LL.B. degree is given in the classes from 9 a. m. to 12. These classes are primarily for students devoting substantially all of their time to the study of law. Students who desire, or are compelled by circumstances to support themselves by employment in the government service or elsewhere, or who desire to obtain practical experience in an attorney's office in addition to their work in law school may complete the full course for the degree, confining their attendance entirely from 5:10 to 6:50 p. m., or attending partly from 7:50-8:40 a. m. and partly from 5:10-6:50 p. m. Subjects offered from 7:50-8:40 a. m. are elective courses open to second and third year students.

A student who takes a majority of his course in the forenoon section may, with the permission of the Dean, take work not exceeding 15 hours a week. A student who takes a majority of his courses in the afternoon section, or in classes held before 9 a. m. is not permitted to register for more than 10 hours of work in the law school.

DEGREES

1. Bachelor of Laws.—The degree of Bachelor of Laws will be conferred upon regular students who have studied law for a period of at least three academic years and passed satisfactory examinations with an average grade of at least C on required and elective subjects aggregating eighty semester-hours, and whose attendance and conduct have been satisfactory to the faculty.

The degree of Bachelor of Laws with distinction will be awarded students whose average percentage in all subjects is equivalent to the grade of A.

2. Master of Laws.—The degree of Master of Laws will be conferred upon students who have completed the work in subjects not counted for the Bachelor of Laws degree covering a minimum of ten year-hours with a grade of C or better in each subject and an average grade of at least B, and whose attendance and conduct have been satisfactory to the faculty. The degree will not be conferred until one academic year after the receipt of the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

Trusts, Conflict of Laws and Constitutional Law must be included in the course for the degree of Master of Laws if not taken in the course for the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

The degree of Master of Laws with distinction will be awarded students whose average percentage in all subjects is 90, and who have made the grade of A in all subjects counting toward the degree.

3. Master of Patent Law.—Students who have qualified for the degree of Master of Laws may elect instead the degree of Master of Patent Law, provided that they have included in their course the Patent Law subjects and Federal Procedure. This degree will not be conferred until one year after receipt of the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

Candidates for degrees who have been absent from school for two successive years shall be entitled to continue the course only on such terms as the faculty may prescribe at the time of re-entering.

COMBINATION SIX-YEAR COURSE FOR DEGREES OF BACHELOR OF ARTS AND BACHELOR OF LAWS

The University permits one year of professional work in the Law School to be counted toward an academic degree. The degree of Bachelor of Arts will be conferred on students who have completed three years of college work (90 semester-hours, 18 semester-hours of which must be completed in the Department of Arts and Sciences of George Washington University, including one of the six groups of subjects there prescribed), and the first year in the Law School; the degree of Bachelor of Laws on completing the whole six years of the combination course.

SUBJECTS OF INSTRUCTION

The subjects marked with an asterisk are prescribed for the degree of Bachelor of Laws. The student may elect the remainder of his subjects. Third-year students may elect subjects of the second year not previously studied. The selection of the subjects must be made in all cases within ten days after the beginning of the half-year.

SUMMER SESSIONS, 1924

The Summer School for 1924 will cover a period of twelve weeks, divided into two sessions of six weeks each. Classes in the first session begin Monday, June 16th, and end Saturday, July 26th. Examinations will be held July 28th, 29th, and 30th. Classes in the second session begin Thursday, July 31st, and end Wednesday, September 10th. Examinations will be held September 11th, 12th, and 13th.

The purpose of the Summer School is to lighten and supplement the work of the regular session by enabling students to complete subjects usually taken in the regular session, or to shorten the period of study for a degree.

Subjects have been selected to afford proper work, both for students beginning the study of law and for advanced students. All the subjects selected will be conducted by regular members of the faculty, and the character of instruction and the amount and grade of work required will be the same as that of the regular session.

Students who are qualified for admission as candidates for degrees will be given two semester-hours credit for each subject completed.

Employed students may obtain a maximum of four semester-hours credit in each session by attendance in two subjects aggregating ten periods per week.

Students without substantial outside employment may obtain a maximum of six semester-hours credit in each session by attendance in three subjects aggregating fifteen periods per week.

HOURS OF RECITATION

The schedule is so arranged that work may be taken in the morning or in the late afternoon, or part in the morning and part in the late afternoon.

Classes in morning subjects are held from Tuesday to Saturday, inclusive; classes in afternoon subjects from Monday to Friday, inclusive. Friday, July 4th, and Monday, September 1st, will be holidays.

PUBLIC SPEAKING AND DEBATING

Excellent facilities for training in public speaking and parliamentary law are afforded by the Columbian Debating Society, which has been organized in the Law School, and meets weekly for debate. Membership in this society is optional, but its work is encouraged by the faculty, and students are advised to take part in its exercises.

Intercollegiate debates are also held. Membership on the teams which represent the University in these contests must be won in preliminary contests held for such purpose. These debates are conducted under the supervision of a committee of the University Faculty.

THE BENCHERS

"The Benchers" is a legal honor society, organized to promote scholarship in the Law School. Students who have maintained an average of "A" during two years work in this Law School are eligible as Term Benchers, and those who have maintained an "A" average throughout the course and who are within first ten per cent of the class are eligible to be elected as "Benchers" after graduation. All elections are made by the Faculty Benchers.

STUDENTS' EMPLOYMENT

The School endeavors to assist students in finding work to aid in their support. Many out-of-town students take the United States Civil Service examinations in their various states and secure positions in the Government departments in Washington, where the hours of employment enable them to pursue the law course in the afternoon. Information concerning these examinations may be secured from the Civil Service Commission at Washington.

There are also opportunities for private employment which will help pay expenses, but the applicant must be on hand to take advantage of them. Prospective students should have the means of support for at least a half-year to give them time to secure positions.

PRIZES

The John B. Larner Gold Medal.—A gold medal donated by Mr. John Bell Larner, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University, is awarded annually to that member of the graduating class who shall have attained the highest average grade in the entire course for the degree of Bachelor of Laws. Awarded 1922-23 to F. S. Rowley.

Herrick Prize.—A prize of twenty-five dollars cash, donated by Samuel Herrick, Esq., is awarded annually to that member of the graduating class, excepting the winner of the gold medal, who shall have attained the highest average grade in the entire work of the third year. Awarded 1922-23 to Jos. A. Jordan.

The Ordronaux Prize Scholarship.—A prize scholarship, known as "The Ordronaux Prize Scholarship," is awarded annually to that member of the second year class taking the regular course who shall have attained the highest average grade in the work of the second year. The recipient of this prize will be entitled to receive credit for tuition fees to the extent of one hundred dollars in his third year; the diploma fee will remain payable. The award of this scholarship is purely personal and will not be commuted to a cash payment. The recipient of the scholarship must make use of it during the session next succeeding its award; otherwise it will be awarded to the person having the next highest grade. Awarded 1922-23 to Harry Friedman.

Phi Delta Phi Prize.—John Marshall's Inn, the local chapter of Phi Delta Phi Legal Fraternity, offers a prize of twenty-five dollars cash, to be awarded at the close of each school year to that man of the first year class who shall have attained the highest average grade in the entire work of the year. Recipients are restricted to men who have made their initial registration in the Law School since the previous June, and who shall have completed at least eighteen semester hours of the courses prescribed for the work of the first year. Awarded in 1922-23 to R. S. Gordon.

Phi Delta Delta Prize.—Zeta Chapter of Phi Delta Delta Women's Legal Fraternity, which is the local chapter, offers a prize of twenty-five dollars in gold, to be awarded annually to that woman member of the first year class receiving the highest average of those registered as first year students who shall not have entered the Law School prior to September of the scholastic year for which the prize is awarded, and who shall have completed at least eighteen semester hours of study during that year. Awarded 1922-23 to Helen C. Newman.

Ellsworth Prize.—A prize of twenty-five dollars in gold, offered by Mr. Fritz v. Briesen, called the "Ellsworth Prize," is awarded for the best work done by a student in the subject of Patent Law Practice. Awarded 1922-23 to J. W. Hazell.

John Byrne and Company Prize.—A prize offered by John Byrne and Company of Washington, D. C., of four volumes of their Legal Classics is awarded each year to the student attaining the highest grade in Real Property II. Awarded 1922-23 to W. T. Fryer.

Contracts Prize.—A prize offered by Callahan and Company, law book publishers, of a Cyclopedic Law Dictionary is awarded each year to the student attaining the highest grade in Contracts. Awarded 1922-23 to Mrs. Augusta D. Spaulding.

Phi Alpha Delta Prize.—John Jay Chapter, Phi Alpha Delta Law Fraternity, offers a prize consisting of the set of Wigmore on Evidence, to the second year student attaining the highest average in the required subjects of the first and second years. The first prize will be awarded September, 1924.

ATTENDANCE, RECITATIONS, EXAMINATIONS, GRADES, AND ELIMINATION OF STUDENTS

Attendance and Recitations.—No student, except by special permission of the Dean, will be allowed to take an examination in any subject unless he shall be regularly registered and have been in regular attendance upon the classes and have done all the work required in the course of instruction upon that subject. A student who is absent over ten per cent of the class hours in any subject will be denied credit unless his absences are excused by the Dean.

Regular Examinations.—Written examinations are held at the close of the first half-year in subjects which are then completed and at the close of the year in all other subjects. All students are required to take the regular examinations in the subjects pursued, unless excused by the Dean.

Grades.—At all examinations the grading of students will be indicated by the letters A, B, C, D, E, and F, representing, respectively, Excellent, Good, Satisfactory, Fair, Conditioned, and Failed. A student receiving the grade F (failed) in any subject will be required to repeat the course. A student receiving the grade of E (conditioned) in any subject will be required to repeat the course unless he pass the next regular examination for the removal of conditions with a grade of at least C.

Examinations for the Removal of Conditions.—Regular examinations for the removal of conditions are held during the first week of each academic year. A special examination for the removal of conditions is held at the end of each academic year for the benefit of candidates for the Bachelor's degree who have been conditioned in not more than four hours during the first half of their last year. Application for permission to take these examinations must be made in writing to the Secretary of the Law School not later than three days before the date for which the examination is scheduled.

Elimination of Students.—A student must obtain a grade of D or better in at least three-fourths of the total number of semester hours for which he registers, and any student who fails to do so shall, thereby, automatically be excluded from further work in the school. He may be reinstated upon such a showing and upon such conditions as may be required by the Committee on Scholarships. The Committee on Scholarships has the power to warn, to place on probation and to refuse registration to students whose work is deemed unsatisfactory.

RESERVATION OF RIGHT TO CHANGE RULES

Registration in the Law School is for a period of one year at a time. Acceptance of a student's registration fee does not in any way obligate the school to accept the student for any subsequent year. The right is reserved to drop any student from the Law School whenever, in the interest of the student or the school, the faculty deem it advisable to do so, or to modify or change the requirements, rules and fees of the school.

FEES

1. Registration fee (payable once upon first registration in the Law School) ..... $5
2. Tuition fee—
  - (a) For students who have matriculated in the Law School prior to June 1, 1924, and have been registered and in attendance some time during the two years prior to that date, tuition fee per semester for each hour taken per week..... 6
  - (b) For students who matriculate in the Law School on or after June 1, 1924, or who have been registered and in attendance some time during the two years prior to that date, tuition fee per semester for each hour taken per week..... 7
3. Graduation fee ..... 10
4. Fees for summer session are at the same rate as those for the regular winter sessions, that is $6 per semester credit for students who come under 2 (a) above, and $7 per semester credit for students who come under 2 (b) above.
- The approximate cost of the books for the first year..... 45.00

No registration will be accepted for less than a half-year, and no change in the courses undertaken at the time of registration will be made unless approved by the Dean or Secretary. Students will be charged for all courses registered or until application for permission to drop them or to withdraw from the University has been made in writing to the Dean. Withdrawals during the half-year will be granted only on recommendation of the Dean.

PAYMENT OF FEES

Matriculation fee is due in advance. Tuition may be paid in eight monthly installments in advance, but will not be apportioned for a part of a month. Students unable to pay their fees monthly in advance will be required to file an acceptable personal or corporate bond for $200 as security for future payment. In every instance all indebtedness must be discharged on or before May 1, of the current school year. Students who are dropped from the rolls because of delinquency in payment of fees are required to pay a reregistration fee of $2. Fees are payable at the office of the Treasurer of the University, 2101 G Street, or of the Secretary of the Law School.

STUDENTS IN THE UNIVERSITY

Names of students who have withdrawn or graduated are indicated by stars (*) or symbols (§); those who have entered since February 15, 1924, by daggers (†).

DEGREES CONFERRED, MISCELLANEA

STUDENTS REGISTERED IN THE DEPARTMENT OF ARTS AND SCIENCES, 1923-1924

Names of students who have withdrawn or graduated are indicated by stars (*); those who have entered since February, 1923, by daggers (†).

In the numeration of undergraduate students the column of figures indicates the number of semester-hours of work taken by the student prior to the beginning of the current academic year, 1923-24, and completed without conditions, or credited on advanced standing in candidacy for a degree. In Columbian college 120 credits are required for graduation; in Teachers College, 124; in the College of Engineering, 140.

Since its organization in 1821 the University has conferred 11,053 degrees upon 9,974 persons.

The Secretary of the University endeavors to keep a list of the addresses of all Alumni. His catalogue now contains the addresses of about 5,500 graduates. It is known that about 1,500 are dead, and information is lacking in regard to the others.

All alumni are urged to keep the Secretary informed of any change of address or occupation, and to supply information in regard to their fellow Alumni.

Books in the Libraries are valued, after writing off depreciation, at $57,911.35, an increase by purchase of $2,717.49.

Contributions other than those reported under Trust Funds, were received as follows:

Board of Lady Managers of the Hospital $771.19; various donors for prizes $360.00; a total of $1,131.19.

Property Under Lease used for educational purposes:

2022 G Street, at $1,600.00 per annum.

Accounts Receivable from students at the close of business on August 31, 1924, was $28,423.93. This includes charges against Veterans Bureau students of $19,608.83, leaving due by other than government students $8,815.10, or one and seven-tenths per cent of the total student charges for the year, a part of which will be collected during the year 1924-25. The ratio of uncollected student fees for the year 1920-21 was three and seven-tenths; for 1921-22 the ratio was two and eight-tenths; and for 1922-23 the ratio was two and two-tenths. This gratifying improvement in collections during the past four years is the result of co-operative work between the offices of the Registrar and the Treasurer.

Cash Receipts and Payments are summarized as follows:

Balance brought over from 1922-23:

Cash in bank.....	$22,357.99
Cash received fiscal year 1923-24...	993,249.75

TRUST FUNDS:

On October 6, 1924, we inspected the securities representing the investments of the Endowment and Executory Trust Funds, in stocks, bonds, and notes, as per Exhibit "N" and "O."

We verified the cash balances as at August 31, 1924, representing uninvested principal $40,567.63, and unexpended income $10,912.70, of the Endowment and Executory Trust Funds with the bank accounts.

Respectfully submitted,

F. W. LAPRENTE & Co.,

Public Accountants.

(Formerly The American Audit Co.)

THE LAW SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

THE Columbian-George Washington Law School Association was organized at a meeting of alumni and students of the Law School, representing fifteen classes, held in the Law School auditorium April 13, 1912. The purposes of the association are as follows:

1. To promote high standards of legal education.
2. To keep the alumni of the Law School in closer touch with one another, especially with those of their own classes, and in closer touch with the Law School.
3. To gather and supply to the alumni at intervals information as to the whereabouts and doings of the alumni, and information as to the Law School.
4. To further the interests of the Law School.

In 1914 the association published a directory consisting of two lists, the geographical and the class lists. It was not complete as the deceased alumni were not included.

At a meeting in April, 1924, the members of the Law Alumni Association voted to make preparations for a new directory. A committee was appointed to handle the matter and sometime later questionnaires were sent out to all the alumni of the Law School. Work on the directory began soon after, and has been progressing slowly but surely until now it is ready to go to the printer.

Each alumnus appears in the directory in three places; in the geographical, alphabetical and class lists.

The geographical list has full information about each alumnus while the other lists only have enough information to aid one in referring from one list to another.

Those whose addresses are not known and the deceased alumni naturally do not appear in the geographical list. They only appear in the class and alphabetical lists.

We expect to learn that there are mistakes. Please send notice of errors or changes to the secretary of the Law School Alumni Association.

The association hopes also to be of service both to alumni already in practice, and to recent graduates of the Law School by bringing the abler and better prepared of the graduating classes in communication with those alumni who find themselves in need of the services of some younger attorney to assist them in their work. Every year, will prepared and able young men are graduated, whose services would, it is thought, be of value to alumni already established in practice. The experience these younger graduates could obtain in the offices of these alumni, would be of great value to them. Members of the association, and other alumni, who find themselves in need of the services of a young lawyer are urged to make enquiries of the Secretary of the Association, who will be glad to do anything that may be possible to put them in communication with suitable recent graduates of the Law School.

THE LAW SCHOOL

THE Law School was first organized in 1826, but was discontinued a year later. In 1865 it was reestablished and has been in continuous session since that time. It is the oldest law school in the District. Since 1865 the Law School has occupied four different quarters. From 1865 to 1884 it was in the Columbian Law Building on Fifth Street on the site now occupied by the Columbian Office Building; from 1884 to 1899 it occupied quarters in University Building on the southwest corner of Fifteenth and H Streets, on the site of which the Woodward Building now stands. In 1899 a new building was completed for it on H Street adjoining the University Building, the site of which is now also occupied by the Woodward Building, and it was housed in this building until the early fall of 1910, when it was moved to its quarters in the New Masonic Temple, Thirteenth and H Streets and New York Avenue, of which it occupied the fifth and sixth floors. During the summer of 1920 the Law School was moved to 1435 K Street where it has been to the present time.

In the alumni directory published in 1914 there appeared the following statement:

"It is hoped that in the next directory of Law School Alumni, there will be a picture of a new permanent Law School Building."

This wish has become an accomplished fact, and as this is written the Law School is planning on moving into the new building on August 1, 1925. This new building has been named for Admiral Stockton and will be known as "Stockton Hall."

The past eleven years have been years of progress. As standards of legal education have increased, the requirements both for admission and in the law course itself have been increased. Two years of college work are now required for admission to the Law School.

In 1900 the Law School became one of the charter members of the Association of American Law Schools and it has remained a member of this association since that time.

This School has been approved by the American Bar Association and is rated by that organization as a Class "A" School.
